Civil Rights: 100 Years Ago

One hundred years ago today the United States Supreme Court handed down an important racial decision. It was one which became known as the "Dred Scott decision." It took its name from the man who was involved, a freed slave. He had sued to determine his civil rights.

On that date, March 6, 1857, the nation was in the grip of an increasingly angry debate over the question of slavery. The South, which knew better, nonetheless allowed its fire-eaters to jockey it into a hopelessly immoral position—defense of slavery. From that moment the Confederacy, which was to be formed four years later, was doomed by world opinion. Slavery, in 1857, no longer was defensible. The currents of moral opinion ran too strongly against it.

The court's decision in the case of Dred Scott sustained slavery as an institution in the territories.

The Dred Scott decision hastened the Civil War between the states. That war abolished the Dred Scott decision. It changed the Constitution to prohibit slavery. It amended it, too, to make more certain the meaning of the Constitution—namely, that every citizen of this free country is free and has equal rights as a citizen.

Supreme Court

Now, as in 1857, there is angry dispute and division over another Supreme Court decision in this same field. And again, the fire-eaters and extremists on both sides have all but drowned out the voice of reason and reality. In 1857 it was the Abolitionists and the proslavery factions. Today it is the desegregationists and the prosegregation groups. Both forget the Supreme Court decision did not seek to "ram anything down the throats of people," but instead, provided time and a formula.

If, in 1857, it had been possible to hang about 10 men on each side, the terrible war, which need not have been fought, might well have been avoided. Today, if the rival fanatics could be silenced, the processes of the American people, who are a very fair-minded and decent people, would work their way out of anger and frustration. They will anyhow, but the way will be harsh and there will be wounds to heal because extremists have all but destroyed the alternatives.

Time keeps marching on, and the great currents flow. A hundred years, in history, is but a heartbeat. Yet, look at the change.

Dred Scott was a slave, descended from slaves. He was owned by Dr. John Emerson, in Missouri. In 1834 he was taken to Illinois, which was a free state, and lived there until 1836. His owner then moved to Fort Snelling, Minn., which then was in the Louisiana Purchase. By an act of Congress that vast territory also was free territory. While at Fort Snelling he married a slave girl, owned by an Army major.

In 1852 Dred Scott and his family were taken back to Missouri. He then sued in federal court, claiming that residence in the free state and territory had made him legally a free man. Sometime after the suit was filed Scott was sold to John F. A. Sanford in New York. The court decided Congress had no right to forbid slavery in the territories.

The decision, written by Chief Justice Roger Taney, with two justices strongly dissenting, reduced slaves to the status of animals. The stark inhumanity of the decision immediately aroused a flame of angry reaction. Old Southern diaries reveal many slaveowners themselves were disturbed by it. So great was the boomerang of public opinion that Dred Scott's owner freed him. The decision further inflamed public opinion against slavery. It caused the great engine of war to gather speed.

This case, which has its 100th anniversary today, was one of the pivots of history in the field of civil rights. That decision was wiped out by the great moral decision affirmed by the war and concurred in by the South—that human bondage was not defensible. We will (and are) solving the present problem by the processes of law. That is the American way.

Burns Expecting Israeli Pullout By End of Week

By HOMER BIGART

EL BALAGH, Egypt, March 5—Israeli troops will be clear of the Gaza Strip and the Gulf of Aqaba area by the coming weekend, Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, commander of the U.N. Emergency Force, said.

Burns disclosed that the UNEF takeover at Gaza and Sharm El Sheikh, at the mouth of the Gulf of Aqaba, will proceed much faster than had been anticipated in Cairo.

He would not reveal when the takeover would begin but UNEF units are expected to enter the southern end of the Gaza Strip tomorrow. Thereafter the Israelis are expected to fall back in rapid stages, abandoning Khan Yunis and then Gaza City.

The Israeli withdrawal from Sharm El Sheikh will be more gradual and may require three or four days. Burns explained the difficulty was removal of Israeli motorized equipment.

Apparently it cannot be evacuated by ship to the Israeli port of Elath at the head of the gulf because of lack of shipping. Consequently the bulk of the Israeli garrison and trucks must retire

Griffin Warns Aides To Quit Politicking

By BRUCE GALPHIN

Gov. Griffin warned his official family—including his brother—Tuesday to refrain from "politicking" or to quit.

Did you ever know a man who could run and do a job at the same time?" Griffin asked.

The governor's comments came a day after his brother and aide, R. A. (Cheney) Griffin, and House Speaker Marvin Moate said they were interested in the race for lieutenant governor.

In a handwritten statement, Griffin told his morning news conference Tuesday he wanted to "give Georgia a progressive, economically sound and solvent government during the remainder of my term as governor.

"This is a free state and a free country. Every Georgian has the right and the privilege of importuning the people for election to public office.

"However," Griffin declared, "I do not and will not tolerate a hot-bed of political maneuvering among the member or among the servants of this administration designed to detract from the efficiency of operation of state government."

In answer to later questioning, the governor said his warning ap-

Ben-Gurion Asks Israel Accept Risk

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

JERUSALEM, March 5 (AP)—Under taunts and badgering at an uproarious session tonight, Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion asked Parliament to support his decision to pull Israeli troops out of Egypt and Gaza.

his withdrawal decision. He is seeking a vote of confidence.

When Ben-Gurion sat down, the opposition touched off the biggest uproar ever heard in the Israeli Parliament. It took the speaker five minutes to restore order.

Ben-Gurion declared the aim of the October invasion was deliverance of Israel from danger of Arab attack, not conquest. He implied that goal was achieved.

"I am keenly aware of the dangers and drawbacks involved in the settlement we have made," he told Parliament.

While Israel did not receive the U. N. guarantees of security against Arab attack that were demanded, Ben-Gurion said:

"The President of the United States has assumed a moral responsibility toward Israel and many other nations have made statements which involve a moral commitment."

With these assurances of sup-

3 Boys Explode 10 Ducks in Sky And Panic Town

MILAN, Italy, March 5 (AP)—Ten ducks exploded in flight over the town of Somaglia and spread havoc, police reported today.

They said the 10 ducks were stolen from a poultry yard by three brothers, all under 13, who tied explosive charges to their tails, lit the fuses and released the birds.

The ducks, frightened by the spitting fuses, flew over Somaglia and exploded, causing the local population to rush for shelters.

Police reprimanded the youngsters. Their parents were invited to pay for a long list of damages, including scores of broken windows.

Ike Urges States Aid in Farm Relief

They Should Pay 25 Pct., He Says

By W. H. LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, March 5—President Eisenhower proposed to Congress today that the states pay 25 per cent of certain future farm disaster relief operations.

The administration's drought relief program was submitted to Congress in a special message by the President. It was explained in more detail in an accompanying letter from Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson.

Agricultural department officials estimate the states now pay less than one per cent of agricultural disaster relief operations, which in the last three and one-half years cost $658,000,000.

They would not estimate the chances of getting congressional approval for forcing the states to pay more, nor would they specify in detail the precise programs for which they want state governments to put up one-fourth of the cost.

The President's message was based on his drought tour in mid-January and conferences with

South Gains More Time in Rights Fight

Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, March 5—Southern congressmen won another week's respite today as they relentlessly waged a delaying action against civil rights legislation.

The House Judiciary Committee, headed by Rep. Celler (D-NY), had been expected to approve the administration's civil rights bill at a closed meeting today. But the committee agreed to postpone action until next Tuesday at the request of the Southern minority.

By winning this additional skirmish, the Southerners now appear to be gaining a glimmer of hope that they may yet be able to prevent passage of the bill at this session of Congress.

One of the leaders and top strategists of the Dixie forces is Rep. E. L. (Tic) Forrester of Leesburg. Ever since Congress convened in January, Forrester has been rallying his Southern colleagues in an effort to get them to throw off a defeatist attitude.

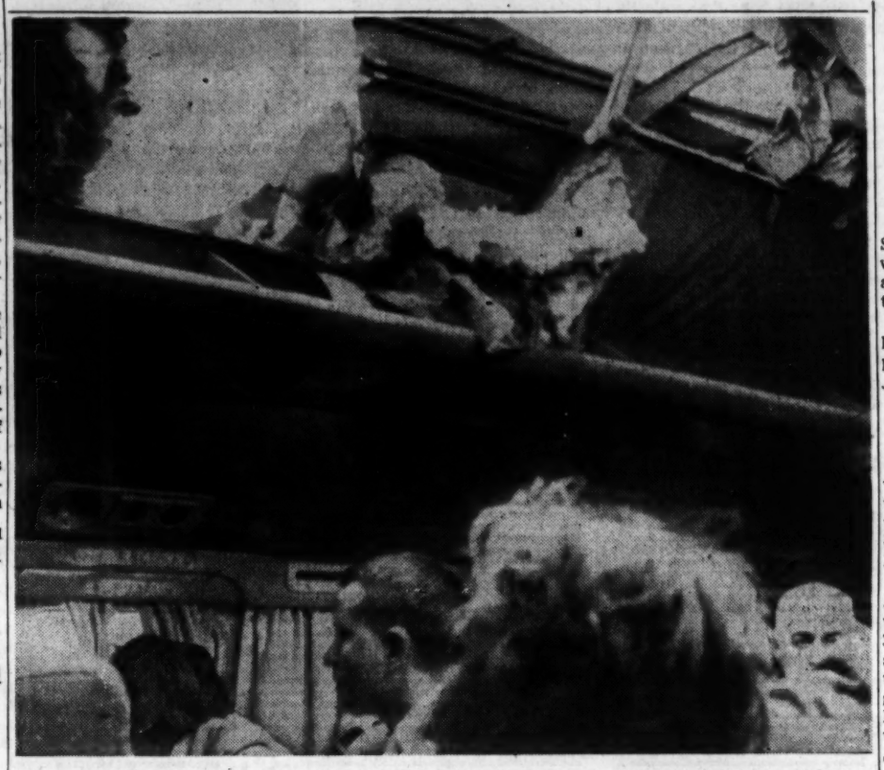

The outlook is still for eventual passage of the bill which not only has President Eisenhower's support but strong bipartisan backing from the North and West.

But the Southerners have bought time and obviously hope to delay House action long enough so that the legislation may again be sucessfully bottled up in the Senate as it was last session.

When Congress met in January,

House Likely To Agree to Amendments

WASHINGTON, March 5—The Senate tonight approved a solemn warning by the United States against Communist aggression in the Middle East.

tary force if necessary to keep the peace and to supply immediate economic-military aid to Middle Eastern countries in need.

The substance of the policy now approved by the Senate had been voted 255 to 67 by the House Jan. 30. President Eisenhower in a special message Jan. 5 had asked the Democratically controlled Congress to join him in this proclamation of American determination.

TWO MONTHS LATER

Thus, the Senate's action came just two months from the day he had requested it.

The Senate version of the resolution involved a revision of what the President had first asked and what the House had approved. The House may adopt the Senate version without argument or may insist on conferences to reconcile their differing papers.

If the House adopts the first and more probable course—that of quick concurrence with the Senate version—the resolution will reach the President for his signature before the end of the week.

ARMS TO VICTIMS OF REDS

The principal points in the text passed by the Senate were these:

1. A declaration of high policy that the United States, if the President should deem it necessary, would commit its military forces against Communist aggression in the Middle East wherever a victim requested help.

The President initially had asked for a blanket and unconditional congressional "authorization" for his use of force as he might see fit.

This the House had granted. But the Senate insisted to the end simply on a statement that the United States is "prepared" to act if the President, and the President alone, determines on that course. This would leave the ultimate responsibility exclusively with the President.

2. An authorization to the President to spend free of all present restrictions up to $200,000,000 in

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 5 (AP)—A big DC7 airliner cruising at 14,000 feet threw a propeller today, slashing off the cabin top above the heads of 41 passengers.

The pressurized luxury cabin, suddenly an open cockpit, filled with a storm of loose clothing from the overhead racks and feathers from broken pillows. But no one was seriously hurt.

The pilot, Capt. L. T. Hansard, 43, Smithfield, Tex., made an emergency landing here seven minutes after the four-bladed prop let go, whacking through the roof "like a bolt of lightning."

There was no panic.

Passengers on the "nonstop" flight from New York to Dallas gave Hansard and his four crew members a heartfelt ovation after the American Airlines plane landed.

The whirling prop cut a hole "big enough to drive a car through" in the top of the cabin above the wing, about a foot or so over the windows.

It happened as the plane was cruising at about 335 miles an hour, through fairly rough air, over Fisherville, Tenn., 30 miles east of Memphis. Due to the turbulence, most of the passengers already had buckled their seat belts.

"There was a terrific roar," said Dr. Jack Ewalt, Boston. "I thought another plane had kissed us. But there was no panic. We just sat there and tried to help each other."

Hansard said the gash cut by the wild prop had no effect on the plane's characteristics of flight.

"We could have gone right on to Dallas," he said, "but of course the cabin was cold — about 30 degrees — and the passengers would have been uncomfortable. If the prop had hit anywhere else it might have caused us more trouble. As it was, there wasn't much to it."

Trunkful of Gems Vanishes at Depot

The big trunk disappeared from the Southern Pacific baggage room about noon yesteray.

Raymond J. Cannon, 62, a salesman from Los Angeles, estimated the gems' value at $40,000 to $50,000. Tucson police said they would bring $200,000 retail.

2-Year Terms Given Caudle And Connelly

ST. LOUIS, March 5 (AP)—Two former officials in the Truman administration, convicted last summer of conspiring to fix a federal income tax case, were sentenced today to two years in prison and fined $2,500 each.

Both Matthew J. Connelly, 49, presidential appointments secretary under Truman, and T. Lamar Caudle, 52, former head of the Justice Department's tax division, made statements to the court before they were sentenced.

U. S. Dist. Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye let both remain at liberty under $5,000 bonds pending appeal of the case.

Judge Nordbye denied a motion for a new trial, filed late yesterday on the contention the late Judge Rubey M. Hulen was not in "proper mental or physical condition" to hear their trial.

Judge Hulen was found fatally wounded in the backyard of his home in a St. Louis suburb three weeks after the trial ended last June 14. A revolver lay nearby. A coroner's jury was unable to determine whether Judge Hulen killed himself accidentally or deliberately.

Connelly, now a New York City public relations counselor, appeared depressed and highly nervous as he told the court in a trembling voice:

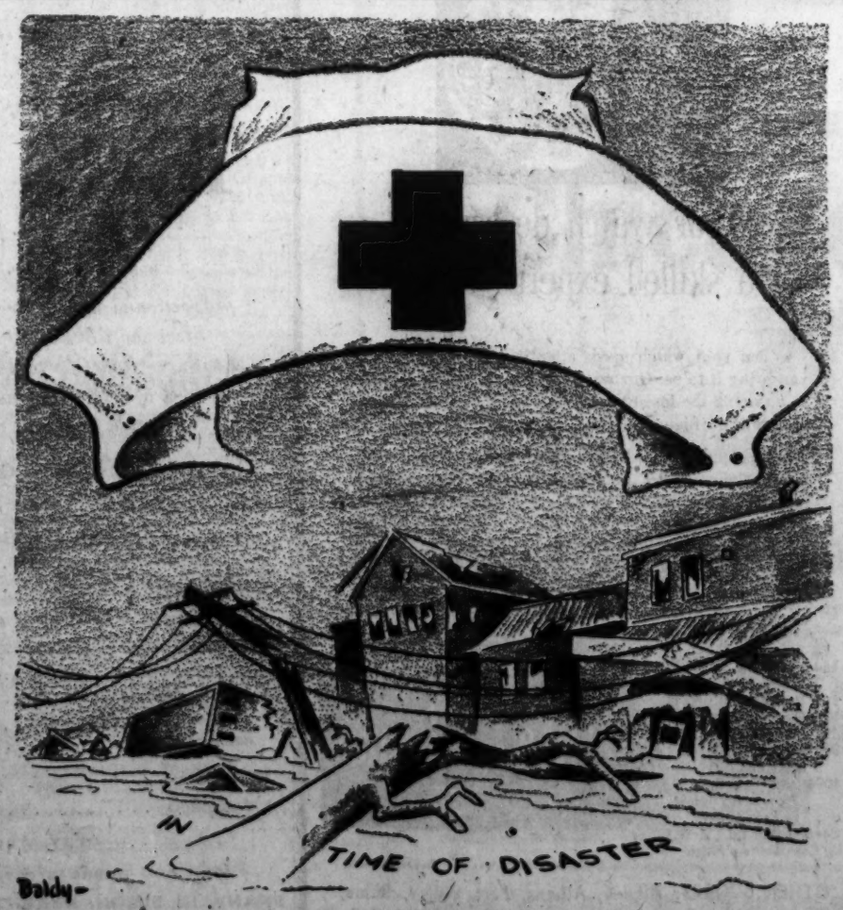

"A number of people have believed in me. I have done nothing wrong. I was in a position of trust to the president of the United

Red Cross Opens Drive For $588,300

The Greater Atlanta Red Cross Tuesday night blasted off on its 1957 campaign, which it hopes will rocket to well over half a million dollars.

This year's goal is $588,300.

Dr. Charles L. Allen, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, opened the '57 drive with a keynote address at a dinner Tuesday night at the Dinkler Plaza Hotel.

He praised the Red Cross as a "truly Christian organization," and pointed out that "without a spirit of neighborliness even a great city can lose its heart and become a cold thing."

Miss America of 1957, Miss Marian McKnight, was guest of honor at the dinner. She wore a $1,200 low-cut white dress.

She apologized prettily for her slight tardiness at the banquet and said it had been caused by an "encampment" of Georgia Tech boys outside her door. Apparently the youths had been searching for an interview with Miss America all day long.

Frank Ridley Jr., general chairman, said Atlantans are being asked to contribute an additional 10 per cent this year to meet "special disaster needs." He said cards sent out earlier, and now being returned with donations, show people are responding with

By EDWIN L. DALE JR.

WASHINGTON, March 5—A special advisory committee reported to President Eisenhower today that the nation's foreign aid and collective security programs "are proving their worth, and we should hold firmly to them."

The seven-man group of leading private citizens, appointed last year to look into the whole subject of foreign aid, said outlays abroad "need not exceed" their present levels.

Such levels, they said, "should under present conditions be adequate to provide a reasonable expectation of achievement of the goals of U. S. foreign policy without undue strain on the domestic economy."

While the group found "hope" that foreign aid spending may decline in time, it added: "The United States must resolve to stay the course and must abandon the false hope that collective security costs are temporary."

The group put the current annual level of foreign assistance at roughly $8,000,000,000. This included not only the regular military and economic aid program but also farm surplus sales for local currencies, spending of dollars by American military forces abroad and gross new loans by the Export-Import Bank.

The report contained nearly 50 recommendations for changes or shifts in emphasis in the program. But very few were specific and some appeared contradictory. There was no detailed analysis either of individual country programs or of the various categories of foreign aid.

FAIRLESS AT HELM

But the major conclusion was stated without qualification; that both military and economic aid programs have successfully countered Soviet expansion and should be continued.

The committee was headed by Benjamin F. Fairless, former chairman of the board of U.S. Steel Corp.

The major new specific recommendation in the report was that each Congress, rather than each session of Congress, vote a foreign aid program. This would mean each foreign aid bill would cover two years, making possible "more efficient planning and utilization of funds."

EQUIVOCATION

The report was equivocal on perhaps the most controversial current question about foreign aid: Whether the United States should undertake a broad new program of development aid to the underdeveloped countries, most of the largest of which are uncommitted in the cold war.

The report in several places favored aid for economic development and even said economic aid generally should be concentrated "more upon long-range development." But it said "higher priority should be given to those countries which have joined in the collective security program."

The report also was unclear on the question of grants versus loans in foreign aid. It showed that present foreign-aid spending is 96 per cent grants—largely because present aid is overwhelmingly military and military aid has customarily been on a grant basis.

WOULD LIMIT GRANTS

Yet the report, while urging continuation of the present general program, said assistance in the form of grants should be given only in "exceptional" cases.

But then it admitted that in certain "crucial areas," such as Korea, Formosa, Vietnam, Pakistan and Turkey, "general encouragement of private investment and trade will not suffice." These five countries and two or thre others in the same situation are now receiving nearly 80 per cent of all the economic aid being extended.

The report included in the total of foreign assistance nearly $1 billion in the form of farm surpluses sold for foreign currencies. But it advocated that this program be stopped.

MILITARY AID SHIFT

The more specific recommendations included:

1. Military aid should be included as a separate title in the Defense Department appropriation and only economic and technical assistance in the annual foreign aid bill. Furthermore, that portion of "defense support" aid which is clearly used to "support local military requirements" also should go in the defense budget.

The group estimated that about $500 million, or half, of the present "defense support"spending is clearly military. Thus all forms of military aid—which would go into the defense budget—came to nearly $4 billion and economic aid to only $700 million.

'INTEGRATE" ICA

2. The International Cooperation Administration, which administers economic aid, should be "integrated" into the State Department. It already operates under the authority of the secretary of state.

3. There should be "graeter discretionary power" for the President in spending foreign aid funds.

4. The number of individual projects in foreign countries should be reduced "markedly."

"TWO-CAR VISION"
Barbara Ward

U.S. 'Underdeveloped,' Briton Tells Educators

By RICHARD J. H. JOHNSTON

CHICAGO, March 5—Under the pressure generated in this country by the "two-car, ranch house vision" the nation has become almost an "underdeveloped area," Barbara Ward, author and foreign editor of The Economist, a London publication, tonight told the banquet meeting of the Twelfth National Conference on Higher Education.

If the future needs of higher education are to be supplied, Miss Ward told the more than 1,000 educators and education specialists assembled here for four days of meetings, Americans must be persuaded to grant them a priority.

LIMITED RESOURCES

"The present inflation," she declared, "is a warning that a limitation on resources exists, even in the wealthiest community and there is a continuous necessity to recognize priority and choice."

Miss Ward offered a conditional definition of America as an "underdeveloped area" in which a shortage of capital and resources necessary for desireable human need exists.

Demands that government spending should be curbed should be broadened, Miss Ward said, to apply to all spending.

"The measures now being used to check inflation may have the effect of only checking expenditures for such worthy things as education," she declared.

EDUCATION PRIORITY

?mfwyp cmfw cmf cmfwyp NN

If the future needs of higher education are to be met, the speaker added, Americans must be persuaded to give them priority.

The aspirations of Americans are "about to become vastly complicated" by an enormous multiplication of families, she said.

Miss Ward predicted that by 1980 the population of the United States would be "half again as big as it is now."

While American aspirations will remain the same, she declared, the number of people seeking them will be far greater. Miss Ward said she foresaw an expanding suburbia in which women and children would live in an increasingly "isolated, one-class community," while the husbands and fathers traveled ever-increasingly greater distances to and from their places of employment.

"TOMORROW'S NEEDS"

Miss Ward spoke on "Forethought for Tomorrow's Needs."

In a discussion session earlier in the day Philip E. Jacob, director of the College of Collateral Courses and Summer School of the University of Pennsylvania, declared that college does not influence students into thinking about the important values of life, but that it moulded them into the "college graduate type." His report was extracted from his newly published book, "Changing Values in College."

Jacob declared that the college graduate was more concerned with status, achievement and prestige in his relationship with the rest of society than in other basic concepts.

He said that the college graduate held high respect for sincerity, honesty and loyalty, but they were not inclined to censure those "who choose to depart from these canons."

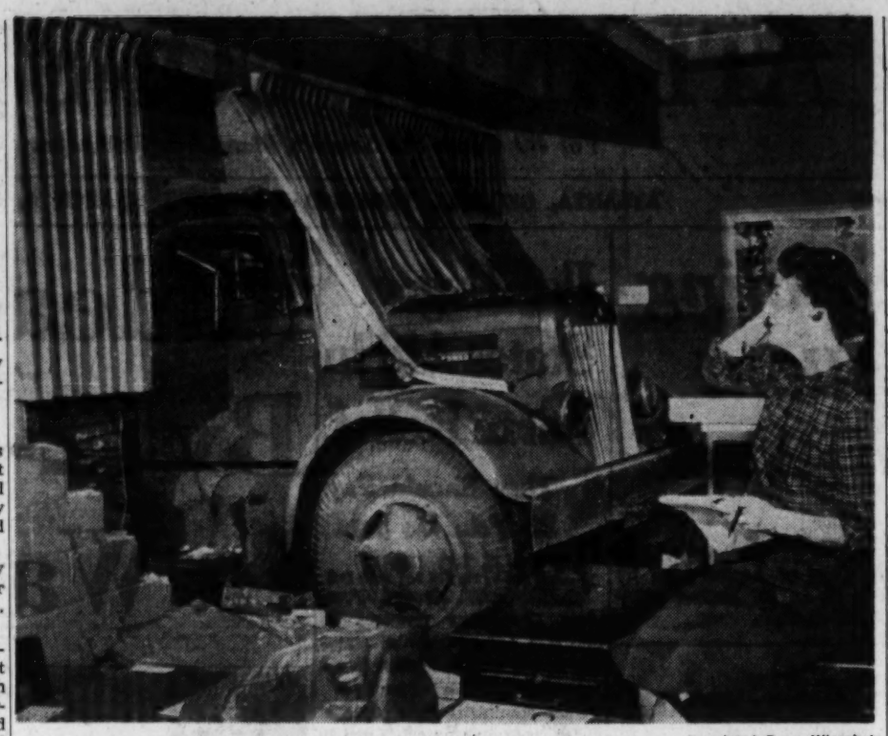

"For instance," he said, "standards are generally low in regard to academic honesty, systematic cheating being the custom, rather than the exception at many major institutions."

Still Slim as Ever? It Means a Long Life

CHICAGO, March 5 (AP). You'll probably live to a ripe old age if you weigh now what you did at 23 or 25, President Eisenhower's heart specialist said today.

Dr. Paul Dudley White, 70, who packs 130 pounds in a 5 feet 8½ inch frame, said excess fat in a person's later years will "probably get into the coronary arteries and cut down the heart's blood supply."

White, addressing the Chicago Medical Society's clinical conference, said he still can slip into his World War I Army uniform.

'NOT A JOKE'

Stork Club Gives Boot To Gleason

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP)—Comedian Jackie Gleason often portrays a television character known as "The Loudmouth." Last night he was barred from the Stork Club as a real-life loudmouth.

Gleason

"I thought it was just a big joke," the portly TV star said today. But apparently it wasn't.

A Stork Club spokesman said Gleason was "loud and boisterous." Proprietor Sherman Billingsley ruled that henceforth Gleason can do the loudmouth bit somewhere else.

Gleason showed up at the Stork with an unidentified blonde on his arm. As he recounted it:

"We went in and sat down, and somebody came up and told me I wasn't welcome. I thought it was a big joke. After a moment, though, I thought it didn't sound too much like a joke.

"I asked, "What goes?' They said no, it wasn't a joke, that I just wasn't welcome. I never saw Billingsley anywhere. I got up and looked around but I didn't see him. I said 'Are you kidding?'

"They said no. I said okay. Then I just left. There was no disturbance."

"I'm in good company," cracked the comedian, referring to such previous persona non grata at the Stork as Milton Berle, Frank Sinatra and Tallulah Bankhead.

U.S. Warns Egypt To Quit 'Dragging Its Feet' on Suez

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles called on Egypt today to stop "dragging its feet" and get the Suez Canal cleared and open—now that Israel is scheduling immediate withdrawal of its troops from Egyptian territory.

Dulles declared the strategic waterway could be opened in 10 days.

Speaking at a news conference, he said arrangements to get ships moving freely through Suez should "move forward very quickly" and result in solution of such problems as how to pay canal tolls. He expressed his own hope that the problem will be rapidly resolved as soon as Egypt is satisfied that Israeli withdrawal is actually taking place.

Dulles said his information on a timetable for Israel's withdrawal from the Gaza Strip and Gulf of Aqaba area is secret. But he said he believes the operation will be carried out on a "reasonably expeditious schedule."

He obviously is hoping for a relatively quiet period in the turbulent Middle East. He leaves tomorrow on a trip to Canberra, Australia, which will keep him out of Washington until March 17. He is going to Australia to attend a meeting of foreign ministers of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Dulles hinted that withholding by the United States of economic and financial aid to Egypt might be used as a lever to get the Suez Canal working again. He said the suspension of aid which took place with the outbreak of fighting last October would not be ended generally but only on a country-by-country basis as conditions return to normal.

Economic aid of various kinds was interrupted in the cases of Egypt, Syria, Jordan and Israel. Israel's decision of last weekend to withdraw its troops from territory it seized from Egypt in last fall's fighting was regarded by Dulles as a substantial step toward resoration of aid to that country.

Dulles' question and answer exchange with newsmen produced these other main points of information:

1. A ship flying the United States flag should be going through the Strait of Tiran into the Gulf of Aqaba fairly soon — but as a matter of normal operation of private shipping and not as a matter of special U. S. government plans.

2. The United Nations Emergency Force of about 5,600 officers and men now in Egypt should be adequate, in Dulles' view, to take over occupation of the Gaza Strip and the coast along the Strait of Tiran when Israeli troops go home.

Do-It-Yourself Voodoo Hexed By Post Office

WASHINGTON, March 5 (UP) The Post Office department disclosed today that it recently put the hex on the sale of do-it-yourself voodoo kits.

The department said Swangren's, a Lombard, Ill., firm, agreed to stop mailing out the kits when it raised the issue of possible fraud. Swangren's said it was selling the kits "strictly as a party gag."

Ads for the kits told prospective buyers:

"No more tiresome trips to the West Indies. You can now deliver good and bad hexes right from your home."

The kits, "direct from mysterious jungles," contained a straw doll, hand-carved voodoo needles, secret incantations and other witch doctor devices.

The price: $1.55 per kit.

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP)—A Portland, Ore., gambler testified today he and Portland's district attorney were parties to a "white-wash" of the Oregon State Liquor Commission when it was under investigation two years ago.

Mrs. Hardy

James B. Elkins told a special Senate committee that as a result no indictments were returned.

He added that there were actually two indictments but Dist. Atty. William M. Langley of Multnomah County (Portland) "stuck them in his pocket." The witness did not explain further.

It was the fifth day of public hearings in the Senate's investigation of alleged racketeering in labor unions and industry. So far the special committee, headed by Sen. McClellan (D-Ark), has concentrated on the activities of the Teamsters Union in Oregon and Washington State. Hearings dealing with other sections of the nation are scheduled later.

Another witness was Mrs. Helen Hardy, who testified that a man who was introduced to her as Langley's campaign manager assured her there would be no objection to operation of a "call house" in Portland.

She identified the man as Thomas Maloney. Other witnesses have testified Maloney was a Seattle gambler brought to Portland by teamsters officials in an alleged attempt to take over the city's rackets and vice operations.

Mrs. Hardy, now living in Miles City, Mont., swore that she never paid anyone for permission to do business in Portland.

In an affidavit introduced into evidence, Mrs. Hardy explained there is a difference between regular houses of prostitution and "call houses." The latter have a better type of clientele, she said, whereas the regular places "or 'walk-ins,' have to accept any one who comes to the door."

Mrs. Hardy said she and a Helen Smalley started operations in a "very lovely large house" in Portland July 5, 1955. Two girls lived in the house the first night, she related, and there were two customers, one of whom paid $400 and the other $200.

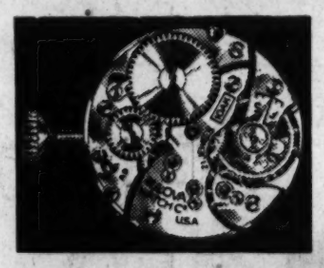

After five weeks the establishment was closed by Portland's police chief, James Purcell, Mrs. Hardy said. She added Purcell's objection "seemed to be operation in a nice neighborhood."

She testified operations were transferred to a warehouse district and there were no further objections.

Last Friday Howard Morgan, an Oregon public utility commissioner, testified that representatives of the Teamsters Union wanted to head off an investigation of the liquor commission by the state attorney general, Robert Y. Thornton.

Morgan told the senators that after Paul Patterson, then Oregon governor, refused to permit an inquiry at the state level Thornton turned the job over to Langley.

Morgan said he warned Thornton he would be "doublecrossed."

an increase of between 7½ per cent and 10 per cent.

Several Red Cross officials said if the first drive does not gather the full amount, a second will be held later. They noted, however, that Red Cross drives in Atlanta always have reached their goals.

Jack F. Glenn, Morton Weiss and Ridley are general chairmen of the drive which will continue through April 5.

Division chairmen are Ben S. Gilmer and Daniel L. Sinkler, Initial Gifts Division; Merrill C. Lofton and B. F. Sanders, Public Employes; Charles M. Watt and Orbie Bostwick, Business; Joe Vining, Marvin Briscoe and B. W. Mills Jr., Office Buildings; Clark Howell Jr. and J. C. Martin, General Canvass; W. P. Parish, County-Town, and Hugh C. Conley, Tri-Cities.

Injured Bicyclist, 71, Says He'll Pedal On

A 71-year-old bicycle enthusiast was down Tuesday, but he insisted he wasn't out.

Willie Otto Risse, who lives on Oak drive in Pennington Park, ended up at Grady Hospital following the second fall from his bike within two days. He suffered injuries to the head, shoulder and legs.

And will Willie give up bicycling?

"Heck no," he said with a wide grin. "I'd ride out to California if I had me a new bicycle."

"Guess I'll have to get a new one," he said. "Blamed spindle is loose on the one I've got. Guess that's what tripped me, the loose spindle and loose sand in the street."

Willie has been riding since he was 12. He made three or four trips uptown on the bicycle each week until after his 70th birthday. Since then he has cut the trips to once or twice a week.

"Guess I'm just getting old," he said. "That and the way people scoot around in cars. It's getting to where they'll run over you if you don't look out."

Willie once worked as a jeweler and later took up farming. Right now, he's retired.

Informed that he was being admitted to Grady for treatment, he complained:

Anti-Unionism Charge Called Nonsense by GE

Representatives of General Electric Corp. employes from six Southern states Tuesday called upon GE management to "deal honestly and fairly" with organized labor and to "abandon its poisonous anti-union campaigns."

James B. Carey, president of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (AFL-CIO) and vice president of the AFL-CIO, sharply criticized the company for "its attitude in labor relations" in an address to more than 50 union members at the Georgia Hotel.

James B. Carey

His remarks drew a statement from a GE spokesman here that "these are old and familiar charges by Mr. Carey which most folks have come to recognize as nonsense."

Earlier, in an interview, Carey, commenting on the present problem of racketeering in the teamsters union, said: "This crisis has generated almost entirely from within the labor movement. We must accept the responsibility. Our good name is at stake."

SMEARS ALL LABOR

He added, "Racketeering, no matter how limited, smears all labor with its taint. It places propaganda weapons in the hands of labor-baiting employers and enables them to make organization enormously more difficult."

He concluded, "We can be betrayed from within if we are not firm. We have some termites. Therefore, we must fumigate."

The Electrical Workers Union meeting assembled delegates from GE plants in Rome, Louisville, Ky.; Memphis, Tenn.; Anniston, Ala.; Tyler and Dallas, Tex., and Charlotte, N.C.

The group adopted an eight-point program which includes statements that "negotiations with the corporation, both nationally and locally, should work out campaigns to handle the problems of automation," that employment security in GE "needs urgent attention," and that "wage discrimination against workers in the South should be ended."

CONTRACT REOPENER

The GE statement said in part: "These are old and familiar charges by Mr. Carey which most folks have come to recognize as nonsense. They are obviously part of his campaign looking forward to the 1958 reopener in our current five-year contract.

"We are now in the second year of this five-year 'better living' program which at the time of its acceptance was hailed by both the company and the union as a milestone of progress in industry-union relations."

The statement concluded that a prospective 40 per cent increase in demand for new goods and services would require greater mechanization in the future but also would provide more jobs.

$14 Million In Road Bids Are Sought

The State Highway Board announced Tuesday the advertising for bids of the biggest single letting in several years.

The $14,500,000 letting will include 72 new projects. These include 53 Rural Roads Authority projects in 37 counties, two under the new federal superhighway program, four federal aid-primary, 10 federal aid-secondary and three state aid.

Bids will be opened at the Capitol on March 22, highway officials said.

The Rural Roads projects, will cost $3,779,189. The two interstate projects—both on the northeast leg of the Atlanta Expressway, will come to some $4,200,000.

A bridge to replace the old Campbellton Ferry across the Chattahoochee River near Fairburn is on the list.

Among the new projects are:

RURAL ROADS PROJECTS

FULTON—5.397 miles of grading and paving as follows: 1,929 miles on Riverside road; 3.468 miles on Holcomb Bridge road.

FEDERAL-AID INTERSTATE

DEKALB AND GWINNETT—Seven highway grade separation bridges on what is locally known as the New Atlanta-Gainesville four-lane highway. The bridges are located at Shallowford road; Mechanicsville road, Pleasantdale road, Indian Trail road, Goshen Springs road. A county road near Norcross and a county road north of Gosden Springs road.

GWINETT—7.395 miles of grading and paving, one grade separation structure and one double bridge, on what is locally known as the Atlanta, Ga.-Greenville, S.C. road, State Rte. 13 relocation. Beginning at the end of the present four-lane construction at the Duluth-Tucker road and extending north on relocation to the Suwanee-Lawrenceville road (Oldfield Church road), east of Suwanee.

New Observer Post

The Atlanta General Depot plans organization of a Ground Observer Corps post at 8 p.m. Wednesday, according to Lt. Col. J. W. Brandt, depot provost marshal. It will be the fourth post in the metropolitan area and the first formed at a military reservation here, Brandt said.

Griffin Gives Notice To the Bug-Bitten

An angry Gov. Griffin has given public notice to his appointees—all of them, including his brother, the ubiquitous Cheney—to quit running for office or resign.

This was a sharp rebuke to Revenue Commissioner T. V. "Red" Williams, who Saturday announced he seriously was considering resigning, as a revenue commissioner is required, to campaign for the governorship. The bug bit brother Cheney Griffin over the week-end and he, too, let the public, which really hadn't asked for any statement, know that he, too, might set out for a big chair on the hill.

Brother Cheney has turned up in a lot of places, including the floor of both houses of the Legislature during debate on important bills. Presumably he went there just to be better able to hear the debate. It is no surprise at all to find him acting like a candidate for lieutenant governor. He has shown as many signs of yearning for office as the moth for the flame.

The governor apparently means it. And so we propose three rousing cheers for him. "The word" is he will be a candidate for Congress himself, but it must be said he has revealed no such intent. He now is demanding all his appointees, including Brother Cheney and Friend Red, quit running for office or resign. He is consistent, since he said more than a year ago he wanted all his staff to attend to their jobs.

It is becoming a habit for many persons who hold one job in government, appointive or elective, to send up trial balloons and, if they do well, to run for office while holding on to their political job.

This sort of tactic is becoming less and less popular with the public. The governor senses this when he orders his own people to resign if they want to politic.

Again we say, "three rousing cheers."

'Caveat Emptor' Still Has Place in Business

There are few among us who cannot recall with chagrin the youthful and costly venture at the carnival or fair when we succumbed to the come-on of the barker who urged us to try to beat him at his game.

The painful memory is evoked by the Fulton County Grand Jury presentment concerning "sidewalk pulling" of customers and other high-pressure, deceptive tactics that lead the public into contracts which in turn lead to garnishments.

The jury report cites these methods as a violation of good business ethics and practices. The Better Business Bureau deplores such pressure tactics.

Since the practices are not direct violations of the law, the burden is on the conscience of the merchant and the caution of the customer.

Revival of Isolationism Is a Disturbing Trend

Informed columnists and reporters in Washington are calling attention to a trend to isolationism in the U.S. Congress that is becoming alarming. If it is carried too far, isolation could become just that—the United States isolated in an otherwise Communist world.

The revival of the "Fortress America" concept, for instance, is made to order for the Kremlin. It should be noted that Khrushchev himself heartily has endorsed the idea.

It is tempting to Americans to fall back into their old ways, to say that what goes on in the rest of the world is no concern of theirs. The disasters brought on in the past by this attitude should be so well known that all of us would shudder at the idea.

United States security and our standard of living today depend upon this country retaining as many friends as possible in the world. While it is not too widely publicized, we have become a "have not" nation. Having used up our own resources in an example of profligate waste unparalleled in history, today we must import from other countries about half the raw materials used in our industry.

By the same token, the underdeveloped countries from which we buy raw materials need to sell to us and to buy the products of our factories. Foreign trade means the difference between today's prosperity and depression.

Those who oppose foreign aid and efforts to build up the living standards of underdeveloped countries forget that the end result means an expanded market for American products far outweighing the possible competition for markets.

Each time a country falls into the Soviet orbit, a market and a source of raw materials for American industry disappears. This type of warfare aimed at our economic system is why the Russians so devoutly hope for a return to isolationism in the United States. If it comes about, communism will be the big winner and this country's future will be in grave danger.

We cannot isolate ourselves in today's world. If we try, the end result will be utter disaster.

Streets Aren't Intended For Parking Vehicles

Downtown street parking is getting considerable attention at the Southern conference of the American Transit Association in Atlanta.

While realizing that a little self-interest is involved in the delegates' theme that downtown streets should be used to move vehicles and not to park automobiles, the transit people are right. Atlanta has not yet learned that lesson and until it does the traffic situation is going to become worse.

The downtown business area feels the effect increasingly as each year more and more automobiles try to crowd downtown. It has affected the development of public transit, magnifying the problem the latter seeks to correct.

While Atlanta officials timorously decide to ban on-street parking at an expressway construction site, no attempt yet has been made to get at the heart of the problem by banning it altogether in the downtown area. Some day the decision will have to be made. The sooner the better.

Fulton County Farmers Deserve Their Honors

Fulton County's leading cotton and corn farmers richly deserve the recognition that will be accorded them at a dinner meeting Friday night.

Agriculture plays an important role in Fulton County's economy. It is a factor Georgians sometimes overlook when contemplating the rapid growth and industrialization of the Atlanta area.

There are more than 2,000 farms in Fulton. Farm lands account for nearly 50 per cent of the total acreage in the county.

The farmers and 4-H members being honored Friday night gave a good account of themselves last year in the county's corn and cotton contests.

They include Claude Ingraham, whose cotton yield was the highest per acre in the state. Fourteen participants in Fulton cotton demonstrations averaged 1,949 pounds of seed cotton per acre. The top 10 in the corn contest produced an average of 116.5 bushels per acre.

Industry is great but so is agriculture. Fulton County is fortunate to have both.

Beck Should Not Speak For American Labor

Secretary of Labor Mitchell has acted properly in refusing to appoint Teamsters Union President Dave Beck as a delegate to the International Labor Organization meeting in Hamburg.

In view of recent Senate committee disclosures about some unsavory conditions within the union, to have Beck appointed as a representative of American labor would be unthinkable. At the same time, Beck himself thus far has dodged Senate investigators.

Obviously, the Teamsters' top leadership has a lot to answer for. Things uncovered to date could not have gone on without their knowing something of it. The union needs a thorough house cleaning and the fact that it has been infiltrated by racketeers and hoodlums is giving all labor pause to think.

As head of the union, Beck cannot escape responsibility. To have permitted him to represent American labor at an international meeting would have been a tragic mistake.

Lindale Leads the State In Red Cross Response

Allow us to paraphrase the slogan of a topflight aircraft maker and say today: Look to Lindale for leadership.

Lindale, textile community in Floyd County, has reached its 1957 Red Cross fund quota.

Two years in a row now, the Lindale Red Cross chapter has been first in the Southeast to reach its goal.

Never in the 39 years of its existence has the chapter failed to carry its share of the Red Cross load.

The Constitution commends the Lindale chapter's leaders for the get-up-and-go that has made this enviable record possible. The suggestion to other chapters is obvious—go thou and do likewise.

Little Filipino Feels Pull of the Islands

WASHINGTON—Late in the afternoon the cold drizzle began to fall and the wet, black trees in the great parks turned silvery with ice. The little Filipino at the wheel of the cab felt the wheels slide under him and shook his head. "Very bad, sir," he said. "Tonight is very bad. On the streets ice, and all the people wanting cabs.

"It is cold for an old man, in the cab. When the people open the door to get in the cold wind comes in. The cold gets in the bones. It makes the hands numb on the wheel, sir, and the cab is not driven with precision. There will be many accidents tonight."

Hunched over the wheel he looked like a little gnome, wrinkled and dry and brown as an old buckeye carried long in the pocket. In the hooting traffic, the cold rain hissing on the cab roof, we passed the Arboretum. Inside, the lights had been turned on and faintly through the dusty glassdomes could be seen the feathery tops of tall palm trees.

"It makes me homesick sometimes, to see the palm trees," he said. "They are the trees of my home, my islands, where I came from so long ago."

"Luzon," I said. "Baguio?"

He shook his head. "I am Visayan," he said. "I remember the trees, the jungles, the warm air and the bright birds. I miss them sometimes when it is cold."

"Maybe you'll go back," I said. "Some day maybe you'll see the jungles again."

"No," he said. "As a younger man I kept telling myself, 'I will go.' Now I am too old. I will die here. It is well. Sometimes I read in the papers what may happen. The Russians may bring the bomb here and we will all be killed. I think I will go home, to my little village. No Russians will come there. No bombs will fall. I speak this to my son. He is in the Air Force. He is a fine mechanic with the jet planes. He is a sergeant. I tell him I am thinking of going home for I am afraid.

" 'Will the Russians come?' I ask him. 'Will the bomb destroy us all?'

"He laughs at me. He is a big man, and brave. His mother is a German. He laughs when I speak this way.

" 'Pop,' he says, 'you drive your cab. Do not worry. Do not sell Uncle Sam short. He has plenty of muscle. Nobody can hurt Uncle Sam.'

"He makes me feel ashamed, sir, having fear. And now I know I will never go home. I will stay here and drive my cab, even in the cold, until I die. I cannot let my son know that now I am old, I am homesick and afraid."

Atlanta Dog Owners Criticized for Letting Their Pets Roam the Streets Without Leash

Atlanta—It is interesting to me to see the letters printed concerning "reckless motorists" who run down and kill man's best friend, the companion of innocent children, the dog. These letters are from within the city limits of Atlanta.

What I would like to know is: How can a dog who is (1) on a leash or (2) in a pen, be run down by any motorist? That is the law in Atlanta.

If the owners of the dogs allow their pets to run free, then they are no longer innocent.

These must be the same parents who allow their children to play unrestricted in the streets. I submit the opinion that it is impossible for any motorist who is moving at all to stop when a child or a dog runs out under the wheels of his car.

I see one solution. Pass a law that any moving vehicle is prohibited within the city limits.

CONCERNED.

'U.S. Farmer at Bottom Of the Economic Heap'

Social Circle — I got quite a kick out of Harold Martin's $1.28 handkerchief as well as his assumption that cotton must be selling for $6 per pound. He said he was thinking about trading his typewriter for a mule to start turning some red clay back in Banks County.

Why, Harold, didn't you know the mule went out with the "quill?" You do need a change. You have been cooped up with your typewriter too long now.

There are a lot of farmers who wish cotton was $6 a pound, too. Even so, the amount of cotton in your $1.28 handkerchief would be so small that the farmers share could be counted on one hand and recorded in cents.

Did you not know that the farmer has been on the very bottom of the economic heap for the last four years?

I have a suggestion. Weigh your $1.28 handkerchief, find out the price of cotton and do some third-grade arithmetic. Then I would like to find out who got the most—the farmer or the retailer who sold you the handkerchief. Then, find out how much the other people in between you and the farmer received. You might even trade your typewriter for a delivery truck.

He Speaks in Behalf Of Fluoridated Water

Atlanta—E. J. Jones wrote you all a letter the other day saying he had store-bought teeth. He asked why he should be made to drink fluoridated water and help pay for Little Junior's fluoridated water.

If Mr. Jones had drunk fluoridated water when he was Little Junior's age, perhaps he wouldn't have had to go to the store to buy his teeth. JUSTIN CASE.

He Questions Wisdom Of Federal School Aid

Atlanta — Ralph McGill's column of Feb. 24 should be pondered well. That we have "oxcart school districts," none can deny; but that federal aid is a necessity is certainly debatable.

The hard truth seems to be that so much of our tax money goes to maintain oxcart-age state, county and city governments there isn't enough left for an efficient school system.

Georgia could easily stand on its own feet—if its citizens wanted it to—but it is so much easier not to think for ourselves. So we accept the politicians' explanation that our troubles are caused by the times and what we need is more federal money.

How much more such aid can we accept before going bankrupt or before we become spineless jellyfish doing only what some federal bureaucrat tells us to do?

ROBERT S. CANNON.

Albert Riley

Georgia Delegation Splits on Aid Issue

WASHINGTON—A foreign policy split in the Georgia congressional delegation was indicated last week when Sens. Richard B. Russell and Herman Talmadge waged a vigorous if unsuccessful fight against economic and military aid in the Middle East Doctrine. The Georgia members of the House had voted eight to two, to give President Eisenhower virtually all the power he had asked for to combat Communist penetration in the Mideast.

Since Russell's views were fairly well known at that time, this meant that all but two Georgians in the House preferred to follow the advice and leadership of Speaker Sam Rayburn and their own Rep. Carl Vinson, rather than that of their senior senator.

Rayburn and Vinson have been around Capitol Hill longer than anyone else — through two world wars and the Korean conflict. When they supported the President's hand, all of the Georgians in the House went along except Reps. James C. Davis and Jack Flynt.

Incidentally, some newsmen here have tried to make it appear that Russell's all-out assault on foreign aid in the Middle East debate marked an about-face for the Georgia senator.

But this is not quite accurate. Although supporting military spending abroad, Russell has been voting against economic aid for some time.

After World War II, the Georgian supported the Marshall Plan and Point Four, a program he still favors. But he became disillusioned.

"I came to the conclusion three or four years ago," Russell told the Senate, "that if Congress did not start tapering off and reduce our foreign aid program, we were going to create chaotic conditions that would change our form of government and bring us to economic disaster."

Both Russell and Talmadge delivered forceful arguments against foreign spending. Veteran Capitol observers continue to be shocked pleasantly at the way Talmadge is handling himself in the Senate of the United States.

Northerners had accepted an erroneous notion that Talmadge was a stereotyped image of a Bilbo-type demagogue cut after the pattern of his controversial father, the late "Ole Gene" Talmadge.

Herman's quiet, dignified approach to his job in the Senate and to the civil rights issue surprised them. They were even more impressed when Talmadge not only chose the Middle East Doctrine as the subject for his maiden speech, but delivered an extremely able, carefully prepared address without any of the flourishes of old-time Southern oratory.

Smart enough to make his maiden speech on some other topic than civil rights, Talmadge did such a good job of it that he assured himself of an attentive audience when he does speak out on civil rights in the Senate.

Disease Was Brand New

When I called the other day on Ella Cooper Garner, Toccoa's lady of press, radio and greetings to newcomers, Mrs. G. was still pondering a conversation with a maid - about - town. Asked where she had been keeping herself for so long, the maid said, "Well, Mis' G., I jest tell you. I been sufferin' so with the apparatus that I jest can't get out."

Mrs. G. asked for a retake.

She got it the same way the second time.

"From the apparatus, Mis' G., from the apparatus."

Mrs. G. thinks maybe the affliction was the arthritis.

Which reminds me of a story that has drifted down from up country. This fellow came to the office looking wan and pale. Friends asked what was the matter.

He said, "We've had Ferguson's disease. The whole family's had it."

"Ferguson's disease?" said the whole office force. "We've never heard of it. What's it like?"

"About like the flu," said the fellow who had had it. "We caught it from the Fergusons. They live next door."

IN THE MAIL: James R. Rigby of 5020 Hildon Rd., Chamblee, writes: "As I shaved the other morning, I mused, not without a slight flavor of sour grapes, on the side-whiskers which threatened for a while to split the Pentagon asunder and whose facsimiles fur up so much of the local scene these days. It occurred to me they might be called ego beavers."

James R. refers of course to Elvis's hirsute adornment.

And it is historical to note those fringes in front of the ears were named for an Army man. A general he was, no less. Gen. Ambrose E. Burnside, he who lost Second Bull Run.

The fringes became first burnsides, then someone made a switch to sideburns.

Answers Explored To Ease Suffering

One of the great things about Jesus was that He spent more time reading people than He did books. His sermons came out of real life. He saw a shepherd looking for a lost sheep, a merchant buying pearls, a tenant farmer plowing in the field, a lily growing by the wayside, a sparrow falling to the earth. He used these scenes from daily life to show the eternal truths of God.

The other week I was in Miami for a series of services. One night I was walking down one of the brightly lighted streets. Thousands of people were there on vacation seeking a good time. I passed a Western Union office. It was deserted except for the clerk and one lady. She had a telegram in her hand and was crying her heart out. In a land of soft moonbeams and sea breezes, hearts can still be broken.

I stood there a few moments and walked on but I kept thinking about her. Had she been physically ill, she could have gone to a physician and he would have helped her. Suppose she had seen me and said, "You are a minister. My heart is broken. Tell me how to dry my tears."

Many have said that to me. Whenever I speak about sorrows and heartaches in the paper or on the radio, my mail greatly increases and the telephone rings more often. Many times a preacher is driven to his knees, seeking a wisdom greater than his own.

Had that lady in Miami spoken to me, I might have said, "Suffering is caused by sin. You have not been living right and now God is punishing you. You should get on your knees and repent." I have said that to some and I have seen the forgiveness of God take away the pain and bring back a song into a heart. But many times that is not the answer.

I might have said to her, "Your suffering is just in your mind. Things aren't as bad as they seem. Get your mind on something else. Get out and walk on the beach, look at the moon, listen to the gentle splashing of the waves." Sometimes that is the answer. We brood over some slight hurt until it seems much worse than it really is.

But that is not always the answer. Pain can be very real. Someone wrote a little poem: "There was a faith-healer of Deal — Who said, 'although pain isn't real — When I sit on a pin— And it punctures my skin—I dislike what I fancy I feel.' "

I might have told that lady, "Suffering is part of the business of living and you will just have to brace yourself and take it." A little girl once fell down on the sidewalk and skinned her knee. She said to her mother, "Wouldn't it be good if the whole world were cushioned?" But the world isn't cushioned and sometimes we can fall down and get hurt.

I might have said to that lady, "Suffering is good for you. Just as the cold north winds drive the roots of the oak tree deeper into the ground, so can your troubles strengthen your soul and develop your life."

While there is truth in each of these answers, there are better things to say which I will mention tomorrow.

Once Lively Senate Succumbs to Inertia

WASHINGTON—When the majority leader of the august United States Senate, who happens now to be a Democrat, Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, has to stand up in a sparsely attended session and like the master of a boys' school admonish his colleagues to come and attend school sessions in the historic Senate chamber . . . Well, when that happens it suggests that something has happened to the Senate.

Whether it is something fundamental which, years hence, the historians will analyze as an important transition in the democratic process this daily recorder will not attempt to say. What he can say, however, is that what used to be a lively and springy body has become, except for occasional drama of brief duration, dull, humdrum and colorless.

Professor Johnson's lecture to his pupils was the more pointed since the business for which he was trying to drum up a crowd for debate and action was certainly the most important issue to come before the Senate this session and perhaps the most important for a long time. Namely, the resolution setting out what has come to be designated the "Eisenhower Doctrine for the Middle East."

Time was when no such reprimand was necessary, not even for a far less vital issue. You could get a full house, floor and galleries, and be sure generally of full-flavored oratory, wise, urbane, witty, or just plain demagogic for a change of pace. There was a time when a senator would not dare show his face shoved into a manuscript.

Standing at his place in the first row, the tall, thin-faced Texas leader of our Senate today could see his complaint exemplified in the barren scene about him, with very few senators present despite the fact there had just been a quorum call to try to round up the missing. He gave words to his dilemma when he said he would continue to order quorum calls "to get senators to come to the floor to speak and to get senators to listen to senators who care to speak."

To one who has watched this body so long and has come to love it, something is missing. This has not happened suddenly. It has come about over a period of years.

In casting about for reasons, you are aware right off of a basic one. This is the tremendous growth of government during the busy and furious New Deal and the second World War so that its intimate contact with the lives of so many people has led to so many more requests and inquiries from constituents to senators. This has piled up more and more work upon them and their staffs so there's little time left for attendance in the Senate.

But there is another reason for the dullness of proceedings and for that Sen. Johnson, the majority leader, must be assigned some responsibility. A man with a passion for moderation, he tries to settle everything possible off the floor and leave Senate sessions as far as possible to ratification of privately agreed upon solutions.

The senator swells with pride when his colleagues praise him for "statesmanship," which seems to be their word for avoidance of conflicts. It may be "statesmanship," but it can be awfully dull.

Green Thumb Here Does Winter Miracle

By MARJORY RUTHERFORD

HYACINTHS AND JONQUILS—sure. But grapefruit blossoms? Mrs. William H. Bradbury is surprised at her own green thumb.

Spring is bustin' out all over at 2550 Sheridan Way, where Mrs. Bradbury enjoys her hobby of gardening. The Atlanta homemaker likes grapefruit for breakfast, and she discovered that citrus seeds that had escaped her garbage container were making little green shoots outside the kitchen door.

"Just for fun and because they were green and pretty," she transplanted a few in an indoor planter. The other morning she found white blossoms—"sweet-smelling, very much like Florida orange blossoms"—on the grapefruit plants in her livingroom. Photographer Ryan Sanders shows a little neighbor, 4-year-old

Mary Noel Johnson, sniffing the fragrant blossoms. "If a baby grapefruit grows," Mary Noel reported earnestly, "Mrs. Bradbury says I can eat it all by myself."

THE BETTER HEALTH COUNCIL of Georgia has compiled some causes of death of famous—and infamous—folk that make interesting reading.

For example:

George Washington succumbed to "strep" throat. Charlemagne was a victim of pneumonia, still a winter health hazard. Gen. Walter Reed had appendicitis before the advent of antibiotics, and Nancy Hanks Lincoln died of phlebitis.

Cleopatra was bitten by an adder; Napoleon had cancer, and Rudolph Valentino's peptic ulcer caused his demise.

Tschaikovsky succumbed to cholera; Beethoven to cirrhosis of the liver; Chopin to tuberculosis, and Mozart to Bright's disease.

Gen. William Sherman had asthma; movie star Jean Harlow was a victim of acute nephritis. Alexander the Great had epilepsy, Queen Ann, smallpox, and Buddha died of a heart block.

More Air Collisions Feared

Plane collisions will increase in the near future, the director of U.S. Air Force Flight Safety Research predicted Monday in Atlanta.

Gen. Joseph (Smokey) Caldera said the prediction was "a personal opinion." He pointed out, however, that commercial airlines are now turning to high-speed jets, and that so far no airborne anticollision device has been invented.

"The airlanes are already crowded," he said. "A pilot in a high-speed jet may see another plane approaching on a near-collision course. Before he can react the other plane is already past. Or it has hit him."

Caldera said ground-based air traffic control will not be adequate. He pointed out this would necessitate a network of overlapping radar stations for the entire United States.

Nor is it likely an airborne warning device will appear soon. The Air Force has been working on specifications for such a device for over two years, but has not yet decided what such a device should do, he said.

FROM THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT...

"When you join the Red Cross I know you feel, as I do, a sense of personal enrichment and satisfaction."

"As President of the United States, with responsibility for the welfare of the nation, I realize firsthand the wisdom of the Congress that chose to have the Red Cross serve fellow Americans in their times of suffering and need.

"The trust which our government placed in the Red Cross recognized the fact that we, the people, are the Red Cross. All of us, through our contributions, nourish it and give it life. It depends upon us just as we depend upon it when fire, flood, hurricane or any other disaster strikes. It is ready with supplies when blood is needed ... Its friendly help to our Armed Forces extends around the world ... And wherever there is human misery and need, the Red Cross is on the job ... when it counts ... where it counts. Through your contributions to the Red Cross you share with me, and all Americans, the privilege of giving hope and help to those who need it."

Do-It-Yourself Sewer A Hapeville Dilemma

By DON BAIRD

L. D. Jones, of the protracted "Jones vs. Hapeville case," startled city council Tuesday night by announcing he had already tapped onto a sewer which runs in front of his home on Barton drive.

Jones is the 31-year-old grocery clerk who refused to deed over necessary frontage for paving.

The city contended he lost thereby the right to tap onto the new sewer.

In bringing his story to the council, Jones indicated he had already paid "about $3" tapping-on expenses"—after receiving verbal consent from a property owner across the street, on whose land the connection was made.

MAYOR VETOES

After Jones had voiced apparent satisfaction over the fact that he now has sewerage facilities, a motion by Councilman Adair McCord that the problem be "considered settled" was passed, 3-2. But, Mayor Eugene C. Dixon vetoed the measure, saying that the other residents of the short dead-end street were "due consideration."

Dixon said a group of people on the south side of the street (the side Jones lives on) appeared before council July 3 and agreed to give the city the necessary property in order to get paving and sewerage.

Residents were asked to deed over 10 to 20 yards of land each in order to meet the necessary paving specification of 40 feet. They also were required to pay a frontage assessment fee of $200 for paving costs. Jones' contention was that if he was giving the city the land, the city should pay for the paving.

"NO SEWER"

Earlier, at the time the sewer was laid, Jones said he paid $146 to tap onto the six-inch sewer and to help defray costs of laying the sewer. But, when Jones refused to give his land, the city said "no sewer."

Then Jones, in a dramatic gesture that brought considerable publicity to the 10-foot-wide street, erected a sign in his front yard denouncing the city.

Jones told the council Tuesday night that it doesn't "make any difference now if the street is paved or not."

He was told that paving of the street, which runs off North avenue to a dead end at the South Expressway, was not included in the budget for this year.

Tossed Atlantan in River, Seaman Says in Alabama

A 20-year-old merchant seaman Tuesday told police in Anniston, Ala., that he slugged a man in Atlanta two weeks ago and dumped the body in the Chattahoochee River, authorities here were informed.

Detective Capt. J. L. Moseley said the suspect, Charles Wilburn Hill of Brooklyn, N.Y., was held at Anniston on burglary charges and was wanted in Atlanta on similar charges.

Hill was quoted as saying a tall, slender man, approximately 30 years of age, spotted him slipping from an automobile agency at 3130 Roswell Rd., NW, on the night of Feb. 20, that he slugged the man with a wrench and placed him in the back seat of the car.

On the way out of Atlanta, Hill was quoted, he stopped the car at the Bankhead highway bridge and tossed the body over the bridge railing.

Moseley said an auto reported stolen in the Feb. 20 burglary of the Roswell road firm was recovered in Anniston following the arrest of Hill. He added Anniston authorities also recovered an oil company credit card reported stolen in a burglary at 2110 Peachtree Rd.

However, Moseley said a search of missing persons files here failed to reveal a report on a man answering the description of the person Hill said he threw into the river.

Moseley added detectives here were investigating the case and said it was possible they would go to Anniston and question Hill.

C. F. Pate, chief of detectives in Anniston, said Hill told of stealing nine automobiles in Atlanta in addition to the one taken in the burglary here.

Hill escaped from the Anniston jail Sunday, officers said, but was picked up again Monday by Anniston police.

Guitar Artist Segovia Here For Concert

Andres Segovia, whose virtuosity has restored the guitar to a place of respect as a concert instrument, arrived in Atlanta by plane from Tulsa Tuesday night.

Andres Segovia

The internationally famed guitarist, who will present the concluding program of 1956-57 Music Club series at 8:30 p.m. Friday in the Woman's Club auditorium, said he came early to renew acquaintance with Harry Donohue, manager of the Atlantan Hotel.

"I have known him for many years," Segovia said. "While I have not played in Atlanta since before World War II, I have met my friend many times in other parts of the world, such as Jamaica, Brazil and Berlin."

Asked his opinion of modern music, he said:

"If the modern music displays great talent on the part of the composer, I like it. The art of music has to progress with the years, and express the soul of each epoch. However, if, to me, the music indicates no composing talent, then I don't care for it."

Bullets From Car Miss Watchman at Koinonia

A watchman guarding fences at controversial Koinonia Farms near Americus reported Tuesday that an unidentified man in an automobile opened fire on him in the early morning hours.

Two bullets struck a portable electric light the watchman, John Eustice, was carrying, spraying lead fragments on his hand. Two others went through the rear-view mirror of an automobile by which he was standing.

Norman Long, president of Koinonia, explained that the watchman was put on guard after a fence alongside the road had been cut on at least two occasions and a gate lifted from its hinges on another.

Eustice said he went up to investigate when a car stopped near a cut in the fence about 1:30 a.m. Two shots were fired, he reported, when he turned his light on the machine in an effort to get its license number.

The tag, he added, was bent down and could not be read.

Koinonia is a 1,100-acre farm operated on a biracial, communal basis. It was established 15 years ago as an interdenominational religious project.

Controversy has raged about the undertaking and only recently spokesmen of the Ku Klux Klan undertook to engineer the sale of the valuable property to someone else. Koinonia officials rejected the Klan proposal.

Previously, a roadside market operated by the farm was twice blasted with dynamite, a tenant house burned and shots were fired into buildings.

Testimonial at Tech Praises Paul Weber

A testimonial praising the work done by Dr. Paul Weber, acting president of Georgia Tech., is circulating among Tech faculty members.

Dean Andrew J. Walker, head of the English department, described the document as one "recognizing the good job a man has done and the high regard in which he is held by his fellows." He said he had signed it, but does not know who started it in its round.

Another professor, who asked his name be withheld, said he thinks the document might be presented to the University System Board of Regents.

The regents have not decided on a successaor to Tech president Dr. Blake R. Van Leer, who died in January 1956.

Acid Is Thrown In Texas Bribe Witness' Eyes

CONROE, Tex., March 5 (AP)—Dr. R. E. McMeans Jr., a chiropractor who testified before a legislative committee investigating bribery charges against State Rep. James E. Cox, Conroe, said an unidentified person threw acid in his face tonight.

Police Chief Eddie Ftethan said McMeans gave this account:

McMeans was preparing to leave his clinic about 7:30 p.m. when the buzzer of the back door sounded.

He opened the door and an unidentified man tossed the contents of a bottle in his face.

McMeans said the liquid burned and he ran to a sink and put his face in running water.

A doctor said the liquid burned McMeans on the face and one eyeball.

Cox was indicted on a charge of agreeing to accept $5,000 to kill a bill that would ban the practice of naturopathic medicine in Texas. Earlier today Gov. Price Daniel accepted the resignation of the legislator, who has denied the charge.

States and I never betrayed that trust."

Caudle, who has been practicing law in his home town of Wadesboro, N.C., made an impassioned statement before he was sentenced. His wife, who has been his constant companion during the long cour proceedings, was in the courtroom.

Caudle reminded the court that the tax evader he was accused of conspiring to help was an epileptic.

"You may do what you please, but I would not take the life of someone else just by a stroke of the pen," Caudle concluded.

Judge Nordbye of Minneapolis, assigned to the case after Judge Hulen's death, said he was satisfied that the trial evidence was sufficient for conviction.

"These men are guilty of a grave and serious breach of the public trust," the court said.

Connelly and Cauldle were convicted by the federal jury of trying to sidetrack prosecution of Irvin Sachs, St. Louis shoe distributor who subsequently paid a $40,000 fine but did not go to prison.

The government said both defendants were given oil royalties by Harry I. Schwimmer, an attorney for Sachs, and that these were bought with Sachs' money.

7 Leap Out To Safety as Blimp Burns

NORFOLK, Va., March 5 (AP)—Seven crewmen leaped to safety tonight as a flash fire destroyed a Navy blimp that had touched down on the runway at Weeksville Naval Air Station near Elizabeth City, N.C.

The blimp, attached to ZP1 Squadron at Weeksville, drifted sideways with the wind and came to rest a blazing inferno against a "nest" of landing docks. Some 300 square feet of siding was seared. No one was reported injured.

The 5th Naval District office here reported the pilot of the blimp was Lt. Cmdr. Harry H. Ray, USNR. He and two other officers and four enlisted men escaped to the ground unharmed as the flames spread from a ruptured gas tank beneath the gondola. The big craft was on the ground at the time.

The incident occurred at 6:12 p.m. as the airship was making touch-and-go landings on the runway. A single wheel landing gear under the gondola is believed to have collapsed upon contact, rupturing the gas tank.

The aviation gasoline was believed to have been ignited either by friction of the collapsing undercarriage or by the two motors.

The fire spread rapidly to the envelop but the helium in the lighter than air blimp did not burn, nor was there an explosion.

Sunday Movies Despite Canceling of Permit Protested by Throng in Decatur City Hall

By HAROLD RHODEN

Representatives of churches and civic clubs with membership totaling approximately 12,500 swamped the Decatur city hall Tuesday night to find out why Sunday movies had been allowed the past two weeks despite rescinding of a special permit.

City Manager John D. Powell told the crowd the city is trying to settle the matter "amicably within a few days." He was aware of his right to take legal action but had not done so to avoid adverse publicity and a long court fight, the manager told the group.

Mayor James F. Redding told the group that a public hearing had been requested by theater owner Fred G. Storey at the next regular meeting of the City Commission, March 19. Storey offered use of his theater but the city did not accept.

"We are very much surprised and disappointed and rather thoroughly disgusted that picture shows have been run in defiance of an order by this body," Dr. Dick Hall Jr., pastor of the First Baptist Church of Decatur, told the commission.

He was referring to the Feb. 19 order rescinding a permit for Sunday movies which had been granted by the city at a December meeting.

"We still stand by our commissioners—still believe that this is a city of law and order and respect our commission and resent their being made monkeys of by someone ignoring an order of this commission," Dr. Hall continued.

Redding said the only way the city could prosecute for operating without a permit was to issue a warrant for the owner to appear in Recorder's Court and then bind the case over to state courts—a long process full of adverse publicity.

Storey told the city in a letter after he had been notified he was operating without a permit that it would mean large financial loss to close so suddenly.

Mrs. Thomas J. Gordon, president of the Decatur Better Films Committee, refuted this argument and said a theater official had addressed the committee earlier in the year and said movie schedules were made up not more than two weeks in advance.

In other action the commission, by a 3-2 vote, authorized Powell to purchase 260 parking meters to replace some of those now in use. Powell said some of them had been used for 10 years. The penny and nickel rates will remain in effect, Powell said. The body accepted appointment of Robert L. Hale Sr. as civil defense director for the city.

WARNING
—to thousands who take the drug containing Panithal* for relief of pains due to—
Arthritis and Rheumatism

Many sufferers who have experienced blessed, longer relief from pains of Arthritis and Rheumatism (far beyond their expectations) asked whether the New IMDRIN . . . now containing the powerful, safe, analgesic Panithal* . . . is the long-sought dramatic "cure."

The answer is: No product known to science including the highly-publicized and costly wonder drugs ACTH and Cortisone, is recognized by the Medical Profession as a cure!

However, evidence is overwhelming to support these facts about the safe, proven New IMDRIN with Panithal*: No drug (safe enough so no prescription is needed) relieves recurring pain of Arthritis and Rheumatism faster or longer than New IMDRIN . . . yet costs only pennies per tablet!

So that the proof is at our risk—the very first 72-tablet bottle of New IMDRIN must satisfy or your money back, even though each case is different. Don't miss the chance that New IMDRIN with Panithal* may help control recurring pains of Arthritis and Rheumatism. See your Druggist about New IMDRIN today. For extreme pains, consult your Physician.

Ike Doctrine Is Approved By 72-19 Vote in Senate

already appropriated foreign aid funds for special projects to strengthen the Middle East militarily and economically.

The administration had long since indicated that the Senate's version would be acceptable.

The last roll call found 42 Republicans and 30 Democrats supporting the President and 16 Democrats and three Republicans opposing him.

On a preliminary test, the high point reached by the opposition was 28 votes to 64 for the administration forces.

This came on a motion by Sen. Morse (D-Ore) to alter fundamentally the whole paper by writing in a stipulation that if the President uses the armed forces he must first give notice to Congress and then "submit his action for its approval or disapproval."

Such a provision would have taken the whole enterprise out of the President's hands and left all final authority in Congress.

The administration resisted it, in a letter from the State department, as raising "grave constitutional questions."

Morse was supported by 23 other Democrats and four Republicans. His effort was defeated by 42 Republicans and 22 Democrats.

The last and decsive roll call, that on final passage, found a handful of liberal Democrats joining a larger group of Southern Democrats and three far right-wing Republicans—Jenner (Ind), Malone (Nev) and McCarthy (Wis)—in resisting the resolution all the way.

Beforehand, the Senate had added two amendments, neither of which was strongly resisted by the administration.

One of these, by Sen. Mansfield (Mont), assistant Democratic floor leader, calls upon the President to continue to furnish facilities and military assistance to the United Nations Emergency Force in the Middle East.

This was intended to bring the resolution closer to the U.N. and to give assurance to the Israelis that the U.S. is determined to support the maintenance of a U.N. protective force in the areas from which the Israelis are withdrawing.

It carried by 48 to 43, with every voting Democrat standing for it and two Republicans, Sen. Javits (NY) and Case (SD) going along with them.

The effect was to put the entire voting Senate Democratic membership on record for an appeal to the President to sustain the U.N. force.

The second amendment adopted was the work jointly of Sens. Douglas (D-Ill), Sparkman (D-Ala). This carried by voice vote.

Its purpose was to commit any Middle Eastern nation receiving U.S. aid to use the assistance only for defense and not for aggression.

This was accomplished by a provision that in extending aid the President should not waive a provision of existing foreign aid law. This provision requires the President, in extending aid, to satisfy himself that the recipient nation has no aggressive purposes.

Rep. Celler and his Republican colleague from New York, Rep. Keating, were openly predicting House passage of civil rights before the end of February.

There was even talk that no public hearings would be necessary since the ground was covered at the last session.

DIXIE WITNESSES

But the Southerners managed to get hearings and bring witnesses to air the Dixie opposition to the bills. And then they got the hearings extended before Celler's subcomittee finally voted out the administration bill to the whole committee.

Today's action means that the House committee will not act before March 12, and at that time amendments will be in order.

Then the bill must go to the Rules Committee, headed by a Virginian, Rep. Howard Smith.

AFTER EASTER

It is conceivable now that House floor action might be put off until after the customary Easter recess.

Meanwhile the Senate Constitutional Rights subcommittee wound up civil rights hearings with testimony by Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore) and Gov. James P. Coleman of Mississippi. However, it left open the record until Friday to permit additional statements.

Coleman said the administration's proposals would be "a continuous source of agitation, uproar, tumult and domestic discord—and the intended beneficiary will be its first victim."

BASIC RIGHTS

But Neuberger said a federal law appeared necessary because Southern legislatures would not protect the "basic rights of colored citizens."

He said that when he sponsored similar legislation in the Oregon Legislature "it was recklessly predicted . . . that it would lead to strife between the races, to wholesale desertion of jobs by white workers and to industrial chaos."

"None of these wild prophecies ever materialized," Neuberger said.

President Asks States Help Pay For Farm Relief

state and local officials that have followed it.

With the President's backing, Secretary Benson also proposed in the most general terms an expanded program of "deferred grazing," meaning payments to farmers who leave drought-stricken grass lands to grow and hold moisture by removing their herds.

Officials said the programs presented today dealt not alone with droughts, but also with floods, the effects of hurricanes and other natural disasters which deal a heavy blow to agriculture.

Basically, the program offered was a continuance of the ones now in effect, with some modifications.

The most notable change was that the states should be required to pay a minimum of 25 per cent "in certain future emergency agricultural programs for disaster relief." But officials were unwilling to say which program, or how much this might cost the states.

SURPRISED — NEW YORK, March 5—Mrs. Ingeborg Northcross said Tuesday that she was filled with "utter, utter surprise" over the attitude of Rep. Walter Norblad (R-Ore) who seems to think her $6,000-a-year job of fashion coordinator for the government's post exchange services is a waste of time and money.

Burns Expects Israeli Pullout in 4 Days

over a long, miserable desert track across eastern Sinai.

Swedes, Danes, Norwegians and Colombians of the UNEF, totaling more than 3,000 troops, will move into Gaza on the heels of the retiring Israelis. Burns anticipates the most delicate moment will come when the last Israelis are pulling out of refugee camps and towns.

How to prevent pent-up emotions of the Palestinian Arabs from erupting into violence is Burns' chief immediate headache.

The Israelis have clamped a tight curfew on the entire strip but thousands of Arabs are expected to burst out of house arrest when UNEF forces are sighted. UNEF loudspeaker trucks will appeal for order but Burns has only a few of them.

Burns also is wondering what kind of reception the UNEF troops will get from the Arabs.

"Up to now we have been greeted as liberators," he said. The UNEF was given a wild welcome by Egyptians in Port Said and El Arish. But the Palestinian Arabs are different. In the past, mobs in Gaza have turned anger and frustration against U.N. truce observers and Egyptian occupations forces.

"We are trying to foresee and guard against trouble," Burns said.

Burns does not expect Egyptian troops to reenter Gaza immediately. He pointed out that U.N. Secretary General Hammarskjold's directive was that "in the first instance" military and civilian control of Gaza would be exclusively in the hands of UNEF. But he did not know how long a period Hammarskjold meant by that vague phrase.

It is noted the Egyptians appear to be in no hurry to reenter Gaza. According to U.N. officials, there are Egyptian police but no army units in the Sinai Peninsula.

Egypt and the Arab league have been insisting, however, that an Egyptian administration must return to Gaza and that UNEF occupancy of Gaza and Sharm El Sheikh must be regarded only as a temporary expedient.

WSB-TV's Ray Moore Can Out-Relax Como

By PAUL JONES

If you're one of those thousands of people who, occasionally, suffer from insomnia, you've probably encountered a genial fellow named Ray Moore who holds forth on a television show called Newsroom which goes on the air at 11 p.m. nightly on WSB-TV.

And, you possibly have been impressed with the calm and casual manner in which Mr. Moore goes about his chores of forecasting the weather, giving the news and ball scores — and five times a week closing out this particular stanza with an off-the-cuff interview with some personality.

Ray Moore

To many viewers Ray is even more relaxed than Perry Como, whose effortless style of singing, standing and sitting has been the topic of many lines in print. We were curious about whether Ray was actually as relaxed "on camera" as he seemed.

AS LONG AS the show — which incidentally co-stars Bill Swayze—is going smooth, Ray says he is relaxed inwardly and outwardly. But, when something goes haywire, Ray says he tries to keep an unruffled outward appearance, while at the same time he is burning with embarrassment inwardly.

There's a reason for this. "When something goes wrong, the audience is embarrassed for me," Ray says. "I try to pass it off lightly or to ignore the mistake altogether to prevent any red faces in the audience."

RAY HAS COME up with some classic "cover ups" during his Newsroom career. Once when Herman Hickman failed to show up for an interview, Ray and Swayze interviewed each other. This proved to be one of the all-time most hilarious and, quite naturally, enlightening features on the show.

OF THE HUNDREDS of personalities he has interviewed, Ray says golfer Bobby Jones and poet Robert Frost are the two people who held him in awe.

"Jones was like a personality out of a story book come to life," said Ray. "I was actually nervous when I began the interview, but his ease of manner soon eased the stress."

Frost's "mountainous intellect" impressed Ray.

AN ABSENT-MINDED Tech professor—whose name is being withheld for obvious reasons—was scheduled to be a guest on Ray's Newsroom one night.

Bobby Dodd, Tech athletic director, it seems, had suggested that Ray interview this professor. And Dodd cautioned Ray that he is "awful absent minded—so please call him an hour before the show and remind him to show up."

Ray called. The professor assured him he was on his way.

Moore called the professor the next day. "Oh—, I forgot all about that appointment," was the reply.

Accustomed to breaking "through that tasty, tender, flakey pie crust and scooping up a chunk of white meat," Ray hurriedly scooped up the chicken pie one night, dug the fork into the crust. The eating utensil bent. Ray dug again, thinking he had hit the pie pan. The fork bounced off the pie again.

Someone had forgotten to defrost the frozen pie.

TELEVISION DUEL—NEW YORK, March 5—E. G. Marshall, portraying Alexander Hamilton, is shown here with June Evert, actress. They both star in the Kraft Television Theater's production of "The Duel," which will be shown in Atlanta Wednesday at 9 p.m. on WSB. The play takes its title from the duel that Hamilton and Aaron Burr fought in 1804, which resulted in Hamilton's death.

FridayNight Fight Show Is Extended

By RICHARD F. SHEPARD

NEW YORK, March 5—A contract to broadcast the Friday night boxing matches over radio and television for the next two years has been signed by the Gillette Safety Razor Co. and the International Boxing Club.

A. Craig Smith, executive vice president of Gillette, said his concern would pay about $100,000 for each fight. This would bring the cost of the two-year program to $10,400,000 on the basis of one fight a week. The rate is the same as in the contract now expiring.

The fight will be carried, as they have since 1944, over the NBC radio and television networks.

The new contract becomes effective June 1. IBC will receive $24,500 for each show. Each main fighter will receive $4,000 plus a percentage of the admission fees.

Armless Georgia Boy Seeking Video Jackpot

A 13-year-old Georgia boy who was born without arms will attempt to Strike It Rich on the TV quiz show Thursday morning.

Evan Patterson, one of 10 children, and his widowed mother, Mrs. H. R. Patterson, of Blairsville, will leave Atlanta Wednesday for New York, accompanied by Clyde Withers, of the Yaarab Shrine Temple.

The Union County lad will be presented with a model plane and other toys by Delta Airlines when he boards a plane at 12 noon. When he arrives in New York a limousine will carry him from the airport to CBS-Television headquarters, where a sight-seeing tour of Manhattan is being planned.

He will try for the $500 jackpot on the show at 11:30 a.m. Thursday. It will be seen in Atlanta on Ch. 5. He hopes to win enough to pay for one artificial limb.

This will mark the second time Evan has been out of the mountain country. He came to Atlanta last year for special surgery which equipped him for one artificial limb.

This special limb was presented to him by the Shrine.

Evan's mother will be making her first visit to Atlanta.

Bond Issue 'Decisive,' Mayor Says

Mayor Hartsfield, Fulton Commission Chairman Archie Lindsey and civic leaders Tuesday urged approval of a projected $87,000,000 joint city-county bond issue as "the deciding factor in Atlanta's continued growth."

They spoke at a luncheon meeting of the Atlanta Kiwanis Club at the Dinkler Plaza.

Following the Kiwanis club meeting, a six-member subcommittee from the joint citizens advisory bond commission held a lengthy session to try to cut the bond issue total to the proposed limits. Some $13,000,000 in requests must be culled from the total.

SESSION FRIDAY

Robert L. MacDougall, commission chairman, said individual meetings will be scheduled with city and county officials and that a joint session of the commission and city and county officials is planned for Friday afternoon.

Meanwhile, some county officials expressed "concern" that the bond money requests on the county as presently outlined by the citizens group could cause the county to have to raise its bond taxes as much as 3½ mills.

These officials were especially disturbed over how the citizens committee will distribute the bond load in its final figures. They pointed to the streets subcommittee recommendation of $30,000,000, with $25,000,000 of this to come from the county.

One county official has said the county could not put up more than $20,000,000 for streets without having to cut badly-needed building projects.

PRUNING AWAITED

The officials were concerned over how the cuts in the projects will be made to come within the overall $87,000,000 limit set by the bond group.

The county requested $14,177,000 for buildings but did not recommend a specific amount for streets. Officials said the committee's present proposal seems to throw the major burden on the county for street projects inside Atlanta.

The county bond tax is now 1½ mills, set to retire a $20,000,000 bond issue in 1952 of which about $17,000,000 is still outstanding. The additional issue of $35,000,000 as proposed by the committee would cost county taxpayers roughly $2,380,000 in new taxes each year.

THE LAST REGULAR MEETING WAS HELD AT THE ATLANTA JAIL

Ptl. James W. Moore, Club Organizer, With Charles Sosbee and Bobbie Etheridge

LEADERSHIP AND ACTIVITY

Policeman Captures Youths By Dozens for Atlanta Club

A quiet, mild-mannered Atlanta policeman is waging a one-man war on youth problems.

Patrolman James W. Moore got to thinking about the things he saw, read and heard about young people. He figured boys and girls between the ages of 15 and 19—in-between ages — have special problems.

Moore set out to do something for the children in his neighborhood. He organized the Northwest Youth Club five months ago, with a handful of youngsters gathering at his home, 1427 Northwest Dr., NW.

The Salvation Army gave a hand. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Fowler, of 421 Ashby St., SW, took a part in the movement.

Moore and Fowler, an employe of the City Parks Department, were astonished at the results. The word spread and the club grew by leaps and bounds. The Moore home no longer was large enough to accommodate an average of 100 youngsters who showed up for the regular Monday night meetings.

The last meeting was held at Atlanta Police Headquarters, with Chief Herbert Jenkins as host. They toured the identification bureau, the detective bureau and the radio room.

When the tour was over, they wanted to know if young people are really as bad as they are pictured to be. Jenkins explained that bad conduct always is more highly publicized than good. Fewer juveniles than adults get into trouble, he added.

"Anyone who fills a church pew on Sunday seldom gets into jail on Friday—regardless of the age," he said.

The group meets each Monday, with Mr. and Mrs. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Fowler and Lt. Edna Prevost, of the Salvation Army, as adult advisers and chaperones. One meeting each month is a religious service conducted by Lt. Prevost.

"We opened each meeting with a prayer," Moore said. "So far, we've never had a boy or girl hesitate when called upon to open the service."

Three meetings a month are in the form of outings — skating parties, wiener roasts, sports contests and the like.

Moore's son, Jimmy, 19, is president of the club. Barbara Glenn, 15, of 684 Emily Pl., NW, is secretary. Jimmy went into Air Force service Tuesday.

Williams Jabs Integration's 'Weak' Foes

Revenue Commissioner T. V. Williams fired what may have been the first political shot of the 1958 governor's race Tuesday.

He said his announcement as a potential candidate has been well received throughout the state because "the people have been waiting for someone who isn't weak on segregation."

Williams did not directly accuse any other potential candidate of "weakness." In fact, he refused to amplify on his remarks.

But observers considered the remark to be aimed at Lt. Gov. Ernest Vandiver, most prominently mentioned 1958 possibility.

Vandiver from his home in Lavonia told The Constitution that "I am glad he (Williams) joins us in our fight" for segregation.

'WITH PLEASURE'

"It is with pleasure that I learn that the revenue commissioner believes in segregation," Vandiver said.

"I had heard of no previous statements or speeches from him indicating where he stood.

"Some of us have for many years been publicly fighting night and day for segregation, constitutional government and the Georgia way of life. I am glad to learn he joins us in our fight," the lieutenant governor concluded.

Williams took his name out of the rumor category last week and announced he was seriously considering the race for governor. If he decides to run, the commissioner promised, he will resign by June 30.

'EXCELLENT REACTION'

"I have had an excellent reaction to the speculation that I'm running," Williams declared Tuesday.

He said he had received support from people interested in a "strong" segregation candidate and those "interested in my drive on illicit liquor."

The revenue commissioner maintained, however, that he is not a candidate at this time. "As long as I stay over here as revenue commissioner, I'm not going to be a candidate," he said. He said he would not mix politics and revenue work.

Drilling Begins in Marion After Report of Oil Signs

New reports of "strong traces of oil" in Georgia were issued Tuesday as a petroleum company announced it is drilling in Marion County.

The Georgia International Oil Co., a subsidiary of the Lee Oil and Natural Gas Co. of Baltimore, Md., said it is sinking a well in Marion County, just over the Sumter County line near Americus.

An earlier report indicated a mile-deep boring near Hawkinsville. Robert O. Leighton, a Minnesota "wild-catter," said he hopes to know definitely within a week whether he has struck pay dirt. He said the best showing appeared to be about 4,600 feet down in the 6,000-foot well. The hole is now being cleaned out preparatory to casing it, he said.

E. L. Synnestvedt, head of the Georgia oil company, said the showing raised the possibility of a big Southwest Georgia oil boom.

Garland Peyton, state geologist, said here Tuesday he thinks talk of a big oil discovery in the state is "somewhat premature."

Peyton said tests cannot be made of the oil until the promoters get pipe into their wells.

He cautioned against overoptimism. There have in the past been more definite showings of oil than in Hawkinsville, he said. So far the drillers have not taken a "core" from the Hawkinsville well which would show positively whether or not there is oil, he added.

Drillers in Marion County will also have to sink pipe and make proper tests before there will be anything definite to report from their "find," he said.

Peyton pointed out that both wells—some 60 miles apart—are about the same distance from the "fall line"—the line in which the sea once came.

Paul Dupree, an Atlanta businessman in partnership with Leighton in the Hawkinsville diggings, predicted that "we will be in production" within five or six days, after the cement sets in their casing.

Conceivably, the two independent operations in the two Georgia counties could develop into a hot race for a $250,000 bonus from the state. A constitutional amendment approved in the last general election authorizes the state to award the bonus for the first commercially successful oil well in Georgia.

Pope Elevates Atlanta Pastors Cassidy, Sheehan

Two Atlanta Catholic pastors have been elevated to new ranks in the priesthood by Pope Pius XII, the Most Rev. Francis E. Hyland, Bishop of Atlanta, announced Tuesday.

According to the announcement, The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph G. Cassidy has been raised to the rank of Prothonotary Apostolic and the Rev. Thomas I. Sheehan has been elevated to the rank of Domestic Prelate.

Msgr. Cassidy

Msgr. Cassidy, pastor of the Cathedral of Christ the King, now holds the highest grade of prelacy to which a priest can be raised. Among other privileges now granted to him is that of offering Pontifical Mass on certain occasions in the manner of a Bishop.

With the elevation of the Rev. Sheehan to Domestic Prelate comes the title of Rt. Rev. Msgr. He is pastor of St. Thomas More Parish in Decatur.

Rabbi Berger, Author, To Talk Here on Zionism

Rabbi Elmer Berger, executive vice president of the American Council for Judaism, will address a dinner meeting of the Atlanta Chapter of the council at 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 12, at the Standard Club.

Elmer Berger

Rabbi Berger's talk will deal with problems faced by American Jews because of Zionism, Elliot L. Haas, chairman of the council's literary event committee, announced.

The speaker, author of "Judaism or Jewish Nationalism—the Alternative to Zionism," has devoted much time to "counteracting Zionist efforts to endow Americans of the Jewish faith with special obligations to the foreign state of Israel."

The American Council for Judaism is a national educational organization whose primary objective is the advancement of ethical, spiritual, and religious aspects of Judaism.

CITY HALL NEWS

Preview of Financial Situation March 14 Expected To Stress Atlanta School Needs

By HERMAN HANCOCK

The preliminary report of an 18-month survey of Atlanta's financial situation is to be submitted to city officials and Atlanta Chamber of Commerce leaders at 3 p.m. March 14, it was learned Tuesday.

Dr. Alfred Buehler, head of the Wharton School of Finance of the University of Pennsylvania, will offer findings and seek suggestions about what the final report should contain.

The study began as a three-month project to cost $12,000 to $15,000. The cost so far is around $70,000.

Buehler is former president of the National Tax Assn. He has been assisted in the Atlanta study by Dr. David T. Rowlands, also of the Pennsylvania school, and a sizeable staff. The study was broadened as it went along.

The survey is expected to show that Atlanta schools will need new millions of dollars to provide classrooms for continued growth. The school needs probably will lead the list of necessities.

Also included will be studies showing that city schools and the Atlanta city government get far less fiscal aid from the state than do cities of comparable size in other states. It will show that many Southern cities receive assistance far in excess of that given Atlanta percentagewise.

For the first time, DeKalb's fiscal situation will be available as a portion of the report. The preliminary report probably will show that Fulton County levies a proportionately larger tax than other counties do in cities comparable to Atlanta.

Education Appraisal

Re-evaluation of nine Atlanta high schools will begin March 14, Dr. Kenneth Williams, deputy city school superintendent, said Tuesday. The self-analysis is designed to discover weak spots and to evaluate the strong points.

Principals have been conducting studies of their schools for the past two months. Visiting teams of educators will compare the findings with their impressions.

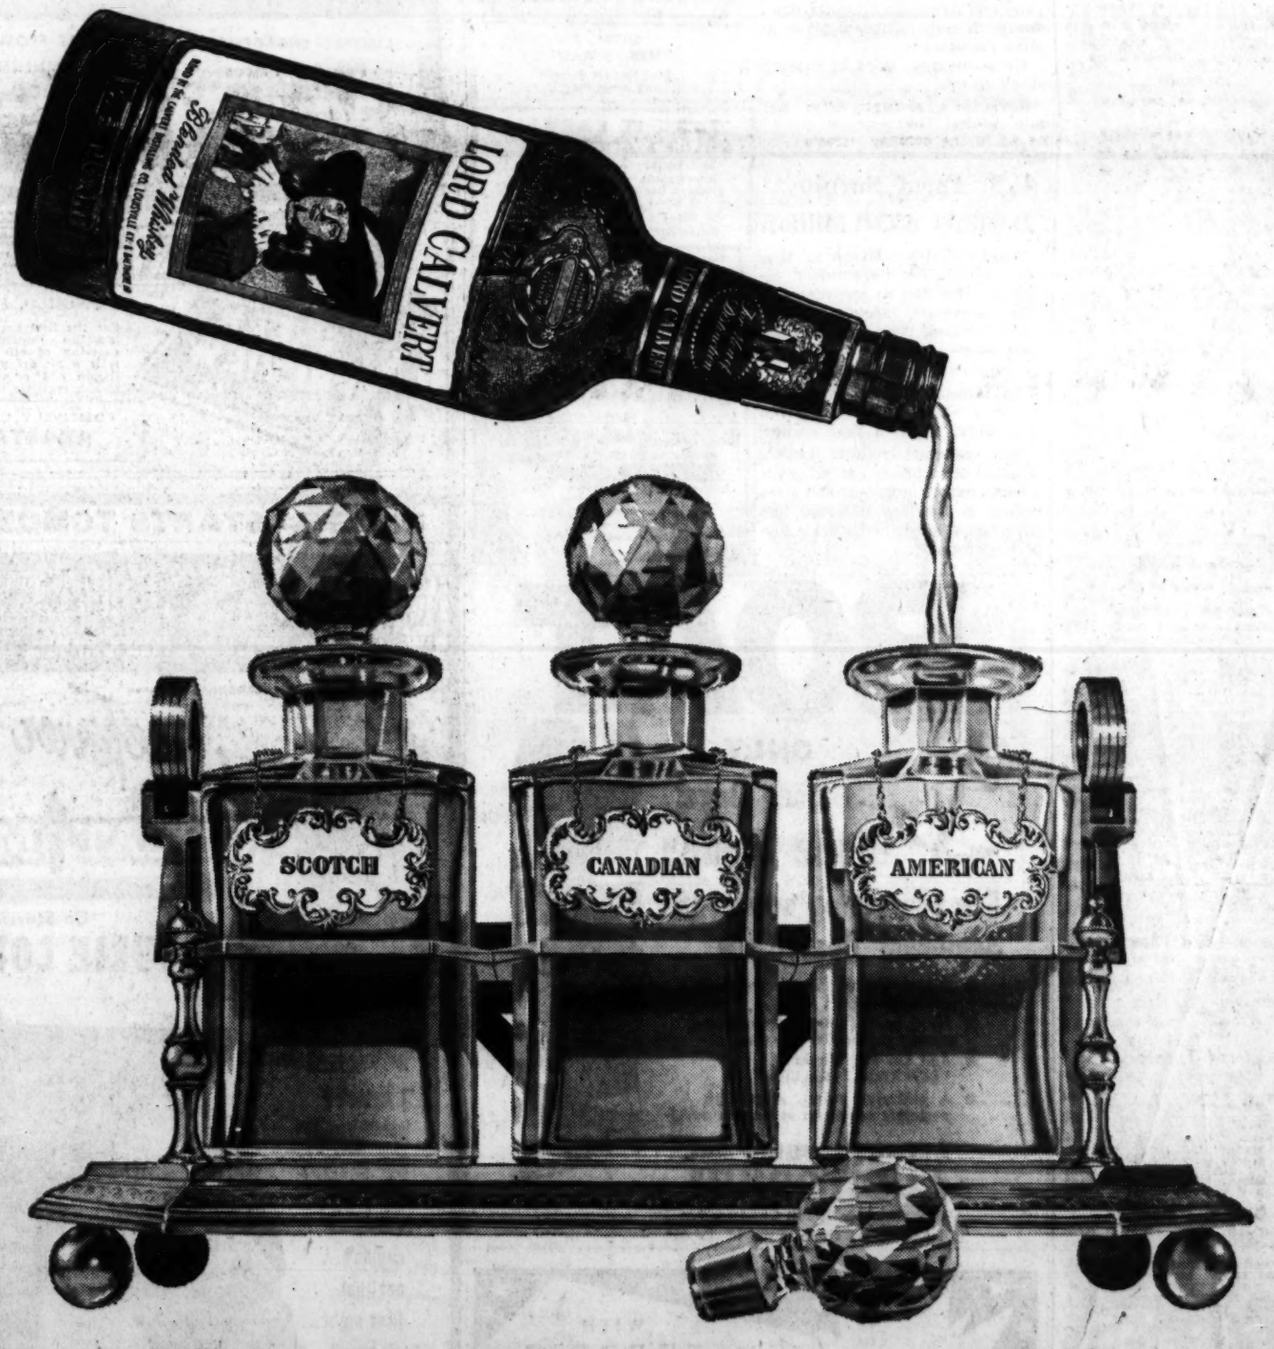

West Fulton, Hoke Smith, Bass, Murphy, O'Keefe, Grady, Washington and Howard high schools will be surveyed. Similar studies were made two years ago.

Greek Orthodox Church Is Given StateRecognition

Gov. Griffin signed into law Tuesday a measure recognizing the Greek Orthodox Church as one of major divisions of the world's religious faiths.

The act, House Bill 370, provides for the inclusion of the name of the Eastern Orthodox Church among names of "all other major religious groups, in bills, resolutions, acts, laws and other official papers of the state or any political subdivision."

Sponsors of the measure explained that although the Eastern church is neither Roman Catholic nor Protestant, it is sometimes included with one or the other under existing laws.

Fields Slashes Own Arms, Hits Guard, Dies in Chair

Jennings Edwards Fields slashed his arms with a razor and struggled with five guards Tuesday but died in the electric chair at Reidsville State Prison on schedule.

The 32-year-old man was electrocuted for the 1954 gun-slaying of DeKalb Patrolman J. L. (Jimmy) Mize.

Corrections Director Jack Forrester said Fields severely lacerated both arms with a razor while a priest was praying over the prisoner.

"CLOSE DEATH WATCH"

"(Warden R. P.) Balkcom said he doesn't know where the razor blade came from," Forrester said. "They keep a death watch pretty close on them," he continued.

A prison doctor treated the wounds so the execution could proceed, the director said.

It took five guards to strap Fields into the chair, Forrester reported. "He managed to strike a guard in the mouth. Balkcom says he's going to have to have stitches," he said.

Fields was strapped in the chair at 10:26 a.m. and pronounced dead at 10:33 a.m.

Forrester said Fields' attorney, J. E. B. Stewart, stayed with his client until the end and witnessed the execution.

APPEAL TURNED DOWN

And Gov. Griffin said he had turned down an appeal for commutation made by the attorney's father Tuesday morning.

In his final statement, the prisoner said:

"God bless everybody. I love everybody. I want to meet everybody in heaven. I want everybody to forgive me for cutting myself—I did not mean to do it. I want everybody to forgive me. I do not remember coming to the chair. I want everybody to pray for me. I got the blade out of the spit bucket."

Numerous appeals had resulted in Fields' being sentenced seven different times.

After a session of more than four hours Monday afternoon, the Board of Pardons and Paroles unanimously decided to stand by its earlier decision rejecting Fields' plea for commutation.

Griffin Vows Prompt Aid to Boys School

Prompt action to relieve crowding at the Boys Training School in Milledgeville was promised by Gov. Griffin Tuesday.

Space will be added as soon as money is available, the governor said.

Griffin was asked whether a member of his staff had been investigating the overcrowding cited by William Ireland, director of the state training school and other officials. The governor said he was "aware" of the conditions.

Other training schools need more space, too, the governor said, but he added that money is limited and "we have to take them one at a time."

First round will begin at 7:45 p.m. Friday with two rounds being played on each of the next two days. Open to all residents of Greater Atlanta, the tourney will be played under regulations of the U.S. Chess Federation and entrants will be given national ratings by that group.

MOVIE REVIEW

'Rosanna' Puts 3 on an Island In Near-Silence

By PAUL JONES

There is little to distinguish the current film at the Tower Theater—"Rosanna"—except the voluptuous figure of Rosanna Podesta and some beautifully photographed Mexican seascapes.

The picture starts out to tell the story of how two men fight for the love of one woman. The three are on a tropical island off the coast of Mexico. But there is little dialogue and most of the story is told in a semipantomime.

Possibly the lack of dialogue has worked to the picture's advantage because the dubbing of English voices is effectively done.

Miss Podesta doesn't have a whole lot to do in the film except to stand around looking as sexy as she possibly can. Cros Alvarado and Armando Siloestre don't do much either—except gaze at Miss Podesta.

We soon grew tired of looking at all three.

Reviewer's rating: Arty, but dull. Adults.

U.S. Farm Surplus Declines $530 Million

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP)—The Agriculture Department reported today that its investment in farm surpluses acquired under price support programs declined $530,340,000 during the 12-month period ending Jan. 31.

The amount tied up as of Jan. 31 was $8,360,910,000 compared with $8,891,280,000 a year earlier.

The reduction reflects largely disposal of surpluses abroad under various export programs and a decrease in the flow of crops into government hands under price support operations.

Barbara Hutton's $400,000 Gift to Son Has 15-Ft. Waterfall, Hi-Fi, 8 Bathrooms

Lance

Some of its features:

An indoor-outdoor swimming pool.

A hi-fi system piping music throughout the house—price tag $10,000.

An electronic kitchen in which a 10-pound beef roast can be cooked in 30 minutes.

Electrically operated draperies in all rooms.

Eight bathrooms—more than the combined total of other rooms. The master bathroom is distinguished from the others by being finished in imported Italian marble and having a massive Roman bathtub—the kind you step down into.

The house doesn't have a living room. It does have a den, playroom, dining room, kitchen with breakfast area and two bedrooms.

Lance, whose father is Danish nobleman Kurthaguwitz-Reventlow, second of Barbara Hutton' six husbands, expects to occupy the house about six months of the year. The rest of the time he will be in Europe racing his sports car.

Married? Nope. Bachelor.

Neely Raps Humphrey's Oil Holdings

Asks Probe To See If Duties Conflict

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP)—Sen. Neely (D-WVa) said today that Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey has important holdings in big oil companies and there may be a conflict of interest between his personal and official connections.

Neely proposed that a Senate emergency oil shipments to Europe call Humphrey for questioning about what he called this "possible conflict."

The West Virginia senator said Humphrey may have had a part in "behind the scenes control" of the oil lift for Europe.

Two officials of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, President M. J. Rathbone and Vice President Stewart P. Coleman, testified that so far as they knew Humphrey had no part in the government decision to set up the emergency oil program.

Coleman is the chairman of the Middle East Emergency Committee, a voluntary association of 15 oil companies operating the oil lift under general government supervision.

Neely told the two Standard officials that Humphrey and his family "are the important if not the controlling factor" in the M. A. Hanna Co. He said the Hanna company holds 400,000 shares of Standard of New Jersey and asked Rathbone how much this was worth.

"About $55 a share or some 22 million dollars," Rathbone said.

When Humphrey was selected by President Eisenhower to be secretary of the Treasury he resigned as chairman of the Hanna company, a steel firm. He told the Senate Finance Committee in January 1953 he had quit all of his official posts in industry, but was retaining his stock interests.

Ben-Gurion Asks Backing Amid Uproar

port for maintaining peace in the Middle East, Ben-Gurion said, "I do not hesitate to advise the members of the Knesset (Parliament) and the people of Israel to accept this settlement."

The white-haired old warrior was tired to the point of exhaustion.

Tomorrow he faces the opposition's motion of no-confidence. He is expected to win out.

Four hours before he spoke, speakers at a mass rally in this old holy city accused him of surrender and demanded that he resign.

"I will not hide the fact that the government's decision was not an easy one and was not unanimous," Ben-Gurion told Parliament, "but the government is responsible as a whole to the nation."

The 70-year-old prime minister warned Egypt and other Arab neighbors that any interference with Israeli shipping in the Gulf of Aqaba "will be regarded by Israel as an attack entitling her to use her inherent right to self-defense."

Ben-Gurion said Israel had the right under the U. N. Charter "to take all such measures as are necessary to insure the free and innocent passage" of its ships in the Gulf.

Ben-Gurion referred to the threat of U. N. penalties for refusing to withdraw.

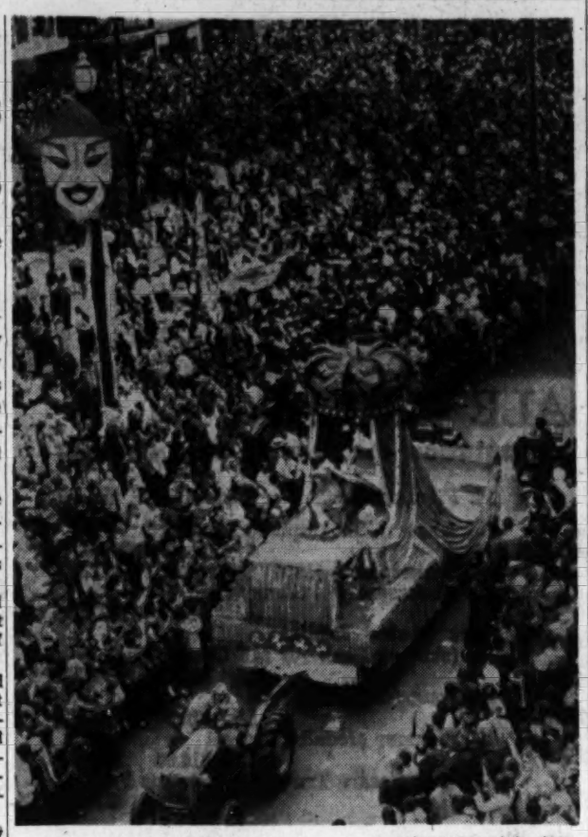

"Not for one moment have I shrunk from facing the threat of sanctions (penalties) although I did not belittle their gravity."

CROWDS JAM CANAL STREET FOR MARDI GRAS

IT'S MARDI GRAS!

New Orleans Revelers Pose and Play and Pour

NEW ORLEANS, March 5 (AP)—Half of New Orleans frolicked in silly, happy costumes today. The other half carried cameras. It was Mardi Gras.

Even the city's stiff, proper-looking policemen were forced into the act.

"Pull his arm, pull his arm," shouted a tourist with a camera.

"Oh, no," said the policeman, reddening. "I can't pull a slot machine. Not in front of a camera."

Then he weakened under the carnival spirit and pulled the young man's upheld arm. The fruits on the machine began to turn. They stopped. Three peaches. The door at the bottom of the machine opened.

The policeman bent to pick up his booty. Out came a pistol firing away. Just blanks. No one was hurt.

Soon a hay-seed looking clown appeared. He had a telephone continually ringing in his pocket, a hat that jumped when bare-legged ladies passed and two signs, clearly marked "Hound Dog."

Although he protested loudly that he was a hound dog, another sign belied his tale. It was on the seat of his pants, clearly: "This Won't Wag."

Costumes were not the only attraction. Several parades tooted by, including the famous Zulu and Rex marchers.

Zulu had been billed as a burlesque of the genteel Rex paraders. The Negroes of Zulu have developed a reputation for crowd-pleasing rowdyism.

But, at least in the beginning, they marched in regal, dignified, sober splendor. Rex, however, broke a bit from tradition, as some of the bead-tossers on the floats could be seen sipping between tosses. But there were hints Zulu, as it stopped at almost every Negro bar in town, would soon catch up.

Cuba Releases U.S. Newsmen

HAVANA, Cuba, March 5 (AP)—Two U.S. newsmen arrested Sunday night at Havana Airport after a trip to a rebel area were released late today by the Cuban government.

The men are George Prentice, 32, a reporter, and Tony Faletta, 35, a photographer, on leaves of absence from the Birmingham, Ala., News. They were doing free lance reporting for the National Broadcasting Co., an NBC spokesman said. The Cuban Military Service said revolutionary propaganda was found in their possession.

Ghana Joins Nations And Commonwealth

By GRANT DILLMAN

ACCRA, Ghana, March 5 (AP)—Africa's first native Negro state was officially born tonight in gay independence celebrations mingling the beat of witch doctors' drums with the honking of Cadillac horns.

At midnight (7 p.m. EST), Britain's Gold Coast colony died. Ghana came into being — an excited new nation of 4,700,000 Africans and 12,000 Europeans.

ANCIENT NAME

Ghana is the name of an ancient West African empire that flourished about a thousand years ago around the capital in the region of Timbuktu. After it disintegrated it remaned a legend of Negro power and magnificence.

Ghana brought princes and premiers and vice presidents to help celebrate independence day but but the sentimental place of honor went to a London landlady, Mrs. Florence Manley.

Twelve years ago an African student who could find no place to live was given a room in Mrs. Manley's boarding house. He earned his keep washing dishes.

Today that student is Kwame Nkrumah, premier of Ghana. He and Mrs. Manley and her daughter flown down here as very special delegates to the independence ceremonies.

BRITISH FIRST

The passing of the midnight hour meant that Ghana had become a full-fledged member of the British commonwealth, the first Negro nation to achieve such a status.

The only other Negro republic in Africa is Liberia. It was founded by freed slaves from the United States.

Queen Elizabeth became queen of Ghana as well as queen of England. Nkrumah became the actual ruler.

In an independence declaration to parliament tonight, Nkrumah said his new nation will seek membership in the United Nations "as soon as possible."

NOT NEUTRALS

"The government feels our country should not align itself with any particular group of powers or blocs — nor follow a neutralist policy in foreign relations," the Premier said.

The orderly transition was celebrated at a vast state dinner in Accra's gleaming new Ambassador Hotel. It was attended by U.S. Vice President Richard M. Nixon; Queen Elizabeth's aunt, the Duchess of Kent; delegates of 72 nations, including Red China and Russia, an assistant secretary-general of the United Nations — and Mrs. Manley.

But Africans were partying the length and breadth of this land just a little smaller than Oregon. Primitive drums and modern horns mixed like the evening dress of ambassadors and the rainbow-hued robes of Africans.

Such is life in Ghana, where tribal superstition, British parliamentary tradition and American "go-getting" spirit are unbelievably mixed.

'Bright' U.S. Reporter A Big Chief to Natives

The 6-foot-7 Holeman, towering over everyone at tribal dancing ceremonies, attracted a small group of Africans.

A sub-chief dressed in robes not nearly as colorful as Holeman's sport shirt, inquired if he was a chief in America.

Another reporter, remembering Holeman was formerly president of the National Dress Club in Washington, assured the sub-chief that Holeman was a big chief.

Mightily impressed, the sub-chief asked Holeman to look up his brother who, he said, lives in Michigan and plays piano.

Ike Salutes Ghana as a Free Nation

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP)—President Eisenhower saluted the government and people of Ghana tonight and the State Department officially announced U. S. recognition of the new African state.

Eisenhower congratulated Ghana, formerly the British Gold Coast, "on the occasion of your joining the family of independent nations."

Vice President Nixon, acting as Eisenhower's representative, is attending ceremonies at Accra, the Ghanian capital, to mark that country's formal grant of independence from Britain.

The State Department announcement said:

"The United States government has officially recognized the new state of Ghana, which becomes independent and a member of the British Commonwealth on March 6.

President Shuts The Social Door On McCarthy

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP)—The White House said tonight Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) is the only member of Congress President and Mrs. Eisenhower did not invite to one of their formal dinners and receptions this year.

McCarthy, a frequent critic of some administration policies, said he was "amused" by the snub.

The White House social season ended this evening with a reception for government officials and for Congress members and their wives who had not attended one of the earlier affairs. McCarthy and his wife got no invitation.

Tulane Student Is Shot to Death At Mardi Gras

NEW ORLEANS, March 5 (AP)—A Mardi Gras reveler dressed as a convict was shot to death this afternoon as he participated in carnival festivities while huge parades wound their way through the heart of New Orleans.

Police Sgt. Hal Woods identified the victim of the Mardi Gras shooting as August Joseph During, 27, a student at Tulane University.

Witnesses, Woods said, reported that a Negro, later identified as Joseph O. Jenkins, 25, began firing a .32 caliber automatic pistol at a group of celebrants, all dressed alike and masked as convicts.

The sergeant said the shooting apparently was unprovoked.

'Hunch' Sends Father to Body Of Girl, 15, in Lovers Lane Pit

MAHWAH, N.J., March 5 (AP)—A neighbor woman's "hunch" today led a father to discover the body of his missing 15-year-old daughter in a gravel pit "lovers lane" here.

Anthony R. Zielinski, of adjacent Ramsey, found his daughter, Victoria, had been brutally murdered.

Police said the girl, a sophomore and honor roll student at Ramsey High School, was apparently the victim of a sadist. Her head had been split down the middle with a rock, her nose and jaws were fractured, and her clothes had been ripped off from the waist up. However, Dr. Raphael Gilady, chief Bergen County medical examiner, said after an examination that the girl had not been criminally assaulted.

Victoria

Victoria failed to return home last night after she had gone to do some homework with a girl friend who lived about a half mile away. Her parents first reported her missing late last night, police said.

This morning the Zielinskis were touring the neighborhood in their car looking for her, the police said, when they came upon their daughter's kerchief on Fardale avenue near where her body was found.

The neighbor, Mrs. S. C. Kromka, urged them to look in the gravel pit a short distance away.

Atlanta Wife Killed by Car She Parked

An Atlanta woman was killed Tuesday by a runaway automobile which she had parked in a garage at the home a few moments before, police said.

The car pinned Mrs. Ed L. Wight, 67, of 44 Wakefield Dr., NE, against the outside wall of her home, Dets. O. W. Jordan and J. G. Adams said.

WALKING TOWARD HOUSE

Bobby Barnett, of 1036 Northside Dr., NW, an employe of the City Waterworks Department, was quoted as saying he saw Mrs. Wight park the car in the garage, get out and start walking toward the home.

Barnett said he heard a scream and saw Mrs. Wight pinned between the car and the house. Barnett and two helpers on his truck, Wilbur Stafford and Alex Marion, moved the car and called for help.

FUNERAL THURSDAY

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday at Spring Hill. The Rev. Wilson Sneed will officiate. Burial will be in Westview Cemetery.

Born in Conyers, Mrs. Wight had lived in Atlanta nearly all her life. She was the former Miss Jesse McCalla.

Mrs. Wight's husband, Ed L. Wight, is president of the Fulton Industrial Securities Corp.

Mrs. Wight was a member of St. Luke's Episcopal Church and its St. Catherine Guild. She was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the United Daughters of the Confederacy, the English Speaking Union, the Atlanta Opera Guild and the Atlanta Service Group.

Also surviving are a daughter, Mrs. James M. Crawford, and a son, Ed Leigh Wight Jr., both of Atlanta.

State Baptists Pick Editor For Publicity

A former New Orleans newsman Tuesday was appointed public relations director of the Georgia Baptist Convention.

The announcement of the appointment of James A. Lester, to the newly created position came at the meeting of the Convention's Executive Committee at Georgia Baptist Hospital.

James Lester — Dr. Garrison

Other action of the committee approved an invitation for Dr. Searcy Garrison, executive secretary of the convention, to participate in a preaching mission to Formosa in May.

The new public relations director was state editor of the Times-Picayune. He had been with the New Orleans paper for six years.

He is a graduate of Mercer University and holds bachelor of divinity and master of theology degrees from New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary.

Man, 80, Chains Wife In Henhouse To Die

CATANIA, Sicily, March 5 (UP)—A court today sentenced an 80-year-old farmer to 13 years in prison for keeping his wife chained in a henhouse until she died.

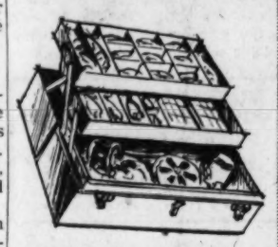

Giuseppe de Stefano previously had been sentenced by a local court to 10 years. He appealed. The higher court today added three years to his sentence.

Fashion Dipping Into Hyacinth for A Spring Bloom

By RAYMONDE ALEXANDER

When hyacinth isn't a flower, it's a color—the color that fashion is dipping your entire wardrobe into for the freshest spring bloom.

It may be lilac warmed with pink or paled with white. It may be pink rosed with mauve or purple tinged with blue. It's any color in which you can pick hyacinth right out of your flower garden.

In the richer shades, it speaks with boldness; in the fragile shades, it whispers with subtlety. But all shades are delicious — the hyacinth scent seems to come with them.

BY DAY AND NIGHT

Where in your wardrobe is it likely to blossom best?

It flowers in dresses by day and night. Lingerie feels its soft glow in slips, gowns, ensembles. Sportswear uses it in prints and solids.

It has a fragrant accent in gloves, belts, scarves, blouses, hats and jewelry.

You'll even want to eye it for make-up for that violet look.

In a delightfully easy-to-care-for dress of dacron and cotton, orchid hyacinth finds a sweet style on which to shed its glory. The dress features a boat neckline with a gallery of lace.

TINY TUCKS

The bodice has rows of tiny tucks spaced with lace inserts. From a fitted midriff, the skirt flowers into gentle fullness of unpressed pleats. Shoes and gloves in hyacinth pink play the accompaniment.

The white silk shantung dress designed by Estevez is the perfect foil for the great flower cartwheel and muff in shades of hyacinth from pink to orchid.

TROUSSEAU LOVELY

The gown has a fitted midriff pointing to center front and back fullness and a bodice overlaid with nylon marquisette.

The peignoir has delicate designs in re-embroidered Alencon lace on the yoke. The collar and puffed sleeves of sheer nylon marquisette add the airy touch of utter femininity.

Shades of hyacinth are so important this spring, they have been featured in showings by a local department store.

For shopping information, call JA. 2-5050, Ext. 394, or send a self-addressed post card to the Women's Department, The Atlanta Constitution.

Old Ghost Cast Aside

Charles W. Ferguson, one of the senior editors of the Reader's Digest, was in Atlanta a few weeks ago to address an advertising meeting and to visit with a few writer friends. I had the pleasure of meeting him and found him to be a witty and charming gentleman, but it wasn't until he was out of town that I found how valuable Mr. Ferguson's visit was.

He laid an old ghost for us!

We of the great reading public, those of us who like the pretty magazines and read popular fiction, are not necessarily morons. We do not have to be regarded as the mental age of our adolescent children. It's all a great mistake, according to what Mr. Ferguson told the ad writers.

Or rather, as Mr. Ferguson explained it, it's what Fortune magazine called "the myth of the 13-year-old mentality." This myth, said Mr. Ferguson, rests upon misinterpretation of the findings of a series of Stanford-Binet intelligence tests given American draftees during the days of World War I.

"These findings indicated that the average person had a mental age of 13, but the hasty interpretation overlooked the fact that full maturity of intelligence was reached under these tests at the age of 16," said Mr. Ferguson. "Hence a 13-year-old mind, far from being used as a term of opprobrium, ought to be used as a term of respect."

A friend of mine in the advertising business happened to have a copy of the speech Mr. Ferguson made here and she let me see it for the cheer I might derive from it. And it's plenty cheering, although the editor admits that the belief persists "that the public is dumb and that language must be watered down accordingly."

"I draw a sharp line between simplicity and simplification," he said. "I mean the tendency of those who convey information to take something that is not very interesting to begin with and make it less so through small words and a species of baby talk. It is the practice of using certain word lists, of struggling to accommodate the writer to the reader, of deliberately limiting our language. The big dictionaries have about 450,000 words and many of us are warned to be careful lest we use more than 10,000.

"Whatever your views or mine on this matter, the fact remains that the emphasis upon simplification leads us to neglect the richness of the language.

Mr. Ferguson had some amusing things to say about the study of the origin and derivation of words and also "the aura they take on as they pass through history—their change in color and meaning." He used the word "hood" as an example.

"If you looked under a hood in the middle ages you found a monk; if you look under a hood today you find an engine. (There's also the use of "hood" for gangster or killer, Mr. Ferguson.) "Curriculum originally described the course of a chariot race. . . . "Canter is a contraction of Canterbury and recounts the slow pace of the pilgrims to the grave of Thomas a Becket." . . .

"The word 'management' entered the language in 1561 and its meaning had to do with the training of horses."

"Gradually the meaning and character of the word softened," Mr. Ferguson explained, "so that by 1796 it had come to mean treating persons with indulgence or consideration. The last listed appears under the year 1899 when it meant to get along, as in the sentence, 'We'll manage somehow.' You can trace a whole pattern of cultural change in the softening of this one word. And probably the best meaning is yet to come."

Girl Has Questions On Dating

By DOROTHY RICKER

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

Thank you so much for your excellent suggestions and advice. I started dating six months ago and in the process I have been confronted with several questions.

My girl friends and I have discussed them, but we couldn't draw any satisfactory conclusions. Will you please answer them for me?

1. Should the girl, or some other member of her family, go to the door when her date calls?
2. What do you think of wearing corsages to school?
3. When is it permissible for a girl to let a boy kiss her?
4. Under what conditions do you think a girl should be allowed to go steady?

Thank you very much.

It would be better for the girl to go to the door, if possible, when her date arrives, especially if the boy does not know the rest of her family very well. I think the wearing of corsages should be reserved for special occasions (parties, dances, etc.)

However, if a girl wants to pin a single flower on her school jacket, blouse or dress I can see nothing wrong in doing it.

A kiss is an expression of affection and should be reserved for that "special" boy whom the girl likes and knows well. In other words, it is a mistake for a girl to kiss a boy on a first date—or every boy she dates.

And a girl should not kiss a boy just because she thinks it is expected of her or, as one girl put it, to "pay" for a date either.

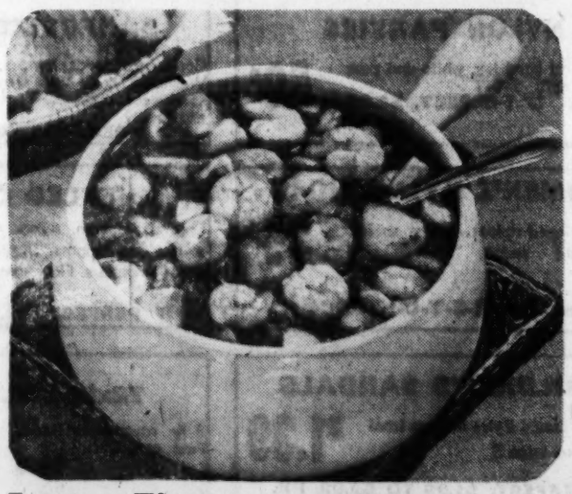

It seems to me the going steady fad has taken a lot of fun out of many girl-boy friendships. I receive many letters from teen-agers who are just plain bored with it but are afraid to do otherwise for various reasons.

When youngsters are in their late teens and have had varied dating experience, that is the time to think about going steady. But young teen-agers should date a variety of nice youngsters to get the dating experience which, in my opinion, is a necessary part of growing up.

Lenten Tips

Big Bowl of Shrimp Opens Meatless Menu

A big bowl of shrimp stew is a good beginning for the Lenten season getting under way today. And it could easily turn out to be one of those meatless menus that leaves nothing to be desired.

Add crusty bread or crackers, a fruit or vegetable salad and something hot or cold to drink.

SHRIMP STEW

- 6 tbsps. shortening or oil
- 4 tbsps. flour
- ½ cup minced parsley
- 2 cloves garlic chopped
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 1½ cups hot water
- 4 medium potatoes
- 4 small onions
- 2 stalks celery, sliced
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 pound packaged, raw-frozen, fully-peeled, deveined shrimp
- 2 tbsps. tomato sauce or chili sauce

By IDA JEAN KAIN

The science of nutrition has taken the hazards and the hunger out of reducing.

The principle of reducing is this: When the calories in the daily diet are cut below requirements, nature is forced to draw on reserve fuel stored in excess pounds and body fat is lost.

Whether or not you are dieting, the body is constantly repairing and renewing itself. For this vital reason, the protective foods which furnish the necessary repair materials must be included in adequate amounts in a safe reducing diet.

EXTRA POUNDS

Or to express it another way, think of the extra pounds as being made up of fats, starches and sugars, materials that can be safely drawn on for part of your energy needs. Carry it further, think what these stored pounds lack.

They lack protein, minerals and vitamins, the very nutrients needed daily. The well nourished body has some reserves of these vital materials, but there is no effective storage. And that is why the daily diet, regardless of calorie restriction, must be built around the foods that cover these protective requirements.

Modern adequate reducing diets contain as much or more protein than is normally used. A safe diet must contain adequate protein to make good the upkeep and repair of body tissue. It is advantageous to have extra protein (and by extra is meant protein not needed for tissue repair), since protein stimulates the metabolism.

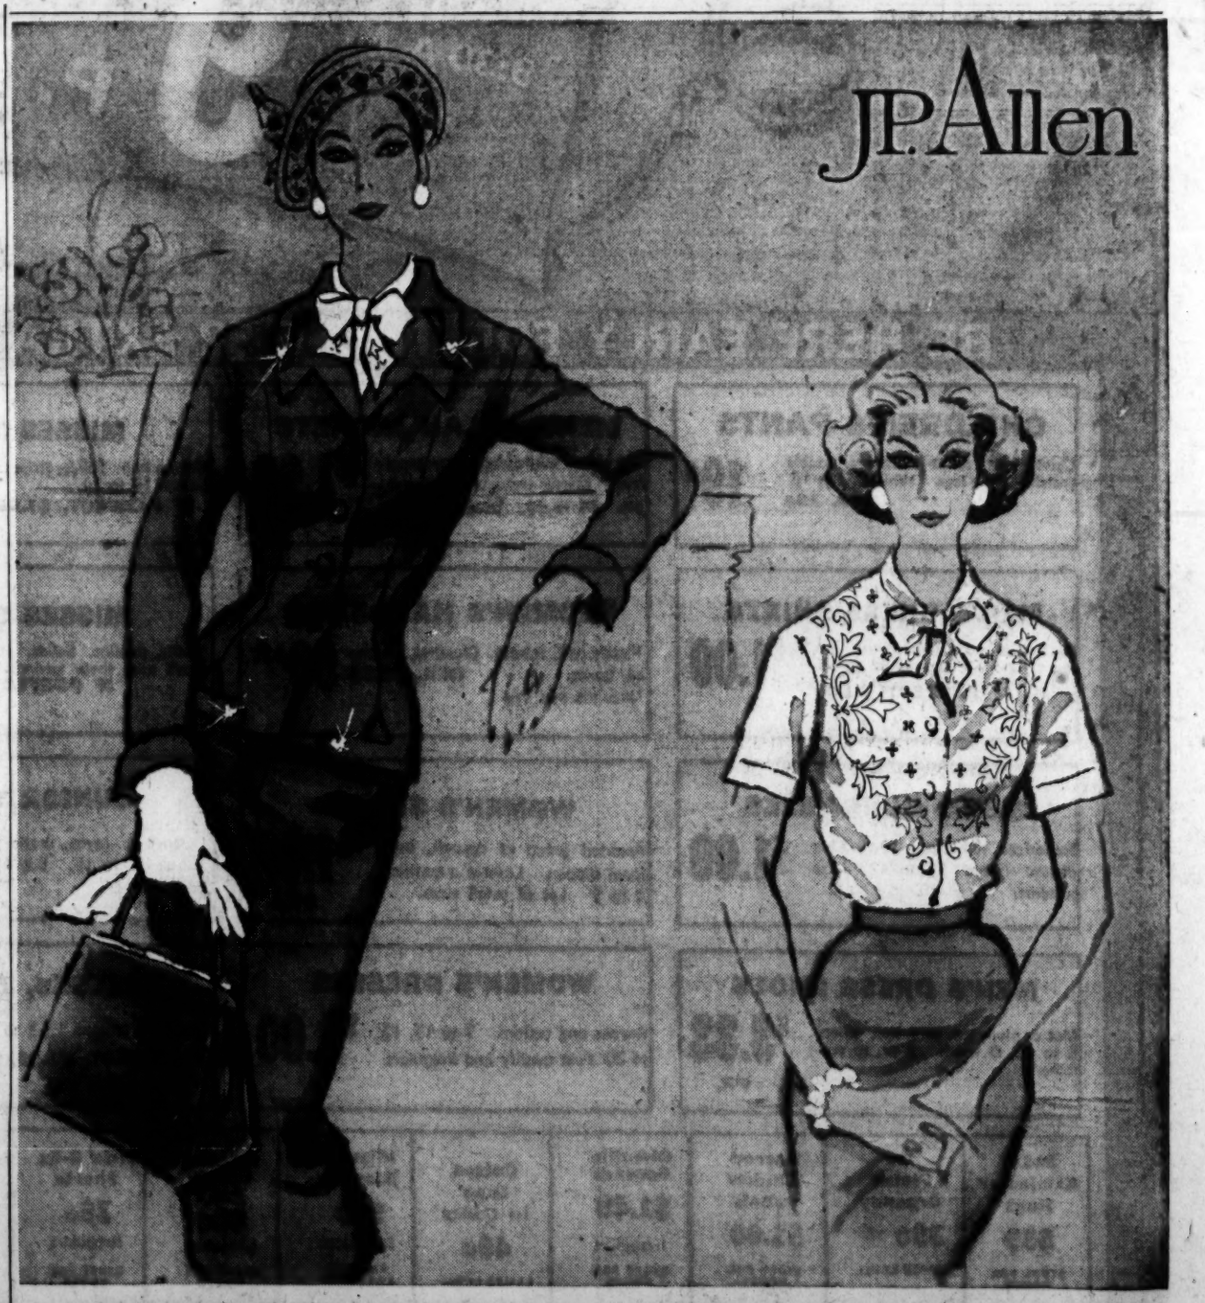

For this reason, modern reducing diets include one or two eggs, a pint of skim milk or buttermilk or one glass of milk and an ounce of cheese or one-half cup of cottage cheese, and five or six ounces of lean meat, fish or chicken.

BURNED MORE QUICKLY

Carbohydrate foods (sugars and starches) are burned more quickly than any other foods, and are especially to be watched on a reducing diet. It is important, however, to include some carbohydrate in each meal, for a small amount acts as "kindling" and helps to burn fat clean, preventing acidosis.

Therefore, the scientific reducing diet includes some potato, a small amount of bread or cereal, fruits and vegetables. On limited calories, pies, cakes and candies boost calories too high and defeat your purpose.

It's a happy fact that including the protective foods in adequate amounts on a low calorie diet can even increase your energy as the pounds are being lost. That's the way to feel wonderful on a diet.

The Hanger Clan Plans Reunion Here

By MARGARET McLEMORE

Mrs. McCarty Hanger is smiling broadly; she'll have all three of her sons and their wives plus her nephew and his wife with her on Friday.

Coming from St. Louis is her son, McCarty Hanger Jr., and his wife. They are bringing with them their close friends, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Watkins. The Roger Hangers will drive down from their home in Cleveland, Tenn., and Mrs. Hanger's nephew and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. James Edward Hanger III, of Panama City, Fla., are also due in town Friday.

Scene-stealer at the gathering of the Hanger clan will be the month-old baby of Mrs. Hanger's third son and his wife, the William A. Hangers of Brookhaven drive. The youngster is named for his grandfather, Chief Justice Walter Clark of North Carolina.

Mrs. Hanger will entertain for all of them at a family dinner Saturday evening at her home on Sheridan drive.

They'll be in town only through Sunday. The St. Louis Hangers, and their guests, the Robert Watkins, will leave then for Point Clear, Ala., for a brief vacation before returning to St. Louis.

DR. AND MRS. JOHN ELLIS leave town Friday for Louisiana, and it's difficult to say who's more excited.

Dr. Ellis, who received his specialized training at Charity Hospital in New Orleans, will attend the annual Post-Graduate Medical Assembly, so he's looking forward to being with many of his old friends.

And Mrs. Ellis is just as thrilled; after the assembly, they'll drive down to Baton Rouge to visit her mother, Mrs. Taylor Palfrey, and her brother and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. Will Palfrey.

"This will be the first time I've set foot on the LSU campus since I attended the university," she said. She promises to bring back news of "Tigers" residing in Louisiana to members of the LSU Alumni Club here.

THE CELEBRATION of the 150th anniversary of the Washington Light Infantry in Charleston, S.C., was a successful event, according to Old Guard members from Atlanta who attended. Climax of the entertainment by the city of Charleston was the ball held in the Citadel Armory.

Atlantans who attended include Commandant and Mrs. R. L. Doyal, Col. and Mrs. Allen Henson, Col. and Mrs. Elmer Stanley, Col. and Mrs. Raymond Spitler, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Robert Perkins, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Jack Isenberg, Maj. and Mrs. Alton T. Davis, Maj. and Mrs. Tom Mahone, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Little and Dr. and Mrs. Hugh Moseley.

SCHOOL BELLS won't ring until March 12 for students at the Darlington School, Rome, who are on spring vacation.

Atlanta youngsters home for the holidays are John H. Bellman, Joe Cameron Jr., Thomas M. Clarke Jr., Charles P. Driver, brothers Alston and Robert Glenn, James B. Godwin III and William S. Hitch. Also, Marshall G. Jones, William A. Mitchell Jr., Paul McGaughey Jr., Joe J. Perry III, Timothy B. Ray, Roby Robinson, Michael A. Watt, Max C. Webber, Stuart Williams and Wadleigh C. Winship.

HEADED FOR THE GOLD COAST are Mr. and Mrs. Abner Simonton. They leave by car Tuesday with Paul L. Turner Jr. of Gainesville to attend an insurance company convention in West Palm Beach, Fla. They'll stay a week at the resort—"Just long enough for me to acquire a winter tan," Mrs. Simonton said.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hartman of Athens, who also will attend the convention, plan to drive back to Georgia with the Simontons and Mr. Turner.

"EVERYTHING LOOKS just the same, and 'the island' is as wonderful as ever," Mr. and Mrs. David Murphy report. It was the couple's first visit to Sea Island, their favorite resort, in six years. They spent an evening with former Atlantans Mr. and Mrs. Bob Marrs, who recently moved into their new home on Sea Island road. Mrs. Marrs, the former Mary Lee Davidson, and Mrs. Murphy were classmates at Washington Seminary.

ARRIVING THURSDAY to spend the weekend are Dr. and Mrs. Ed McKinney and their little daughter, Mary Floyd, of Chattanooga. They will visit their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carlton McKinney, at their home on Peachtree road.

Spring Hats Feature Fabrics With Huge Floral Designs

Hat designers, and women, too, never seem to get enough of the flower theme for spring hats. This season, in addition to the enormous flowers they've been using for nearly a year, they've thought up a whole new way of using flowers—beautiful big floral print fabrics from which they are making whole hats.

These may be cotton or linen or silk prints, or even printed chiffon.

State's Club Leaders Hear Senate Chaplain

By MARY HUTCHERSON

ATHENS, March 5—Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, chaplain of the United States Senate, speaking today to Georgia clubwomen, described the basic conflict in the world today.

"We live in a time of worldwide revolution," he said, "a time when people everywhere are reaching for a more abundant life. Such a revolution is the harvest of democracy and Christianity.

"But at the same time, we find around us a heinous system of chains and enslavement aimed at perverting this revolution to its evil ends."

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

Keynote speaker at the Freedom Institute sponsored by the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs and held at the University of Georgia Center for Continuing Education, Dr. Harris, Senate chaplain since 1942 and pastor of the Foundry Methodist Church in Washington for more than 30 years, remarked that "a lot of lurid adjectives are used to describe the age we live in."

Despite the apparent religious renaissance of our time, he explained, moral debauchery, personal corruption and lack of integrity are so appalling that they seem to be symptoms ominously like those that presaged the fall of Rome.

Yet, he said, quoting a favorite poem, "Oh, age of strife, oh, age of life—to be alive in such an age."

"NEW EARTH EMERGING"

"In our changing times a new earth is emerging," Dr. Harris continued. "Is it to be the earth of redemption, or is there the possibility of another crucifixion of Christian truth on this planet?

"I don't believe that the latter is coming. But," he reminded his audience, "to talk about changing human society without changing human nature is lunatic. It's not in the chanceries of nations that life and death is decided, but in the hearts and minds of individual men and women.

"There is danger," he added, "that people will become so interested in problems all over the world that they forget the problems in themselves. "We must do the work that's nearest. We have to put things we believe in into operation where we are."

Dr. Harris has recently returned from Asia where he was President Eisenhower's special ambassador to the inauguration of Syngman Rhee in Korea.

"MORE IN DANGER"

"Syngman Rhee believes," Dr. Harris said, "that the free nations are more in danger of being absorbed by communism than ever before, but he also believes that the evil essences of communism will be realized in time to save humanity."

Remarking that a just peace and not appeasement is the goal of our time, Dr. Harris said, "We are looking for a time when the lion and the lamb may lie down together. But we must be sure that the lamb isn't inside the lion."

As prelude and postlude to Dr. Harris' speech, staff members of the center presented brief dramatizations that showed something of the history and nature of freedom, concerning which "familiarity breeds not contempt, but complacency."

Mrs. Mamie K. Taylor, president of the Georgia Federation, presiding over the initial session, reiterated the goals of the two-day institute: "First, to look at the historical background of our freedoms; second, to discover what constitutional foundations we have to rights we now possess, and third, to try to see where we are headed in terms of rights and liberties we now hold."

DISCUSSION GROUPS

Tuesday afternoon meetings included a look into the background of freedom and discussion group meetings that delved further into the individual freedoms of religion, speech, press and assembly.

The evening meeting, presided over by Mrs. Roy T. Barneu of Waycross, institute chairman, featured continuation of discussion of individual liberties and a talk by Carlton Mobley, associate justice, Supreme Court of Georgia, on "Highlights of Today's Program—A Summary and Reaction."

A freedom symposium will highlight Wednesday morning activities. The institute will conclude with a testimonial of freedom given by Gino Prato, the amiable shoemaker whose knowledge of opera has brought him fame and fortune on television quiz programs.

Society in New York

Informal Trend At Opera, Yet

(This ends the series on the changing social structures in major cities of the United States.)

By RUSSELL EDWARDS

NEW YORK, March 5—The demise of the mansions has popularized the mass debut.

Occasionally, parties are given to introduce a debutante in New York during the winter, most frequently at the St. Regis, and during June and September on the remaining estates of Long Island's "Gold Coast."

The cost of these parties may run from $5,000 to $50,000, but they are not comparable to the one given for Barbara Hutton in December, 1930, at the old Ritz-Carlton. The decorations alone cost $50,000 for that event.

Although Tuxedo Park held its first Autumn Ball in 1886, New York did not see its first mass debut until 1935 at the Debutante Cotillion and Christmas Ball, which is held annually at the Waldorf-Astoria for the benefit of the New York Infirmary.

NOTHING TO $1,200

Presentation at a mass debut may cost from nothing to $1,200.

In recent years, the mass debut vogue has also become popular in Brooklyn, where the annual Yuletide Ball has entered its second decade, and in fashionable country areas surrounding New York. Many of those held in Fairfield County, Westchester and New Jersey are connected with country clubs.

Of all the dances for debutantes, none compares in exclusiveness with the New York Junior Assemblies which are held twice a year for debutantes of old families, but at which no presentations are made.

The Assemblies, begun more than half a century ago, have been the bane of socially ambitious parents. Mere money does not impress the committee in charge, headed by Mrs. Lyman C. Bleecker, wife of a Protestant Episcopal clergyman in Cold Spring Harbor, L.I.

Many girls make their formal debuts at dinners preceding the Assemblies. The dinners are usually given at private homes, at 1A East 77th St. or at the Plaza, where the dances have been held since the closing of the Ritz-Carlton in 1951.

SHORT ON CASH

Families long on lineage but short on cash have been known to ask the Plaza discreetly how little it would cost to have a dinner for eight before the Assembly. Mr. Newlyrich, on the other hand, would gladly spend $250,000 to have his daughter accepted by the committee.

Other leading balls for debutantes include the Grosvenor, Gotham and Junior League.

Even the staid old Assemblies have had to retreat somewhat. Before World War II no male was admitted to the dances without white tie and tails. Today, dress is equally divided between white and black tie.

Even at the opera the trend to informality, which started after World War II, has made considerable inroads. In the 20s, every member of the Metropolitan Opera Club wore white tie, silk hat and white gloves. Today, the top hat is more often than not displaced by the black homburg. White ties are compulsory in the Opera Club box on Monday nights, the fashionable night at the opera, and black ties other nights. Business suits predominate in the orchestra even on Monday nights.

OPENING NIGHT

Opening night, always a Monday, no longer presents the cream of society on parade. Since 1950, first nights have been thrown open to general subscription, and society's first night has waited until the next Monday.

But everyone else who wants to see and be seen is there opening night. Applause bursts forth on the entrance of a Marlene Dietrich. The crush in the foyers and bar is terrific. The management wants it that way. Last Oct. 29, the Met had the largest gross in its history—$75,510.50.

The Met was founded in 1883 by J. Pierpont Morgan, the Vanderbilts, George F. Baker, William Rockefeller, the Goulds and other millionaires who could not buy any of the 18 boxes at the old Academy of Music. It gave up being an opera for society alone in 1933. That year, in desperate financial straits, it turned to the public for support.

It is now not quite a people's opera, but the boxes are no longer owned by the families and estates of the original incorporators. Without wide public support the Met would close.

Mrs. August Belmont, president of the Opera Guild, said when she founded the guild in 1935: "Opera has grown from a private luxury to a public necessity."

This acceptance of the general public's support for philanthropic activity, once the exclusive province of the rich, has found expression in many fields.

On Friday afternoons aged dowagers arrive in Cadillacs at Carnegie Hall to lend traditional tone to the Philharmonic Symphony concerts and make it society's matinee. However, the Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra, likewise, to a great extent belongs to the people.

The Horse Show at Madison Square Garden is still one of the great social and sports highlights of the year. The annual Horse Show Ball is one of the colorful events of the early season. Yet, the Horse Show looks to television for financial help, and seeks the general public in its effort to fill the vast stretches of empty upper-tiered seats in the Garden.

A RETIRED BARBER

Participation in dog shows is no longer restricted to large kennels. The Dodges, Colgates, Hoyts and Milbanks make up a small proportion of the exhibitors today. Even the judging has opened its ranks. One of the top judges of toy dogs at Eastern shows is Joe Raba, a retired barber of Roselle, New Jersey.

Although riding to the hounds has been and is a sport for the rich, many of those pursuing the fox today are the newly rich. Hunt clubs have let down the bars to survive.

An exception is the Meadow Brook Hunt. Formed about 80 years ago, the Meadow Brook is striving to maintain its exclusiveness with many more junior riders of first families in the field.

First-family names are still in racing. But the Vanderbilts, Wideners and Whitneys have been joined in ever-increasing numbers by car manufacturers and distributors, oil millionaires and chain-store operators. Today, as much as possible, racing events are scheduled in the interest of the public.

This broadening of New York's social structure has been going on for nearly 100 years.

But despite the change in social patterns, attendance at fashionable churches and the "proper" schools is still a part of society life. Schools such as Groton, St. Mark's, Exeter and Andover, and Spence, Chapin, Miss Porter's and the Ivy League colleges are socially required.

YOU MAY HAVE PIN-WORMS AND NOT KNOW IT!

Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms . . . ugly parasites that medical experts say infest one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, these pests must not only be killed, but killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with this dangerous, highly contagious condition. At the first sign of Pin-Worms, ask your druggist for genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge . . . the small, easy-to-take tablets perfected by famous Dr. D. Jayne & Son, specialists in worm remedies for over 100 years.

School Bond Bid Assures Premium of $101,655

A group of investment firms headed by Chase Manhattan Bank of New York City Tuesday was the high bidder on a Fulton County school bond issue. Their bid was $3,101,655.

The bid was the highest of four proposals on the $3,000,000 issue. School officials said it was the best bid of any on the three recent county school bond issues, primarily because the new issue carries an interest rate of 3¾ per cent.

Other bids ranged upward from the low of $3,049,797 offered by the First National City Bank of New York.

Board attorneys said the bid was in line with the bond market which they said reached its peak two months ago and has since leveled off.

The $101,655 premium on the bond issue apparently will be invested in short-term government notes. Return from these notes will cut the over-all interest the board will have to pay on the bonds to under 3.5 per cent, auditor James L. Respess told the board.

The board's 1955 bond issue of $3,500,000 carried an interest rate of 2½ per cent as did a $2,000,000 issue in 1953.

Plans call for signing of the bonds in New York City April 1 and turning them over to the successful bidder April 2.

The bond issue will provide for two new elementary schools, in East Point and Sandy Springs, and additions to nine elementary schools and seven high schools.

The board called for quotations on eight new school buses and three additional chassis for the 1957-58 school year. This would give the board 46 board-owned operating buses and four "spares." There are about 70 buses in the board's fleet, including buses operating on contracts.

The board also authorized the purchase of $1,050 worth of additional property adjacent to Union City School and asked Asst. Supt. Norman Aaron to negotiate for the purchase of additional land around the proposed Hammond Hills Elementary School.

Decatur Couple Win TV 'Payoff'

Dr. Sarah F. Cooley of Decatur, a pathologist at Crawford Long Hospital, won a variety of prizes Tuesday on a coast-to-coast television program, "The Big Payoff."

Her husband, Hall Mason, an Atlanta attorney, answered questions to capture the prizes for his wife. The Masons live at 532 Capistrano Pl., Decatur. They have one child.

Marietta Fete Honors 2 Teachers of the Year

Miss Mary Ellen Smith has been named teacher of the year of the Marietta school system. She was honored at a banquet along with Mrs. Lois Ferris, who was chosen Cobb County teacher of the year. The banquet was sponsored by the Cobb County Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Ferris, a seventh grade teacher at the Kennesaw School, is a native of Cobb County and has been teaching 10 years.

Boy, 14, Is Held With Man, 25, in Burglaries Here

A 14-year-old boy and an adult companion Tuesday were arrested in connection with 19 burglaries, police said.

Patrolman R. G. Cantrell and H. W. Dye said the boy was found hiding in a restaurant at 568 Decatur St., SE, after they discovered the front door broken open.

The boy, a Negro, named Frank B. Billingsley, 25, of 617 Houston St., NE, as his companion on the forays, officers said. The boy was turned over to juvenile authorities.

(The names of accused persons under 17 years of age are withheld in accordance with the Georgia Juvenile Court law.)

Evelyn Keyes, Artie Shaw Plan Paris Wedding

Atlanta-reared Hollywood film star Evelyn Keyes and band leader Artie Shaw hope to wed this month, probably in Paris, the Associated Press reported Tuesday night from the French capital.

Plans for the forthcoming marriage were disclosed to friends in Paris in a letter from Miss Keyes and Shaw in Spain.

Miss Keyes was divorced in Feb., 1950, from movie director John Huston, to whom she was married in July, 1946. Prior to her marriage to Huston, she was divorced in May, 1945, from Charles Vidor, also a film director. Miss Keyes attended old Girls' High School here.

A Rhyme a Day

"In Sioux City (Iowa) Sally Cusack was dismissed from a reckless driving charge after driving backwards for 26 blocks"
. . . News Item.

Grandfather said, and he was right . . .that folks were sometimes impolite . . . and often had too much to say . . . in the most criticizing way . . . that judging people was a sin . . . before all evidence was in . . . and if we really knew the facts . . . they might have reason for their acts.

I'm positive that Miss Cusack . . . believed she had a right to "back" . . . her car for twenty blocks or more . . . though it had not been done before . . . yet, other folks do even worse . . . than driving somewhere in reverse.

So I shall take Grandpa's advice . . . and say, I think it's rather nice . . . that Miss Cusack can drive through town . . . and not run some pedestrian down . . . and more than that, we shall not say . . . except, that's just a woman's way . . . the habit of the gentle sex . . . for making simple things complex.

Police Job Is No Conflict for Christian

QUESTION: For several years I have served on the police force of our city. A little over a year ago I took Jesus as my Savior, and have been seeking to please Him. I try to help people who are in trouble with the law and lead them to Jesus, but then the question always comes up; shall I turn them in for punishment, and will that hinder my witness to them? If I turn them over to the authorities they may harden their hearts against the Lord. W. E.

ANSWER: It is wonderful to know that you have joined the many Christians who are serving in the many law enforcement agencies in our country. Certainly you should continue to seek to win men to Christ, and above all those who are at odds with the law, for most likely they are away from Christ. A Christian is always law abiding.

But you are a law enforcement officer, and as such you would be delinquent in the discharge of your duty if you did not bring every criminal to justice. In fact, the criminal himself would have no respect for you if you did not do your sworn duty to society. You have no conflict here. Your duty to God is to witness to every man whether he is involved with the law or not. Your business as a policeman is to enforce the law. You can and should do both at all times. Your effectiveness on the police force will be your best witness for Christ to the men on the force and to your superiors.

Beefsteak on Black Eye Is Waste of Good Meat

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

Placing a piece of beefsteak over a black eye is an old-fashioned remedy and a waste of good meat. The practice is harmless but has little or no value unless pressure is applied to stop bleeding beneath the skin.

Applying an ice bag or pack is more logical because pressure plus cold will minimize bleeding and swelling. But after the damage has have done the eye will remain black until the blood is absorbed.

Enzymes like chymotrypsin, streptokinase and streptodornase also dissolve clots and reduce inflammation, swelling and pain. They are not applied locally for this purpose but are injected into an arm or hip muscle every eight hours. Improvement is noted within 24 hours.

Dr. Ben H. Jenkins of Newnan, Ga., for example, has been using chymotrypsin in hemorrhagic conditions of the eye. His report on 51 patients, 22 of whom had ordinary black eye, appeared in the October issue of the Journal of the Medical Assn. of Georgia. Pain and swelling were decreased in all cases in 24 to 48 hours.

One patient was a 32-year-old man who had been hit in the right eye with the butt of a pistol. He waited five days before seeking medical attention. When seen, the eye was swollen completely shut and was extremely painful.

Chymotrypsin was started, and within 24 hours swelling began to subside and he was free of pain. By the end of the fourth day the eye was normal.

Jenkins also reported good results with hemorrhages into the front and back part of the eye, with improvement in vision.

These enzymes are not new. Chymotrypsin is an intestinal ferment that is extracted from the pancreas of animals. Streptokinase and streptodornase are made from our worst enemies, the disease producing streptococci.

When harnessed, these organisms manufacture small quantities of a substance that is able to dissolve blood, pus and other wastes accompanying certain types of infections and injuries.

Living tissue is not affected; hence an ulcerated area can be treated without disturbing the growth and development of the surrounding skin. These products do not dissolve clots in blood vessels, consequently are of no value in the coronary thrombosis and stroke.

Streams Ebb In S. Georgia, Rise in North

Streams in south Georgia are "considerably" below their normal level this week, the U.S. Department of Interior's Geological Survey indicated Tuesday.

In the mountains and upper Piedmont regions of northeast Georgia, however, stream levels were higher than was expected for the first of March.

In south Georgia, the average flow for the month of the Alapaha River was about 80 per cent below the median last month, the survey showed. It was the second lowest February average in 20 years.

Streamflow was about 30 per cent above normal in the mountain and upper Piedmont regions.

Sentimental Journey

Fifty-two years after leaving Royston to carve his name in the Hall of Fame as the greatest all-round player baseball ever produced, Ty Cobb is coming home to the red clay hills of Georgia.

It will be a sentimental journey for the spry 70-year-old man, who has lived in California for the last 25 years. It will be a memorable day for Royston and Georgia. Reeder Tucker, enterprising Royston mayor, already is at work preparing a reception befitting the greatest competitor of 'em all. The red carpet will be ready when Ty arrives.

Outlar

"I don't know exactly when that will be," Cobb said Tuesday via telephone from his home in Atherton, Calif. "But I'll be there just as soon as I can close out my affairs here.

"It's nice of you to say that the people are interested in my coming back there," he continued. "I really am surprised so many of them remember me. I've been gone a long time, but my heart has always been in Georgia. I want to spend my last years at home."

It would sound ridiculous, if anyone other than Cobb had suggested the public might have forgotten him. For as long as baseball is played, his name will remain a magic word. In fact, Babe Ruth is the only name used in the same bracket with the Georgia Peach.

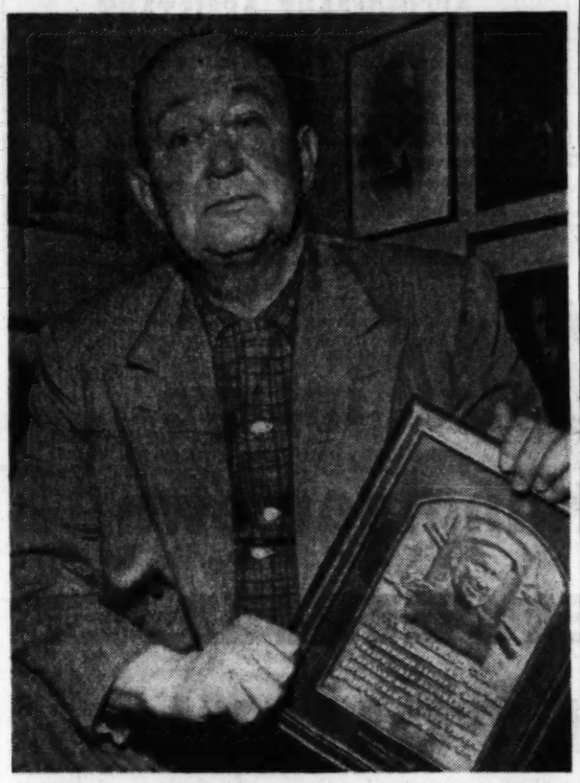

Cobb didn't hit homers like the Babe, but those who saw them say he did everything else better.

Cobb played his 24th and final season in the majors with Connie Mack's Philadelphia A's in 1928. But a stack of some 20 records still stand as a monument to the man who refused to lose.

—On Base With Ford in Detroit

He hit only .240 after leaving Augusta to join Detroit in 1905. Thereafter, .320 was his lowest average, and he left a lifetime mark of .367 in the racks. He played 3,033 games, bashed out 4,191 hits, stole 892 bases, including 96 in one season, and won a dozen batting crowns. Those are only a few of his notable feats.

Yet Cobb isn't remembered for the records he set. He is remembered as the fiercest competitor ever to put on a pair of spikes, a weapon he often used. It should have been Cobb who made the statement "that a man who won't be beaten can't be."

Associated Press Wirephoto

TY COBB HOLDS HALL OF FAME PLAQUE

Shown in Trophy Room of California Home Now On Sale

All but two of Cobb's 24 seasons were spent in Detroit, where he was as famous as Henry Ford. At least that's what the mayor of Detroit said in 1925.

At a sumptuous banquet attended by Detroit's leading citizens, Mayor J. W. Smith pitched this praise to Cobb: "Two names stand alone in Detroit history as associated with supreme degree of achievement in their respective fields, Henry Ford and Ty Cobb." That was the highest accolade in the automobile cradle.

In the telephone conversation Tuesday, Cobb repeated the statement which he made to the wire services Sunday night.

"My heart is in two things—both on the other side of the mountain.

"I am a lonely man out here," he said. "My children are gone, and I have no business here. I make two or three trips a year to Royston to help with the hospital business and check on the scholarship fund, and I want to be there permanently.

—He'll Soon Be Stealing Home Again

Cobb built the hospital at Royston in memory of his father, and set up the Cobb Education Fund for college students needing help. First the students must prove to Cobb that they are competitors, however, for they must work their way through the first year and maintain a high scholastic average. The hospital at Royston, thanks to Cobb's support, is one of the few in the country operating in the black.

"The decision to return to Georgia isn't something I decided suddenly," Cobb said. "I have thought about it for several years and made up my mind to do it some time ago.

"I intend to build a house in Royston, and that will take some time. Then, too, I have other matters to look after. I can't say right now when I'll move. It may be within three months, or it may be a good bit longer."

Cobb inquired about Ralph McGill, Ed Danforth and Earl Mann.

"Give them my regards," he said, and added, "Now that Danforth has retired from the paper, Ed and I can go fishing."

Cobb was aware that Buddy Bates, a Californian, was going to manage the Crackers. "I keep up with things in Georgia by reading the papers," he said.

Cobb hopes to get down to Florida for a tour of the major league camps and may swing by Royston to complete arrangements for his new residence.

In talking to Cobb, it is obvious that he is sentimental about his forthcoming homecoming. But those who know him say that, underneath the thick crust of toughness, he has always been a very sentimental man.

Temple Chosen for NIT Meet

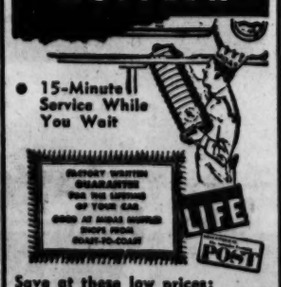

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP)—Temple was named today as the 10th team in the National Invitational Basketball Tournament, leaving two teams to be chosen for the 12-team field.

The Owls from Philadelphia compiled an 18-7 won-lost season's record.

This will mark Temple's second appearance in the NIT. The Owls won the first NIT in 1938 and Don Shields of Temple also was named the most valuable player of the tournament.

Last season Temple competed in the NCAA championships and wound up third. The Philadelphians defeated Southern Methodist to win the consolation bracket.

Jordan Names Cook, Atkins Blue Captains for A-Day Tilt

Special to The Constitution

AUBURN, March 5—Jimmy Cook, Billy Atkins, Jeff Weekley and John Whatley were appointed cocaptains of the Orange and Blue squads by Auburn's Ralph Jordan Tuesday for the annual A-Day football spring training climax Saturday afternoon.

Cook and Atkins will co-captain the favored Blues while Weekley and Whatley lead the Oranges.

Auburn's elected captains for 1957, captain Tim Baker and alternate captain Jimmy Phillips were excused from spring training along with four other seniors.

Saturday's game climaxes one of the most successful spring trainings in coach Jordan's six-year tenure on The Plains. Actually, this is his seventh spring practice since he took over duties on February 26, 1951, and went into a spring session immediately.

Jordan excused another football player today for baseball help. He's junior letterman Lloyd Nix, a right half who has missed over a week of practice because of knee trouble. Nix is expected to be the regular first baseman for Dick McGowen's baseballers this spring.

TIGER NOTES—Auburn's starters for the Oranges and Blues will be announced Wednesday . . . A neck injury will keep Thomasville, Ga., sophomore Bryant Harvard from participating. He was considered one of the top QB prospects. Others possibly missing the game with slighter injuries are ends Bobby Wasden and Jack Matchett, guard Elzie Tillery and tackle Dan Presley.

The Orange team might be the underdog but they have one of the classiest sophomore backfield combinations that a Jordan-coached team has ever fielded. This combo is QB Johnny Kern (Mobile), LH Lamar Rawson (Pensacola, Fla.), RH Bobby Lauder (Foley), or Roy Brazil (New Orleans, La.), and FB Ronnie Robbs (Chattanooga, Tenn.).

Saturday's game must be played, rain or snow, since final exams start the following Monday and end before the next Saturday for the winter quarter. Last year, the game was put back one week because of rain.

Ronnie Knox Quits Movies

HOLLYWOOD, March 5 (AP)—Ronnie Knox has parted company with MGM.

The studio announced today that the handsome young football player with acting aspirations asked for and received his release from his movie contract.

Knox gave as his reason the fact he recently joined the National Guard and is going on six months' active duty with the Army. He left last Sunday for California's Fort Ord.

The studio quoted him as expressing "deepest appreciation" for the coaching it has given him since he signed the contract last April.

Gil Coan Says He's Retiring

From Press Dispatches

Mayor Norris Poulson of Los Angeles, on his way to Miami, said Tuesday at San Antonio, "We're going to get the Dodgers."

Poulson, traveling with five companions, said he was on his way to Miami, where Dodger Pres. Walter O. Malley was sending a plane to transport the party to the Brooklyn camp at Vero Beach.

"We're going to get the Dodgers for Los Angeles," Poulson said. "Right now the outlook for us is rosy."

The Dodgers recently traded the Fort Worth franchise in the Texas League to the Chicago Cubs for the Los Angeles franchise in the Pacific Coast League, leading to speculation that the Dodgers planned to shift their National League franchise to the coast.

LAKELAND, Fla.—Holdout Gil Coan said he will not report to the Detroit Tigers and will ask Commissioner Ford Frick to place him on the voluntary retired list. Only way the 32-year-old outfielder said he would continue is "if they pay what I ask." The Tigers say they will appeal because they believe Coan had decided to retire at the end of last season. The Tigers drafted Coan from Minneapolis club of the American Assn. this winter. Coan reportedly is asking for $15,000.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—The St. Louis Cardinals line-up for a Saturday exhibition game will be the same one that will start the National League season, except for the center-field spot. Chuck Harmon will start in the center-field slot, but he is being hard pressed by Bobby Del Greco and Bobby Gene Smith for the position.

PHOENIX, Ariz.—New York Giant owner Horace Stoneham has practically given up hope of obtaining a catching replacement for Bill Sarni, who had to give up baseball because of a heart attack last week. "There isn't much around and the other clubs are asking too much for what they're offering," Stoneham said.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Manager Casey Stengel nominated six rookie pitchers to work in the Yankees' first intrasquad game Wednesday. Named were Ralph Terry, Jack Urban, Jim DePalo and Mark Freeman, all of Denver, Al Cicotte of Richmond and Jim O'Reilly from Birmingham. Yankee players received Salk vaccine shots when rain washed out Tuesday's game, but Andy Carey and Billy Martin refused to take the anti-polio injections.

CLEARWATER, Fla.—Outfielder Bob Bowman has begun experiments with a new batting stance in an attempt to hang on with the Philadelphia Phillies this season. Bowman, who fills the job defensively, hasn't been able to hit well enough to stay in the majors and faces his fourth spring

Seven Teams Aim for Northside As Girls Launch AAA Tourney

Moultrie, Coffee County Open 1st-Round Play at Thomaston

By PAUL ATKINSON
Constitution Sports Writer

THOMASTON, March 5—Eight Georgia girls' basketball teams open up firing here Wednesday . . . all seeking a crown one already wears and figures to keep.

Atlanta Northside is the defending champion, that by a razor-edge 47-46 over Decatur in 1956. And most of the young ladies who made that team so strong return to bid for a second consecutive AAA high school title.

WEDNESDAY'S SCHEDULE
2:30 p.m.—Moultrie vs. Coffee County.
4:00 p.m.—Marietta vs. Murphy.
7:30 p.m.—Northside vs. Richmond Academy.
9:00 p.m.—Athens vs. R. E. Lee.

The day's activities, all in a compact four-game card balanced by a two-game matinee session and a similar night attraction, open at 2:30 p.m. In that one, Region 1-AAA runnerup Moultrie goes after 2-AAA winner Coffee County.

Marietta and Atlanta Murphy meet at 4 p.m. And the night firing has Northside vs. Richmond Academy at 7:30 p.m. and Athens vs. R. E. Lee at 9.

Semi-finals are down for Thursday at 7 and 9 p.m. Finals, in both consolation and championship, have similar times Friday.

Floyd Anderson, the astute Northside tutor, has the young gals to make this AAA trophy somewhat of a permanent possession. Key performers are junior forwards Caryl Lenahan and Ann Evans. Lenahan scored points at a prodigious 38-per-game clip over the regular campaign but was slowed in tournament play.

That's when Miss Evans, a 1956 all-tournament selection as a guard but now a front court gal, came in with colleague Judy Seay. This duo took the scoring pressure off Caryl, and made possible Northside's Atlanta City League win. Seay, a brilliant younug lady, was most effective in the tournament semifinals and finals with 30 and 22-point efforts.

Quarter-final foe, Richmond Academy, runner-up in Region 2-AAA, could give the Northside people considerable difficulty. The Academy team was 14-4 on the season, and held the opposition in check at 33.3 points per game with an all-senior back-court trio.

Atlanta's second best, and the team that stopped a Northside win streak that had reached gigantic 44-game proportions, Murphy goes after another giant-killer in Marietta, champion of Region 3-AAA because it disposed of rugged Athens, 43-32. This 4 p.m. game promises much.

Murphy has one of the tournament's most proficient scoring punches in forwards Patsy Garner, a 5-9 blonde whiz, and Carol Watrous, a 5-10 point-collector. This duo averages over 40 points a game, and gives coach A. T. (Tom) Harmon many easy moments (a 15-2 over-all mark attests to that).

A sister combo, the Tumlins, Linda and Dinah, makes Marietta do a winning tango. Dinah, just a freshman, poured in 19 and 24 points in the tough semi-finals and finals of 3-AAA. Linda is a stellar guard.

Gwen Bond and Patsy Hardeman are two young gals who do things the easy—and winning—way for Athens. They ripped Decatur, 1956 runnerup, for 53 points in a 3-AAA battle that stopped all hopes that Decatur may have harbored of getting a second shot at Northside.

THREE BULLDOGS HURT IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

Special to The Constitution

ATHENS, March 5—Bill Strumke, Peekskill, N.Y., who lettered at fullback on the 1956 University of Georgia football team, and a pair of freshmen mates who played with him on the losing Reds in Saturday's G-Day game, were injured in an auto accident here around midnight Monday.

The sophomore-to-be pair, who were riding in Strumke's convertible when it went out of control on a sharp curve on Oglethorpe avenue and hit a utility pole, were end Harry Elmore and guard Bob Sheahan. Elmore is from Cleveland, Tenn., and Sheahan from Augusta.

Dr. Marion Hubert, University of Georgia's team physician, reported all three were getting along nicely in Athens General Hospital Tuesday night.

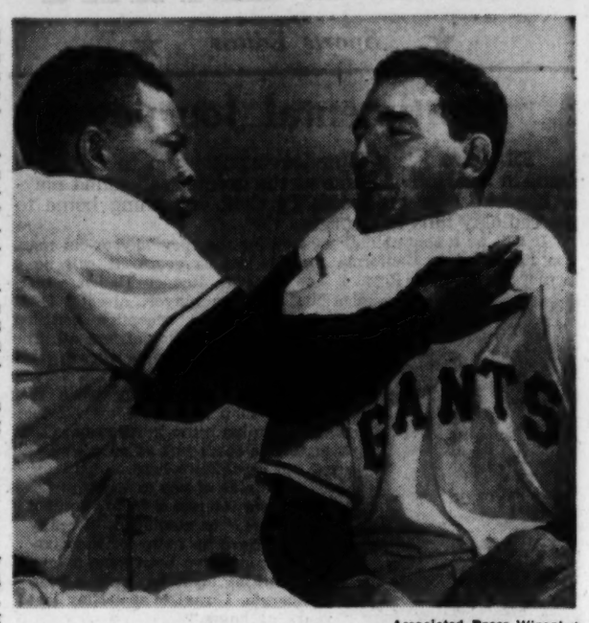

Strumke, who was driving, suffered a cracked jaw, lacerations of the upper and lower lips, and the loss of four upper teeth.

Elmore, who was riding in the front seat with Strumke, had contusions, a cracked tooth and a fractured right jaw.

Sheahan, riding in the back, was thrown from the car into a yard and escaped with multiple lacerations of the chin, forehead and head.

Antonelli Again Sets His Sights On 20-Game Season With Giants

COOL OFF SOUTHPAW . . . IT'S STILL SPRING YET
Giants' Willie Mays Towels Teammate Johnny Antonelli

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 5 (AP). Although uncoiling his talented left arm for a second-division club, John August Antonelli this year figures to be a 20-game winner for the third time in four New York Giant seasons.

Giant manager Bill Rigney today said his ace hurler may even be headed for a 25 or better victory year, although Rigney may have his problems trying to improve the Giants' sixth place finish in 1956.

Antonelli, erstwhile $65,000 bonus signee of the old Boston Braves in 1948, last year had a 20-13 record, after finishing 14-16 in 1955, and 21-7 in the Giants' pennant-winning year of 1954.

Rigney said Antonelli, who turns 27 on April 19, still is heading for a pitching peak.

"Just stop and realize," said Rigney, "that until late August last season the Giants made as many as four runs in a game only twice for Johnny.

"There is no reason Johnny can't hit 25 or 30 victories in a season. He needs the right breaks, of course. He can't struggle along with only one, two or three Giant runs a game. Not when he figures to run into the opposition's top pitcher in each series.

"But he is moving the ball over the plate better than ever before. He can shoot it inside, outside, high or low almost at will now. Johnny is a good fielder. They're not going to dribble him out of a game. And he is a pretty fair hitter. He can help his own cause at the plate."

"When you talk about 25 or 30 victories, you are saying a mouthful," said Johnny. "I think any pitcher sets his sights on 20 wins and hopes for the best. Anyway, that's what I'm going to do again.

"Anything over 20 victories is a bonus. And then you have to be pitching regularly every four games to have a chance.

"New stuff? No, I had pretty good luck last year with my old stuff and I'll stick with it."

Johnny was referring to a fine fast ball, good curve and excellen changeup which gave him 145 strikeouts and a 2.86 earned run average, third best in the National League.

Antonelli last season had only a 9-12 record as late as Aug. 7 and then won 11 of his last 12 games to finish with 20-13. There were only two other 20-game winners in the National loop, Don Newcombe of the Brooklyn Dodgers and Warren Spahn of the Milwaukee Braves, both hurling for pennant-contending teams.

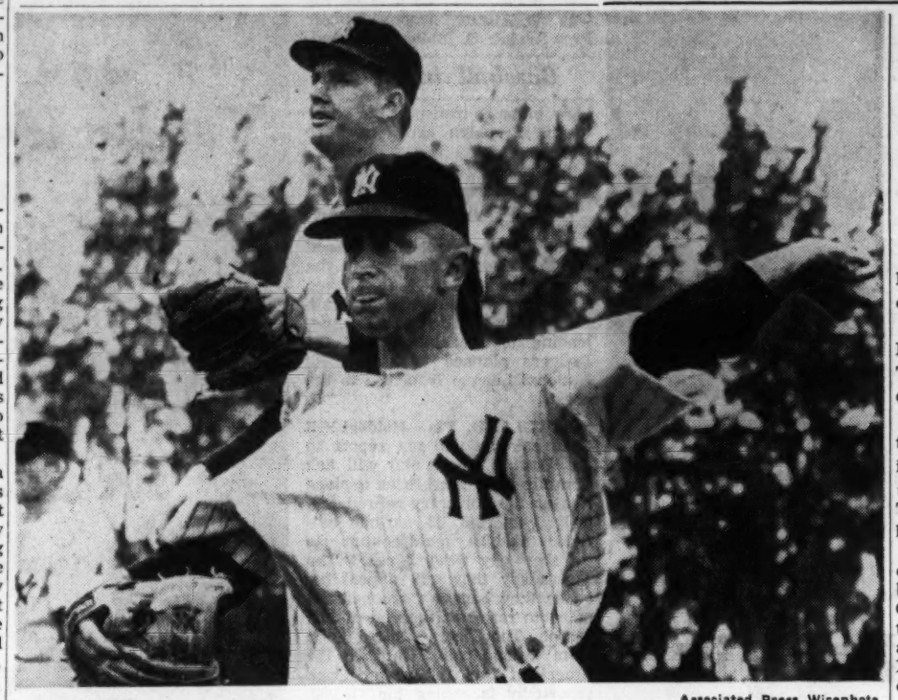

Bucky Walters, Giant pitching coach and former Cincinnati Redleg mound great, agreed that Antonelli had "all the tools" to be a 20-plus winner.

But Walters said "the day of a 30-game winner may be gone."

"Just keep in mind," suggested Bucky, "that with the advent of the livelier ball a pitcher finds it difficult to finish a game. More and more, the starting pitcher is lifted for a pinch-hitter fairly early in the game if it's close and often there goes his decision."

Antonelli, however, feels that fatigue is not his worry.

"If I reach the seventh inning," said Johnny, "I'm usually strong enough to finish."

Tyra, Palmer Added to East All-Star Team

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP). North Carolina's Frank McGuire, coach of the east team for the all-star basketball game here March 30, today selected Charlie Tyra of Louisville and Jim Palmer of Dayton for his east squad.

Each is 6 feet 8 inches tall and they played against each other in the final of last year's National Invitation Tournament. Tyra was named most valuable player in that tournament.

Previously chosen for the the east squad were Lennie Rosenbluth of North Carolina and Grady Wallace of South Carolina, the nation's top scorer. The west already has George Bonsalle of Illinois and Jim Krebs of Southern Methodist—who match Tyra and Palmer in height—Gary Thompson of Iowa State and Jed Dommeyer of Minnesota.

Kinder Signs; Piersall Remains on Holdout List

trial. He's been optioned three times and another trip would leave him up for grabs for any major league club.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—Tom Morgan's performance in early spring practice has led Kansas City manager Lou Boudreau to consider the ex-Yankee relief man as a starter this season.

TAMPA, Fla.—Ellis Kinder, 42-year-old right-handed pitcher, ended his holdout with the Chicago White Sox. Kinder, who had a 3-1 mark for the Sox last year, agreed to terms in a telephone talk with vice president Chuck Comiskey.

FORT MYERS, Fla. — Bob Friend, Pittsburgh pitching ace, worked only one inning Monday, but said it was enough to prove he's going to be all right this season. Friend had expressed concern because his arm began to bother him at the end of last season.

SARASOTA, Fla.—Center field-er Jimmy Piersall checked into a rain-drenched Boston Red Sox training camp, but continued his holdout role after a conference with general manager Joe Cronin. Piersall, who said he has been working out on his own, is reportedly asking $25,000, some $7,500 more than the Red Sox are offering.

TUCSON, Ariz.—Kerby Farrell, new manager of Cleveland, served notice that the Indians will be a running club this season—or else. Farrell held a long baserunning session and stressed taking an extra-step lead, then diving back in case of a surprise throw.

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — Rookie outfielder Harry Shetrone collected three hits, drove in two runs and scored twice as the Harry Breecheen Cats downed the Luman Harris Hares, 8-5, in an intrasquad game at the Baltimore Orioles training base.

BRADENTON, Fla. — Pitcher Lew Burdette, Milwaukee's only holdout, packed his bags and headed for a holiday with friends at Sarasota Springs, telling Braves "you can't starve me out." Burdette, a 19-game winner last season, says he won't alter his salary demands at all.

TAMPA, Fla.—Manager Birdie Tebbetts says right-hander Tom Acker is still a question mark as a starting Cincinnati pitcher. "I've got to find out whether he can go the distance," Tebbetts said.

VERO BEACH, Fla. — Chico Fernandez, Brooklyn Dodger shortstop, has been confined to Dodgertown infirmary with a throat infection. And pitcher Don Newcombe, who injured his arm in a pickoff drill Monday, said the elbow is still stiff. Both are expected to be back for practice in a few days.

MESA, Ariz.—Pitchers Bob An-derson and Dick Drott were officially added to the Chicago Cubs roster. The two hurlers, both on the Los Angeles roster, have been working out with the Cubs since spring training began.

ORLANDO, Fla. — Washington squads under coaches Bill Jurges and Cookie Lavagetto played to a 1-1 tie in nine innings as rookies did all the pitching for the two squads.

HYDER AND GILBREATH TO WORK WITH FROSH

By AL THOMY

Georgia Tech will have two freshmen basketball coaches next season, and coincidentally, they happen to be the men who teach the varsity, Whack Hyder and Byron Gilbreath.

Whack Hyder

No replacement is planned for Jim Nolan, who recently resigned to accept a post as recreation director of the Colquitt County schools. Instead, the varsity coaches will divide the duties.

"Our primary duty is to develop players for the varsity, and I believe we'll be able to handle that chore in a dual role," Hyder was saying Tuesday.

"Our most important practice phase comes during the fall, when we work for seven weeks. During this period next season we will have all of our boys working together—varsity, B team and freshmen—and the two of us will be able to devote a great deal of time to the freshmen.

"That's the time for fundamentals, and learning the basic patterns."

During the season either head coach Hyder or assistant Gilbreath will sit with the freshmen during the games at Georgia Tech. When Gilbreath is on scouting or recruiting trips, Hyder will coach both varsity and freshmen teams.

For road trips, Hyder said a faculty representative will accompany the team when it plays away from the varsity.

The position of freshman basketball coach at Tech has been something of a part-time job. Nolan coached the frosh in addition to his regular duties as an insurance agent.

Now it has become a joint operation under the direct jurisdiction of the varsity coaches.

Harris Replaces Harris for Rams

College Park Rams have a new baseball coach this year, but as far as names go things haven't changed. When Harlan Harris left for Headland High, College Park hired a new coach named Harris.

His full name is Owen Harris. Last year he was coach at Canton High. He coached the B-team football and basketball this year for the Rams.

Vienna, Perry Seek Record Fifth Titles

By CHARLIE ROBERTS
Constitution Sports Writer

MACON, March 5—Vienna High's Cubs, with the greatest short-term record in Georgia's Class B or C basketball ranks, and Perry's Panthers, with the finest won-lost chart over the long haul, will be seeking unprecedented fifth state hardwood championships here this week.

Vienna's Class C defending champs will be up to their ears in opening-day state tournament trouble Wednesday when River Bend's Hornets come to city auditorium to risk a 31-1 season chart against the 36-3 record of the Cubs at 6:30 p.m.

Perry, with all 1956 regulars gone and a mediocre 13-10 record for 1957, will not begin defense of its B crown until 3:45 Thursday when Sylvester's sparkling Eagles (22-4), champions of the second district, come to match baskets.

The Wednesday opener at 2:45 will pit Stone Mountain's Pirates (18-6), coached by ex-Pelham mentor E. L. (Cobby) Rainey, and Oconee County's Warriors (19-11), tutored by ex-Atlanta Roosevelt and Lyons High coach, Jim Clegg, in a B hassle.

First Class C game sends Godfrey Steiner's Dudley Hughes Vocs (20-7) against E. D. Foster's Greensboro Tigers (14-13) at 4 p.m.

But the Vienna-River Bend clash is the sore-thumb stickout game of the first day if records mean anything, and they usually do.

Vienna, which ran up a 35-game winning streak over a two-year span before Perry called a halt in mid-season, 40-38, has a remarkable five-year record of 144 victories and 29 defeats under Coach Glenn Cassell, ex-Mercer star.

Vienna has won 69, lost only seven in the last two years. And the school that won its first state crowns in 1927, 1928 and 1929 has no intention of waiting another 30 years to cop its fifth crown.

All Vienna figures this is the year, and with good cause. Johnny Crozier, 6-4 center; forwards Marcus Shipman and Robert Bailey, both 6-0, and guard Jerry Vaughn (6-2) are back from the 1956 championship unit. Guard Jack Mixon (5-11) has taken over in fine style for W. C. Kinard. And Cassell says this is a much better quintet than his 1956 outfit.

There is little reason to rate Perry as the team to beat in B, except that Eric Staples, a master coach, has the Panthers in the state meet for the 18th time in his 25 years there. They've made it 19 times in 32 years.

The 50-year-old Staples, who spent six previous seasons at Tallapoosa and Bowdon, has put Perry teams in the finals eight times and won the state crown in 1947, 1949, 1953 and 1956. Valley Point was an 81-52 finals' victim last year. (Vienna clipped Roopville in the C finals, 71-64.)

Perry bears no resemblance to the 1956 team. MVP trophy winner Virgil Peavy, Sam Nunn and all the others have gone with the sheepskin. But still you'll find others showing great respect for the Panthers. Staples can't play, but he's there.

Picked as cofavorites for the Class B battles are Paul Studstill's Milner Falcons, with a 26-1 record, and D. B. Carroll's Forsyth County gang from Cumming (30-3). Carroll, once at Pickens County, has had his share of teams in state meets and has a well-balanced outfit of 6-4 Harold Whitt, 6-2 James Hughes, 6-0 Hugh Smith, 5-11 Jimmy Thompson and 5-9 Donald Martin.

Vienna is the pick in C, with W. H. Cohan's Manor Indians (27-1), Bill Brown's Portal Panthers (32-2) and Tom Riden's Buford Wolves (27-2) regarded as teams with good chances to go all the way should Vienna falter. And R. R. Caswell's Roopville Hornets (26-3), who made last year's finals, can never be counted out.

Manor, which lost only to Naylor, has two players with tremendous scoring potential in Shelly Booth and Henry Barber, who averaged 27.2 and 2.8 points each trip to the court.

B AND C MEET SCHEDULE

WEDNESDAY—2:45 p.m., Oconee County vs. Stone Mountain (B); 4 p.m., Dudley Hughes vs. Greensboro (C); 5:15, Nahunta vs. Valley Point (B); 6:30, River Bend vs. Vienna (C); 7:45, Roopville vs. Roswell (C); 9 p.m., Buford vs. Shellman (C).

THURSDAY—12 noon, Arlington vs. Dudley Hughes - Greensboro winner (C); 1:15, Milner vs. Nahunta-Valley Point winner (B); 2:30, Adairsville vs. Vienna-River Bend winner (C); 3:45, Perry vs. Sylvester (B); 6 p.m., Manor vs. Roswell-Roopville winner (C); 7:15, Collins vs. Forsyth County of Cumming (B); 8:30, Portal vs. Buford-Shellman winner (C); 9:45, Cochran vs. Stone Mountain-Oconee County winner (B).

4-AA Splits For Baseball

Region 4-AA baseball will be divided into three divisions this year.

4-AA East will consist of teams of Druid Hills, Chamblee, Avondale, and Westminster.

College Park, Newnan, Hapeville, and Fairburn will make up the 4-AA Southwest and South Cobb, Sprayberry, Campbell of Smyrna, and Douglas County the Northwest division.

These teams will play a round robin schedule. A double elimination tournament will begin April 26 at an undecided site with the winner of the eastern division meeting the winner of the west for the championship.

NEGROES QUIT TOURNEY ON 'ADVICE' OF STATE

JACKSON, Miss., March 5 (AP)—Jackson State College for Negroes abruptly pulled out of the NCAA small college basketball tournament today, four days before it was scheduled to play a white team.

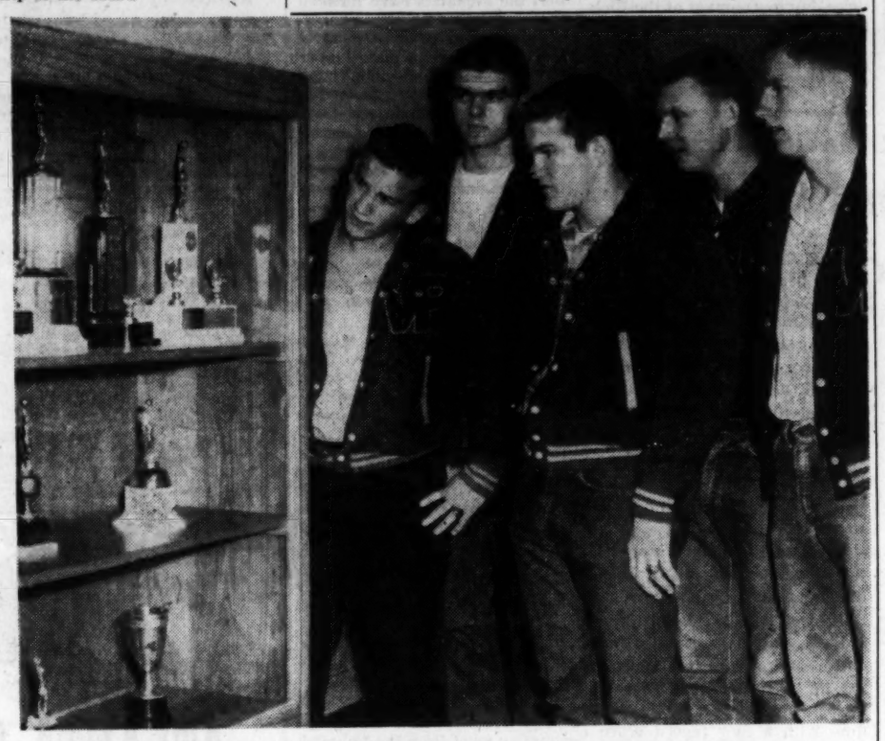

Dr. Jacob L. Reddix, president of the state-supported school, said he was withdrawing the powerful quintet after state authorities advised that their policy is against play "under the present conditions."

Jackson State, which had a 22-won, 2-lost record during the regular season, defeated Philander Smith, a Negro team from Little Rock, 93-65 in the first round of Midwest regional play last Saturday night.

The Jackson school qualified for the NCAA by winning the championship of its own Negro circuit, the Midwest Athletic Conference.

They were to have played this Saturday night in South Dakota, against either Monmouth, Ill., South Dakota University or South Dakota State—all of them white schools.

Mississippi has no state law against inter-racial athletics. But the board of trustees of institutions of higher learning has made clear that such play is against their "policy."

Arizin Nears Second NBA Scoring Crown

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP)—With only eight days of the regular season remaining, Paul Arizin of the Philadelphia Warriors has his second National Basketball Assn. individual scoring championship virtually wrapped up.

The 27-year-old jump-shot specialist, who won the title in the 1951-52 campaign, scored 107 points in four games last week and lifted his total for the year to 1,693.

The scoring leaders through Sunday's games:

Ace by Jacket Golfer Was No Help on Card

By Bert Prather

Letterman Gabe Hill, who is battling to land a varsity berth on this year's Georgia Tech golf combine, isn't so sure a hole-in-one is advisable during a qualifying round.

Bert Prather

The other day at East Lake CC No. 2, Gabe was working on one of the 12 qualifying rounds the 20 Jacket candidates must turn in before Coach Tommy Plaxico selects the top six. On No. 14 (par 3—130 yards) he uncorked a seven iron that sailed straight into the cup.

Partners George Johnson and Ed Barnes congratulated Gabe and urged him to go ahead and make it a real hot round. But, Gabe was so nervous on the next hole that he double-bogied it, thus losing the strokes right back to the card.

The next day he got a birdie deuce on 14 and par on 15. Not so spectacular but a stroke better.

Burgett Mooney, president of Rome's Coosa CC, invites all his golfing friends up for the club's annual invitational March 23 and 24, but we'd like to warn all who go about brother Burgett.

On a recent afternoon, Burgett had six birdies on the par 35 front nine. Since some of the back nine was under water, he played the front twice and wound up with a 63.

Dr. Lucius Smith is defending champ in the Coosa event. Luke also holds the course record at 63. Par is 35-36—71.

But more about the ace-makers. Harold Weinberger has joined the club. Playing in a fivesome with Mrs. Sidney Smith, I. J. Friedland, Cliff Jockers and Leonard Greenbaum, Harold stroked a perfect three iron from tee-to-cup on the 170-yard 8th hole at Standard T&C last week. Another trophy for Hal's case.

CHIP SHOTS: Mrs. Lewis R. Sams, president of Capital City WGA, has set March 6 as date for kickoff meeting. Business session at 11, lunch at noon and rules clinic conducted by Mrs. Walter H. Beard and CC pro Bill Barker at 1 p.m. Mrs. John Owens is veep and Mrs. John T. Fulwiler Jr., secretary-treasurer of this 100-member organization. MICKEY WRIGHT
Eyes Titleholders

THE END OF A REIGN

Wright Could Write A Titleholders' Story

By BERT PRATHER

If anyone is to break the four-year Berg-Suggs domination of the Women's Titleholders tournament, it should be 22-year-old Mickey Wright.

The tall, power-hitting youngster from San Diego, Calif., has the game tailored for the long (by women's standards), exacting and hilly Augusta Country Club course.

She demonstrated her ability to go on a championship layout when she captured the Ladies' Professional Golfers' Association tour opener at Sea Island.

And only last Monday, Mickey staged a brilliant finish to take the Jacksonville (Fla.) Open with a 72-hole total of 295. In this one, the smiling Californian closed with a sensational 68 over the Hyde Park course.

If the Mick gets off to a good start in the Titleholders a week from Thursday, Patty Berg and Louise Suggs will have their work cut out for them if they are to keep on passing this coveted title back and forth.

There has not been a surprise winner in the Titleholders since Pat O'Sullivan, then an amateur, won it in 1951 with a four-round total of 301.

The late Babe Zaharias was tl.e '52 winner with a 299. Then the Berg-Suggs reign started. Patty won it in 1953 with a record 294, only to surrender the crown and record to Louise's 293 in '54. The next year it was Patty's time to win—this time with a new record score of 291.

This one still stands for though Suggs returned to the throne last year, as cold, blustery weather ruled to send scores soaring. Her winning score was 302, highest since 1948, another Berg year.

Hundley and Mates Defending SC Title

Mountaineer's Fred Schaus Not Sure Team a Shoo-In

RICHMOND, Va., March 5 (AP)—One thing is obvious about the people who regard West Virginia as a shoo-in for the Southern Conference basketball title in the league tournament opening here Thursday: They haven't talked with West Virginia Coach Fred Schaus.

Schaus knows he has a formidable championship contender and he is outspokenly proud of West Virginia's handsome 12-0 conference record over the regular season. But as to whether the 11th-ranked Mountaineers can sweep all before them in the three-day tournament at the Richmond Arena, he's not so sure.

"I definitely feel that this will be the best all-around field the tournament has had. Any team that's entered is capable of beating its opponents," says Schaus.

Ironically, West Virginia could have suffered two defeats during the regular season and still have gone into the tournament as the No. 1 seed. But now that the Mounties have finished with an unbeaten circuit record—have, in fact, won their last 18 conference games over a two-season span—there's no alternative to keeping the string going if they want to win their third straight conference championship.

The tournament opens at 2 p.m. Thursday and of all the seeded clubs, West Virginia would appear to have the softest touch in the first round. The Mountaineers meet Davidson (4-8) in the final standings, in the second Thursday afternoon game at 4 o'clock.

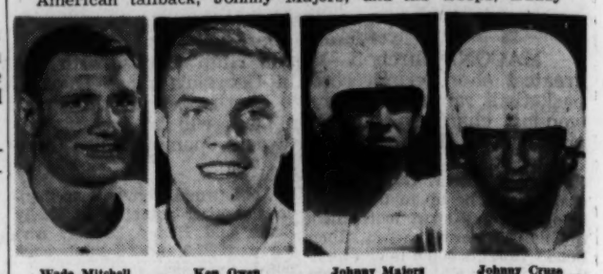

Fourth-seeded Furman will be a slight underdog to home-standing Richmond in the first-round opener. Second-seeded Washington and Lee expects to have a battle on its hands against The Citadel in the first night game at 7:30 p.m., and third-ranked Virginia Tech could run into trouble against hot-and-cold William and Mary in their 9:30 p.m. collision.

TECH BOWL TROTTERS BATTLE VOLS TONIGHT

Georgia Tech and Tennessee footballers get together again Wednesday night to try to settle a score on the basketball court.

The teams, both billed as Bowl Trotters, have set their rematch for the old Tech gym at 8:30 p.m.

It will be another Atlanta appearance for Tennessee's all-American tailback, Johnny Majors, and his troops, Buddy

Wade Mitchell — Ken Owen — Johnny Majors — Johnny Cruze

Tech's cage "Wreck" boasts Wade Mitchell, Jimmy Thompson, Ken Owen, George Volkert, Frank Christy, Carl Vereen and Paul Rotenberry.

Tickets for the game will be on sale at the gate for one dollar.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

From Press Dispatches

Previously National Football League commissioner Bert Bell had made himself available to discuss pro football problems before Congress.

Marshall said in a letter to Rep. William E. Miller (D-NY), "I am available and will be glad to help in any way any member of Congress who is interested."

Miller has proposed an investigation of pro football in the wake of the recent Supreme Court ruling that the sport should not be exempt from antitrust laws.

Marshall says the present NFL setup benefits both players and fans.

BASKETBALL—Lafayette College was chosen Tuesday to represent the Mid-Atlantic Conference in the major college NCAA tournament. SMU's Jim Krebs, Larry Showalter and Bobby Mills were named to the All-Southwest Conference team along with forwards Jerry Mallett of Baylor and Ray Downs of Texas, Krebs, tower center on the SWC champs, and Mallett were unanimous choices.

MISCELLANY: Marlene Stewart of Font Hill, Ontario, winner of last year's U.S. Women's Amateur golf championship, was named Canada's Athlete of the Year for the second time. The same was given her in 1951 after she broke the U.S. hold on the Canadian Women's Amateur title as a 17-year-old. . . . In Redwood, Calif., former middleweight boxing champion Bobo Olson pleaded for a $750 cut in support payments to his estranged wife and their four children. Bobo said he was hard-pressed to make earnings cover them and the five children another woman, Judith Crabbe, has borne him. He wants the payments cut from $1,000 to $250 per month. . . . Army Capt. Joseph Gregory, Columbus, Ga., won the 20 shots slow fire event in the opening day's firing of the National Midwinter pistol shoot at Tampa, Fla. M./Sgt. H. L. Benner, pistol instructor at the U.S. Military Academy and over-all defending champion, was second. Across the bay at St. Petersburg, Herb Hollister of Boulder, Colo., turned in the best performance in opening competition of the National Midwinter Small Bore Rifle Championships. Hollister put all 40 shots in the bulls-eye for a 400-39X. . . . C. R. (Pink) Gutermuth, vice president of the Wildlife Management Institute, was presented the Wildlife Society's Leopold Medal for "distinguished service to wildlife conservation" Tuesday night in Washington, D. C.

Ft. Mac Loses In Army Meet

FT. BRAGG, N.C., March 5 (AP)—Ft. Jackson, S.C., and Ft. Bragg advanced undefeated through second round games Tuesday in the Third Army basketball tournament.

Bragg, led by Pete Kovacs, former Monmouth, Ill., college star, defeated Ft. Stewart, Ga., 97-57 in an afternoon men's game. Jackson drubbed Ft. Campbell, Ky., 88-62, tonight and Ft. Gordon, Ga., eliminated Ft. McPherson, Ga., 106-63 in a consolation game.

Also undefeated in the tourney is Ft. Rucker, Ala., which tangles with Bragg at 9 p.m. tomorrow night.

In the WAC game tomorrow defending champion Ft. McClellan, Ala., which defeated Bragg 30-22 today, faces Ft. McPherson at 1:30 p.m.

HOWELL TOP CHOICE ON COACHES' ALL-SEC

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 5 (AP)—Bailey Howell, a 6-foot, 6-inch Mississippi State sophomore, headed the coaches' all-Southeastern Conference basketball team as announced today by SEC Commissioner Bernie Moore.

The team, selected by a vote of the 12 SEC coaches, also includes sophomore Johnny Cox of Kentucky and seniors Jim Ashmore, Mississippi State, Joe Gibbon, Mississippi, and Calvin Grosscup, Tulane.

Moore said the second team is composed of Jack Kubiszyn, Alabama; Bobby Kimmel, Georgia Tech; Joe Hobbs, Florida; Al Rochelle and Bobby Thym, both of Vanderbilt. All are seniors except Kubiszyn and Hobbs, who are juniors.

Howell, the SEC's leading rebounder, most accurate field shot and third highest scorer, was nearly a unanimous choice. He got all first team votes and one for the second five.

Each first team vote counted two points and each second team vote registered one point, Moore said.

Howell collected 23 points followed by Ashmore with 22, the lone repeater from last year's first team. He also made the All-SEC-second team as a sophomore.

Gibbon, who led SEC scoring this year, placed on the second team last year. He finished fourth in the voting this year, getting 20 points, just one less than Cox.

Rochelle, on last year's first team, was edged by Grosscup, 15 points to 13.

COACHES' ALL-SEC TEAM

Jim Ashmore, Miss. State (22), 6-0, senior, Forest, Miss.
Joe Gibbon, Mississippi (20), 6-4, senior, Hickory, Miss.
Johnny Cox, Kentucky (21), 6-4, sophomore, Hazard, Ky.

SECOND TEAM

Save-Nickel Drive To Fight Inflation

By JIM MONTGOMERY

Would you cut your spending by 5 per cent to check inflation?

In times of peace (however tenuous) and prosperity, as contrasted with wars and other obvious crises, it takes no little fortitude to call for personal sacrifice.

Jim Montgomery

Near-record employment, rising wages and economic expansion tend to veil perception in a rosy mist.

Right now most Americans can say, "I'm making more money than ever before. I've never had more leisure time. And I can provide all my family's needs and have enough left over to buy a lot of other things (luxuries) I've always wanted."

But here it is not difficult to understand why many individual Americans would unthinkingly respond to a plea for sacrifice with, "Who? Me? Don't be ridiculous!"

Nonetheless, an organization representing a large group of the world's wealthiest business firms—American life insurance companies—is getting ready to throw its weight behind a massive, costly, anti-inflation advertising program.

And personal sacrifice is the foundation of its attack.

Its theme—"save an extra nickel out of every dollar to help keep prices from going higher"—is aimed at the pocketbook of every individual in the country.

In other words, if your take-home pay is $50 a week, you can help check inflation by saving an extra $2.50 a week over and above whatever you may now be saving, the Institute of Life Insurance figures.

Its plea is based on the premise that one of the main causes of rising prices is overspending.

Danger Considered an Urgent Matter

While recognizing that economists may be divided on the current dangers of inflation, the institute directors felt the need for such a campaign was urgent enough to suspend in its favor "a highly successful" series of life insurance promotion ads.

The institute emphasizes that everyone can take part in the inflation fight by adopting the "save an extra nickel out of every dollar" platform.

It also urges that:

1. Management contribute by offering better products at the same prices, or the same products at lower prices.
2. Employes do their share by increasing productivity.
3. Support be given "every reasonable move" to reduce government spending—federal, state and local.

Program Comes on Heels of Ike's Appeal

The launching of this campaign comes on the heels of President Eisenhower's recent appeals for help from business and labor in putting the brakes on inflation.

The leadership of this important segment of American private enterprise may serve to stimulate comparable public service activities by many other responsible industries.

After all, no one's dollar can escape inflation's scissors.

Management Is Optimistic For Future

By ELMER C. WALZER
United Press Financial Editor

NEW YORK, March 5—S. B. Lurie, research expert for the firm of Josephthal & Co., finds top management of some 80 different businesses more optimistic than financial centers on the business outlook.

Lurie took a survey which brought in the following results:

Estimated 1957 sales: Better than 1956, 84 per cent; about the same, 12 per cent; lower than 1956, four per cent.

Estimated 1957 net profits: Better than 1956, 73 per cent; about the same, 15 per cent; lower than 1956, 12 per cent.

Estimated 1957 profit margin: Better than 1956, 41 per cent; about the same, 36 per cent; lower than 1956, 23 per cent.

Estimated 1957 capital expenditures: Higher than 1956, 43 per cent; about the same, 26 per cent; lower than 1956, 31 per cent.

2 IMPLICATIONS

He deduces that the survey has two constructive implications:

"1. Evidence of an all-enveloping downward spiral is lacking.

"2. 1957 seems destined to be a year of perhaps greater cross-currents than any other in our post-war history."

The survey showed the greatest uniformity of opinion regarding the prospect for higher earnings in the air conditioning, automobile accessory, drug, electrical equipment, farm implement, office equipment, railroad equipment, retail trade, soft coal, steel, tire and tobacco industries.

Some industries under an obvious cloud right now also expect higher profits, Lurie notes. These include textile and television.

GREATEST CONCERN

But the stock market isn't apt to take the foregoing estimates as a cue to setting off on another classical bull upswing, Lurie says.

The market wants to find out two things, he indicates — Will there be a moderate spring business upturn, and is the market in tune with today's realities?

The spring business upturn is said to hinge on the auto industry.

Lurie believes the market is in line with today's economic realities. And he says it is less vulnerable than it seems to be at first glance. He finds the prevailing psychology reminiscent of past bottom turning points.

N.Y. Cotton Merchants Elect John C. Hughes

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP)—The Assn. of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York today announced the election of John C. Hughes as chairman.

Sen. Scott Spotlights Chicken Farm Squeeze

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP)—U.S. senators lunched on North Carolina chicken at the invitation of U.S. Sen. Scott (Dem) and the state's chicken producers.

A note by their plates from the State Broilers Assn. said the producers were paid 17½ cents a pound for broilers that cost 18 cents a pound to raise.

That, Scott told other senators, is one reason for the current Senate investigation of the poultry business.

McDONALD SPEAKS

Management, Labor Urged To Quit Feud

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP)—David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers of America, said today the time has come for labor and management to end "hero and villain" roles in respect to each other.

"I think there is developing a common awareness, not only in steel but elsewhere as well, that unions and management are both here to stay and must learn to live together," he said.

McDonald, addressing the New York Building Trades Congress, said he believed union leaders and company executives should adopt an approach toward "mutual trusteeship."

"We know that profits are necessary to provide return to investors and means for progress," he said. "We know that stability is important so a company can plan ahead. We know equally that the worker must feel he is getting a fair shake and that he too can plan ahead."

McDonald said "those who scoff will go about their business as always—calling names, seeking mastery, jubilant over each victory against the enemy"—but that their system will not work.

"The people — workers and owners alike—have an overriding interest that will not forever tolerate the futility of unnecessary strikes caused by failure at the bargaining table when there is a better way—a way that pays off for everyone," he said.

'Don't Cuss the Bus!' Transit Official Urges

By BOB WILLIMON

Don't cuss the bus!

That's the slogan the nation's No. 1 transit official said here Tuesday he likes to urge on irate motorists tempted to vent a little spleen on man's "friend in yellow."

"What would you rather have in front of you," said American Transit Assn. Pres. Paul O. Dittmar' "a bus carrying 70 to 80 passengers or the 50 or 60 automobiles they would be riding in if it weren't for the bus?"

Here to address some 125 delegates attending ATA's three-day Southeastern conference at the Henry Grady, Dittmar added a few words of his own to a conference agreement urging increased use of public transportation facilities as a means of combatting traffic congestion.

AUTO CONGESTION

"First of all," Dittmar said, "we transit people prefer to call it what it is—auto congestion, not traffic congestion.

"The streets are not being used as they were intended to be used. We've gotten away from the principle of the greatest good for the greatest number of people. Since the transit vehicle carries the most people, it should be given the breaks over the auto," Dittmar added.

Commenting on conference discussions aimed at improving the social acceptability of buses, Dittmar emphasized the need for improved bus design, deluxe service and the "elimination of the term 'mass transportation' from our thinking.

INDIVIDUAL TRANSPORTATION

"The individual, as he should, thinks of himself as an individual—not as part of a mass entity," Dittmar said. "We like to cater to that idea, and we want him to think of transit service as his individual transportation."

Noting that "the more parking space you provide in downtown areas the more you add to auto congestion," Dittmar predicted that the auto eventually will "choke itself out of use" in mid-city sections and transit will again come into its own.

ATA represents 500, or about 95 per cent, of the nation's transit firms. Dittmar said that total gross revenues of the firms last year were down "about 7 per cent" from the $1.4 billion in 1955. The decline, a trend since World War II, is in a "leveling" process but was emphasized last year by the abandonment of transit facilities in a number of smaller communities, the official said.

Atomic Fuel Seen a Must By 2000

PHILADELPHIA, March 5 (AP)—By the year 2000 the world will be using the atom to do most of the work now done by coal and oil.

This prediction was made today by Charles H. Weaver, vice president of the Westinghouse Electric Corp. at an economic conference.

Weaver, in charge of Westinghouse's atomic program, said "today we are living in the coal age," but warned "at best coal alone would appear to satisfy our power demands only for the remainder of this century."

FOSSIL OUTLOOK DARK

"The outlook for fossil fuels is indeed dark," he declared at the meeting sponsored by the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania as part of the opening ceremonies of the new 15 million-dollar Hotel Sheraton.

"Before the end of the century the supply of coal, petroleum and natural gas will be depleted to the point that they can no longer furnish our energy needs." Weaver said.

REQUIREMENTS GROW

"Nuclear power offers the only practical alternate to fossil fuels for meeting our energy requirements."

And those requirements he said are growing bigger every day as population and production increase.

"It is quite conservative to estimate that electric generating capacity in the United States in 2000 will be four to seven times of that of today," he said.

Contradictory Washington Forecasts Hit

PHILADELPHIA, March 5 (AP)—A textile industry executive said today that a "succession of contradictions" in statements on America's economy is making it difficult for businessmen to plan forecasts of future sales.

Harry L. Dalton, vice chairman of the board of American Viscose Corp., said that while President Eisenhower repeatedly warns of inflation he submits a budget that "could be the largest contributing factor."

He said Treasury Secretary Humphrey and former President Herbert Hoover warned of severe depressions and Commerce Secretary Weeks said he could see none.

Manufacturers' Sales Brisk

Dow Jones News Service

WASHINGTON, March 5—The Commerce Department reported today manufacturers sales rose more than seasonally during January.

New orders increased by the usual seasonal amount. Inventory book values rose only slightly and unfilled orders were a shade below the previous month.

"It looks pretty good," commented one department economist. Besides the rise in sales, he noted that new business "stayed close to the high early winter level" and he added the inventory rise was "to the good rather than bad" because in most areas "inventories are plenty ample."

The department said manufacturers sold $28.7 billion worth of goods in January. This was $900,000,000 more than December sales and $2,300,000,000 higher than January last year. Since the sales increase was more than expected, the department's seasonally adjusted index rose to $29,100,000,000 in January from $28,700,000,000 in December.

All the seasonally adjusted increase came in sales of nondurable goods, particularly by food and petroleum producers, the report said. Among durable goods manufacturers, sales increases in the primary metal and machinery areas were mostly offset by sales declines in transportation equipment.

Southeastern Venetian Blind Manufacturers Assn. will hold its annual seven-state Southeastern regional manufacturers and suppliers meeting Friday at the Dinkler Plaza.

Associated Industries of Georgia's Management Institute will hold its second five-day supervisory training course at the University of Georgia in Athens beginning Monday. Registration for the $75 course, purpose of which is to improve the supervisory abilities of "leadmen, foremen and other first-line supervisors," may be arranged by calling TR. 4-8674.

Dulles Seeks Test of Japan Textile Curbs

WASHINGTON, March 5 (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today he assumed that the Justice Department will file suit to test the legality of state laws aimed at restricting the sale of Japanese textiles in this country.

Dulles told a news conference he wrote the department some time ago asking it to take such action. He said he had heard nothing from the department and assumed it was complying with his request.

The department asked about Dulles' statement, said the question still is under study.

The laws concerned were passed last year by the South Carolina and Alabama legislatures. They require stores selling Japanese textiles to advertise the fact with prominent signs on the front of their premises.

(A similar measure for Georgia won House approval but failed to get through the Senate in this year's session of the General Assembly.)

List Punches Out Routine Advance

Optimistic View on Mideast Cited as Spurring Market

By ED MORSE

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP)—The stock market punched out another limited advance today in routine style.

Market analysts credited this for a more optimistic feeling regarding the Middle East situation, yet individual stocks have not responded to it completely according to Hoyle.

The statement by Secretary of State Dulles that Egypt was dragging its feet in reopening the Suez Canal and that it could be reopened within 10 days if work proceeds vigorously was perhaps one reason for lagging on the part of international oils today.

REASSURANCES

So far as stocks in other groups are concerned, quietinng of the Mideast situation provided some reassurance of more peaceful world conditions and tended to obviate uncertainty in this respect, brokers said. But technical market factors also were credited to some degree for this day's performance.

The market was active and higher at the start and extended its gains for a while. Then some rises were flattened and it looked as if the rallying phase were coming to an end. But rails started an advance of their own and chemicals joined in, lifting the market well to the plus side by the close.

Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 60 cents to $174.30 with industrials up 90 cents, rails 50 cents and utilities up 10 cents.

13 TOUCH NEW LOWS

Of 1,119 issues traded, advances outnumbered declines by 550 to 318. There were 13 new 1956-'57 lows and six new highs.

American Telephone lost a fraction after its large gain yesterday. Westinghouse Electric was up ⅜ despite closing for a week of its Mansfield, Ohio, plant. Sunbeam lost a point despite its raised dividend. Celanese, reporting higher earnings, rose ⅞.

Gulf Oil, with big Mideast interests, dropped 1⅛ and Royal Dutch ¼. Douglas Aircraft gained 1 and United Aircraft lost ⅞.

American Stock Exchange was mixed on 790,000 shares compared with 990,000 yesterday. Gainers included Woodley Petroleum, Mead-Johnson and Creole Petroleum. Among losers were Hazeltine, Anacon Lead and British Petroleum.

Corporate bonds were slightly higher. U.S. Government bonds were irregular in light dealings over the counter.

Sugar Futures

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP)—Lack of further raw sugar sales in the world market brought nervous selling into the world sugar futures market. Prices, after a steady opening, fell as much as 10 points before trade buying checked the decline.

In the world market spot raws were reported offered at the last sale price of 6.35 cents a pound f.o.b. Cuba. World raws were quoted at 6.30 cents a pound f.o.b. Cuba.

In the domestic raw market 20,000 tons of raws are due to arrive unsold this week. For first-half March arrival, domestic raws were reported offered at 6.35 cents a pound delivered compared with possible bids of 6.15 cents, the preesnt spot price.

Domestic futures were easier. The refined market was quiet.

Wheat Sparks Grain Climb

CHICAGO, March 5 (AP)—Wheat futures got a good rally going on the Board of Trade today after the fairly substantial losses in new crop months in the previous session.

Wheat was up more than two cents a bushel at times on buying encouraged partly by expectation of good export demand. The strength in wheat affected operations in other pits. Soybeans climbed around two cents and corn and rye also were firm.

Traders said they expected a good export demand in the near future. Brazil is expected to be in the market for 250,000 tons of U.S. wheat Thursday. Several other countries have made inquiries for wheat, they added.

The government weekly weather and crop summary said rains further improved wheat prospects in Texas and Oklahoma, and improved topsoil moisture somewhat in New Mexico. The report added, however, that generally the winter wheat crop needs rain badly in Nebraska, Western Kansas, and the eastern portions of Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico.

Corn receipts were somewhat lighter at 197 cars, compared with 268 a week ago. Of the total, 167 cars were owned by the government. Traders also noted that the government sold only 240,000 bushels of corn to exporters at the Atlantic at $1.42 a bushel for No. 2 yellow. The United Kingdom was reported to have bought moderate quantities of U.S. corn overnight. Exporters said France is scheduled to buy 800,000 bushels tomorrow.

Short covering helped keep soybean prices up.

Cotton Drops On Soil Bank

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP)—Cotton futures declined today under pressure of light but persistent liquidation. Final prices were 60 to 90 cents a bale lower and near the lows for the day.

Growing sentiment among traders that the Department of Agriculture may fail to reach its minimum goal of 3,500,000 cotton acres in the soil bank this year stimulated selling of new crop trading months. Recent beneficial rains also tended to dispel ideas that the 1957 cotton crop may be a short one. Through Feb. 22, cotton farmers had pledged only 2,003,970 acres to the soil bank.

In current crop months, slow conditions in the spot markets and textiles induced liquidation, with New Orleans interests prominent sellers of May. Switching from nearby March to later deliveries was relatively active, following issuance of two March transferable notices at New York. One notice was stopped rather promptly, while the other one circulated for some time in the trade. The March open interest at the start today was down to 38,400 bales.

Dry Goods

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP)—Small selling of print cloths, broadcloths and sheetings predominated in the cotton textile market Tuesday. Sales were for spot and nearby shipment, with prices about unchanged. Futher bidding for the popular 80 square print cloth for second-half delivery at 18 cents a yard was noted, but mills declined the business. This construction sold at 18 cents on spot for average makes in first hands and ⅛ cent lower in resale.

The wool goods market was slow. Australian wool markets were mixed, according to private advices.

In rayon goods, business was confined to fill-in buying by converters, mostly on filament fabrics.

The Italian team representatives of the European Bridge league drove to a decisive victory over the American aggregate in New York early in January. It seemed, for a time, as though they were immune to error, but during the third session of play a hand came along on which the eventual winners fell from grace. On this hand my partner and I, after marching in like lions, filed out like meek little lambs, in an ultra-safe contract of five hearts.

The bidding sequence was:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1 diam.	Double
Pass	2 diams.	Pass	3 diams.
Pass	3 spades	Pass	4 clubs
Pass	4 hearts	Pass	4 no tmp.
Pass	5 clubs	Pass	5 hearts
Pass	Pass	Pass

My two diamond bid may appear to be bizarre, but it was made to announce a hand of game going proportions, and was intended to soften the effect of the previous pass. When partner bid four no trump, I could construe it in no other light than Blackwood and dutifully responded. When partner bid five hearts, under the practices of the four no trump convention, it was incumbent upon me to pass.

Twelve tricks were routinely taken for a score of 680 points. The result was quite depressing to contemplate because it appeared certain that the Italians would reach the vulnerable slam in the other room — which indeed they did. However, we had not allowed for the remote possibility that they might reach the slam in an inferior contract. Their actual bidding sequence was:

East	South	West	North
1 spade	Pass	2 diams.	Double
Pass	2 spades	Pass	3 diams.
Pass	4 hearts	Pass	4 no tmp.
Pass	5 clubs	Pass	6 no tmp.
Pass	Pass	Pass

East's bid of one spade does not represent a shift in trends. Belabored by a bad run of cards, he decided to relieve the monotnony by inserting a psyonic bid. This may or may not have had some effect on misdirecting the final contract.

The three of diamonds was led against six no trump and declarer was able to take just 11 tricks. A 100-point set was duly recorded, enabling the United States to gain 780 points on the deal.

Interview With Chennault Salutes Flying Tigers in Sunday Magazine

Look for these stories in this Sunday's Atlanta Journal-Constitution Magazine:

An exclusive interview with Gen. Chennault honors the 14th birthday of Flying Tigers. Magazine staff writer William Hammack flew to Monroe, La., to interview the Flying Tigers' first boss, Gen. Claire Chennault.

HE'S HAMMERED AN ANVIL FOR 71 YEARS . . . Arthur E. Daniell started pounding the anvil when he was eight years old, and he's still at it. The bulge of biceps and the general appearance of the traditional blacksmith, are not possessed by Mr. Daniell, Cobb County's oldest blacksmith.

A TEACHER'S FOND MEMORIES OF PRINCESS GRACE . . . Mildred Miller Snyder tells of Grace Kelly's school days at Stevens School for Girls in Germantown, Pa. She gives you a glimpse into the life of the woman who is now her serene highness, Princess Gracia Patricia.

Sneaking Ravioli To Other Woman Is the Last Straw

MINEOLA, N.Y., March 5 (UP) —Mrs. Helen Buccheri, 49, testified in court today that her husband drank continuously, refused to work, never got up before 3 p.m. and then spent his time in pajamas in an easy chair watching television.

But the last straw, Mrs. Buccheri said, was when her husband, Ciro, sneaked her ravioli out of the house and gave it to another woman. When she admonished him about this, Mrs. Buccheri said he slapped her.

Lithonia Will Vote Again March 30 on Bond Issue

A previously approved bond issue for city improvements for Lithonia will be voted on again March 30, according to Mayor W. Marbut Blackmon.

The $70,000 issue includes a slum clearance program, street improvements and a swimming pool. Federal funds will supplement the slum funds, Blackmon said.

A bond issue of $68,000 was approved by the voters last October, Blackmon said, but because of legal wording in the advertisements, Blackmon decided to hold another election this month. "We didn't want to have any part of the program jeopardized because of a legal technicality," he said.

The mayor also disclosed that a joint city-county planning program with land use maps and zoning maps is two-thirds finished.
